The Cohasset apartment hunt

By Jane Lane

Whenever demand is greater than supply, there is bound to be discontent. And that theory becomes more evident when it pertains to housing.

All realtors within this affluent coastal town agree there is virtually nothing to offer the numerous clients who flock to their offices, requesting reasonably-priced apartments.

One realtor said that as soon as he advertises an apartment, there are immediately 20 calls. Another local realtor confessed that when she recently advertised a rental home for $400 per month, "the phone never stopped ringing — we had to take it off the hook." And that response was for a dilapidated home with no insulation, broken windows and an absentee landlord.

"The key is that there are more people who want apartments in Cohasset, than apartments available," one realtor explained. "Many people don't like the bigger apartment complexes that are in other towns such as Marshfield. In Cohasset, they think they can have the best of both worlds. Some feel that having a nice apartment in Cohasset is like owning your own home.

And although there is an admitted shortage of moderately-priced rental units in town, most realtors said they would not be in favor of greatly expanding that number.

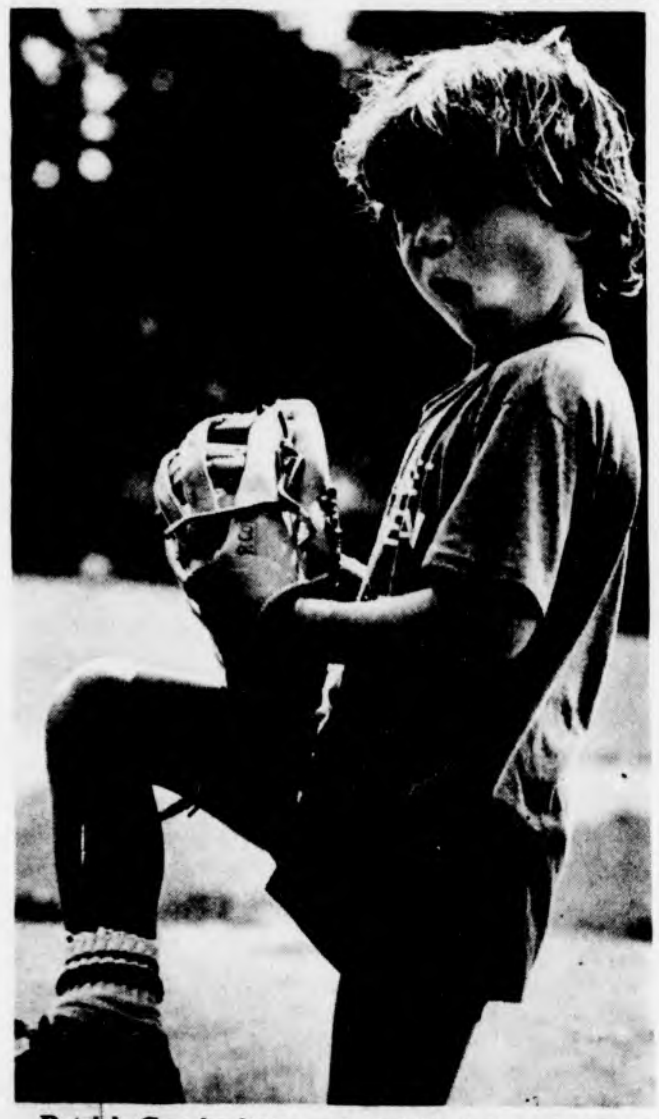
"I know there are a lot of bigger homes in town that are very expensive to heat. Having an apartment within the home could help with the heating and maintenance bills. I would be more in favor or converting the larger homes into smaller apartments than I would constructing big apartment complexes. A lot of multiple-unit dwellings would change the flavor and character of the town," a Cohasset realtor said.

And that character is just what lures homebuyers and rentors into Cohasset, realtors agree.

"If someone wants to live in an apartment complex, there are plenty of others in other towns. When people move to Cohasset, they come here for the flavor of the town. Anyone looking for a home in Cohasset is looking for a town with something special. If they want to live in apartment complexes, they should go elsewhere," another realtor stated.

According to the assessor's records, there are 157 two-family dwellings in town. There are 13 three-family units, 17 multi-family dwellings (four or more units), and 37 combination commercial and residential buildings.

One realtor said she would like to see more apartments within Cohasset for the predominately young couples who request reasonably-priced units.



"I would like to see some controlled apartments in town similar to housing for the elderly. In don't want to see a bunch of complexes like they have in Marshfield — they are having problems there because they can't rent them now," she said. "But I would like something available for the lower income people — not tenements in a row. In certain spots only."

One Marshfield resident is currently pursuing an apartment in Cohasset. Her aim — only to leave Marshfield.

The 25 year-old single mother of two now lives in a rented home in Marshfield. She is eager to leave, she said, and would like an apartment in Scituate, Cohasset, Hull, or Hingham, none of which have an abundance of rental units for the lower income bracket.

She is not working, so her income is severely

Chief DeBassio quits

Police Chief John DeBassio submitted his resignation to selectmen Monday morning and said he hopes to leave the department next month for a better paying position in private industry.

Selectmen took the resignation under advisement and will decide whether to accept it or not at their next scheduled meeting on Sept. 1.

Gov't. Committee opposes 5 selectmen

The town government structure committee will recommend against a special town meeting article to expand the board of selectmen from three to five members.

The committee voted 5-2 Monday not to endorse the article. The proposal is one of several articles to be considered at a special town meeting next Monday.

Committee member Donna McGee said more time was needed to research the proposal and that it would probably be on the committee's agenda in the fall.

It's not that the committee opposed the idea, said McGee, they weren't comfortable with the facts presented and want more time to investigate.

For example, the government structure committee spent a year researching creation of the selectmen's executive secretary position. McGee said the committee considers themselves more of a deliberative body than a judge and jury.

"We're very concerned that town meeting doesn't think we're closing the issue," she said. The committee plans to weigh the work load of the selectmen's office in upcoming months. She said selectmen board could function possibly better as a policy making board if more work were given to the executive secretary.

McGee said the committee plans to issue a statement of why they did not endorse the article at the special town meeting.

At Monday's meeting, Selectmen Henry Ainslie and Tanna Kasperowicz discussed the pros and cons of expanding the board of selectmen. Ainslie reported that the selectmen were unanimously opposed to expansion.

The special town meeting begins Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the CHS auditorium.

CHS auditorium needs work, but the roof comes 1st

By Donna Cogliano

School officials and a consulting architect agreed Monday that roofing repairs must be completed before other High School auditorium renovations begin.

Nearly half of the school committee's $50,000 request from special town meeting would be spent on securing a new roof in the auditorium area of the High School.

Frank Bagge of Knight, Bagge and Anderson Architects of Boston said a new roof would be needed to protect the interior renovations. The cost of roofing repairs was estimated at $20,000 by the Boston architectural firm.

The auditorium's roof is more than 30 years old with its life expectancy being 20 years he said. The tar and gravel roof has substantial leaks reported Bagge.

School Committee Chairman Diana Kornet stressed that the special town meeting approporiation request was only for partial auditorium and brick renovations at the high school. The architects' conservative long term project was estimated at $154,000 which included dimmers for the auditorium florescent lighting.

The firm's more extravagant plan calls for $35,000 in roofing repairs amounting to a $169,000 project. This more expensive option includes new insulation and a synthetic rubber roofing. The less expensive roofing project would not consist of new insulation. However, wet insulation would be replaced. The existing gravel would be scraped and repairs would be made to the existing membrane.

School Supt. Eugene Crowell spoke of the long term project as rejuvenation rather than renovations for the school. "Because we are looking at this project as a long term project...it's not a dressing up or a face lifting...it is the logical long term maintenance that a town must have to keep their buildings weather (conditioned) proofed to extend their longevity," he said.

This project is to protect and preserve the building, it is not a "frill," he said.

School Committee Member John Langmaid III said the board felt now was the time to ask for the approporiation since the town was receiving $103,000 back from last year's MBTA assessment. Towns that received no MBTA service will be getting last year's payments back. Langmaid said the school board was told by the advisory committee that if more money than expected came to the town, then more funds would be available to the schools.

Cohasset's week...

Red Cross bloodmobile

The Cohasset chapter of the American Red Cross will hold a bloodmobile Wednesday, Sept. 8.

It will be at the Unitarian Parish House, 23 North Main St., from 2:30 p.m. to 7:15 p.m.

All donors between the ages of 17 and 65, who weigh at least 110 lbs., are urged to attend.

CHS athletic physicals

A physical examination is required for all students planning to play soccer and football.

Dr. Robert T. Sceery, School Physician, will be in the Health Room at the Junior/Senior High School, on the following dates:

Football — Thursday, Aug. 26 at 1:30 p.m.

Soccer — Friday, Aug. 27 at 9:15 a.m.

This will be the only time physicals will be offered by the school before practice begins. If you are unable to take advantage of the physical at this time, you will need to be examined by your family physician and get a note stating that you are in good physical condition to participate in athletics.

No student will be allowed to begin practice until he or she has had a physical examination.

Animals must be licensed

The Board of Health reminds all residents stabling horses, goats, and cleft-hoofed livestock in Cohasset that they must be licensed with the Board of Health. The fee for such a license is $5.

Licensing your animals facilitates the quick exchange of information when the need arises. If there is a report of a contagious disease, the Board can notify you to ensure that your animal can be protected.

Licensing can be done easily provided that proof of applicable immunizations have been performed.

Reading fun at the Pratt

One hundred-six readers are climbing the Reading Castle walls at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library.

These Cohasset youngsters are participating in Dungeons, Dragons, Castles & Keeps, the summer reading program that is now in full swing. The program will continue through Sept. 10. Fifty-six of the students have read 20 or more books to each earn a paperback as a gift of the Friends of the Library.

As part of the summer fun, youngsters are being offered the singular opportunity to win their very own pet dragon. The fiercely friendly, but nameless, creature that guards the Reading Castle in the Children's Room will be won by the patron who submits the most dragonish name. Entry forms are available at the children's desk until Sept. 3.

Cancer prevention study

The Social Service League has agreed to head a second Cancer Prevention study in town, beginning Sept. 1.

The study is similar to the one conducted by American Cancer Society in 1959.

Cancer Prevention Study II is a statistical research designed to examine the relationship between environmental and life style factors and development of cancer.

The Social Service League is looking for eight volunteers to help with this study. They will find 10 families. The families will be asked to answer a questionaire about their health history and current living, working and eating habits. The information will remain confidential.

The eight volunteers will explain and distribute the study's four-page questionaire, retrieve the completed forms and do the necessary follow-up work.

Parents want more discipline on buses

Parents at Monday night's school committee meeting want stricter discipline aboard the school buses this year. One parent said she knew of several parents who would volunteer to ride the elementary school buses as monitor.

Judith Fitzsimmons initiated the discussion of bus routes. She wanted to know what changes in discipline and the individual bus routes had taken place.

School Supt. Eugene Crowell said the school would open with identical bus routes from last year. Activity aides would ride the buses as monitors during the first week of school to determine overcrowding and timing constraints of the bus routes.

Crowell said he was not aware of disciplinary problems which took place aboard school buses last year. One parent mentioned an incident where a student lit firecrackers on the bus.

"I personally had no complaints of any disciplinary problems...I will certainly look into it," said Crowell. Any youngster who constantly misbehaves on a bus would be asked to walk for a week or could be driven by parents, he said.

Crowell said he had received complaints from parents regarding the language used by older kids in front of the younger kids on the combined Osgood and Deer Hill School buses.

Yet he was also told some parents favored the younger students riding with their older brothers and sisters.

Parents also registered their complaints Monday regarding the large amount of standees on buses. One parent said three jam-packed buses passed by her home each day last year. She said many students are driven to school in the morning by parents when they get a late start and therefore more kids board the bus in the afternoon than in the morning.

PSO President Nancy Sandell said organization members plan to meet with school administrators soon to discuss these bus issues and other topics prior to the school opening.

CHS needs a new roof...

of the town's MBTA assessment return was arrived at by committee members. However, member Martha Gjesteby pointed out that she was not aware of the decision because she was away at the time. Kornet said every effort was made to contact Gjesteby. Kornet also said there was no time to post a meeting. Gjesteby said an emergency meeting could have been scheduled.

Gjesteby told the committee that in addition to the $50,000 request another $16,000 was being requested at special town meeting to pay the costs of the health insurance for school employees.

Gjesteby wants to proceed with the long term project but said that she wished the project had been considered last spring in advance. Crowell said that when the schools were asked to cut $80,000 from their fiscal year 1983 budget that such a project could not possibly be considered.

Suggested improvements to the auditorium by the architectural firm were outlined by Bagge at Monday's meeting.

Included in the long term project would be improvements to: acousitcs, overall appearance of the auditorium, reduction in noise level of existing heating and ventilating system, lighting, local sound system, stage lighting controls, repairs and renovations to exterior of building including new roofing, pointing and waterproofing of masonry walls.

The auditorium is used for assemblies, drama productions, musical productions, town meetings, classroom use and for other community meetings.

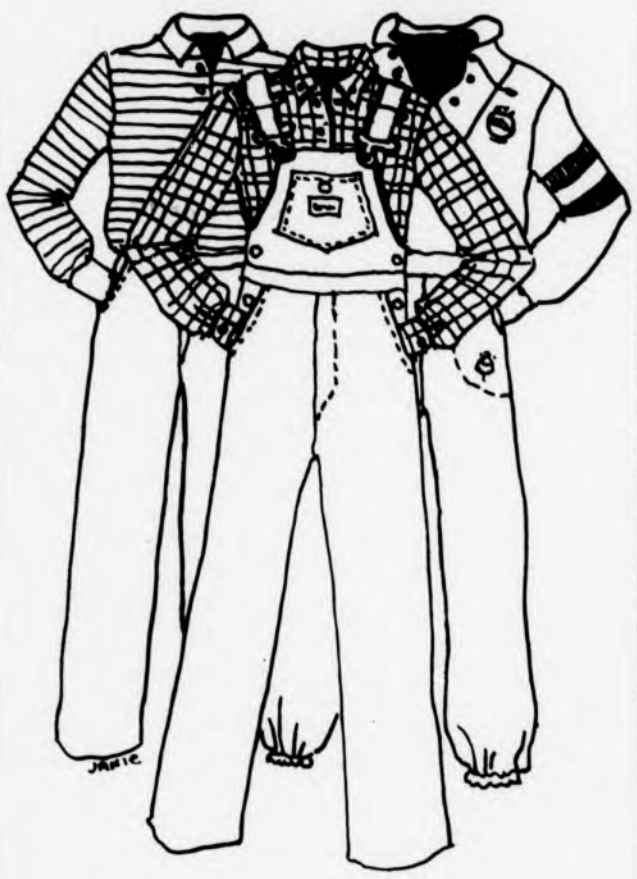
Estimated costs for acoustical treatment of the auditorium total $64,000. A Cambridge acoustical engineering firm recommended that new absorptive panels line the auditorium walls and ceilings and that carpeting be installed on the aisles and at the front of the auditorium.

Ceiling work includes relocating the sprinklers, rewiring of the entire auditorium with flourescent lighting including a dimmer control ($6,000), reflective panels for center of ceiling and absorptive panels suspended along the side walls of the ceiling. Bagge said the absorptive panels would be made of wood fiber and hydraulic cement. These side panels resemble shredded wheat cereal.

Nancy Clapp, a parent, wanted to know if any chemicals were included in the panels which might be harmful to asthmatic or allergic students. Bagge doubted that any such chemicals were included but said he would find out.

Estimated costs in Bagge's proposal were: ceilings, $21,000; walls, $28,000; floors, $10,000; and seating repairs, $5,000. The auditorium seating capacity is nearly 600 and would remain the same with renovations.

Crowell said that Cohasset students should be complimented on the amazingly good condition of auditorium seats. The seats are more than 30 years old. Seats will be repaired and anchored as necessary.



The new energy efficient auditorium lighting would cost about $22,000. An additional $6,000 is needed for dimmers which Crowell said is to control safety and discipline in the auditorium.

Other cost estimates of renovations were: ventilation system noise reduction, $12,000; auditorium stage spot lights, $4,000; stage lighting control, $16,000; and sound system, $10,000.

Bagge recommended that all roofing and ceiling work be completed first. However with $10,000 to be spent on repointing bricks it seems unlikely that enough funds would be available for both ceiling and roof repairs if town meeting approved the $50,000 request. The entire wiring, dimming, lighting and acoustical renovations should be completed simultaneously while addressing the ceiling. Committee members discussed the possibility of tackling the side walls before the ceiling.

The school superintendent, school committee and Bagge will make a presentation to the advisory board tomorrow night (Thursday). The advisory board is expected to decide on a recommendation for next Monday's Special Town Meeting.

restricted, she explained. The most she could afford for an apartment would be $300-$325 a month, "and that would be a lot," she said.

"I can't find anything, anywhere," she said. "I've had no luck anywhere. Even the more expensive apartments, they're still not available — at any price." The realtor she contacted this week in Cohasset confirmed there was little she could do for the woman.

"I just couldn't help her," the realtor said. "She said the highest rent she could pay would be $325 a month and that is very low for Cohasset. I could only think of two apartments in town — one was a one room basement apartment in a home, and the other was a one-room studio above a store. Neither would have done her any good."

What the Marshfield mother is looking for is a two-bedroom unit with a refrigerator and preferably, a yard. She realized her hope for finding such an apartment is dim.

"All the realtors say there is virtually nothing available at any price, or whatever is available isn't big enough. So chances are, I will have to remain where I am — I don't know when I'll ever get out of here," she said.

With her oldest child about to start school this year, the young mother had hoped to relocate by the beginning of September. She realized that will most likely not occur. "I've looked for two weeks, and I expect I'll be looking for a long, long time," she added.

Currently, there are no applications before the planning board or the board of appeals for construction of apartment units, or the conversion of homes into multi-family dwellings, according to planning board chairman Barbara Power.

She acknowledged there is a critical housing shortage throughout Massachusetts, although building starts in the state and in Cohaseset are "shockingly low."

Several years ago, the town passed a zoning bylaw in which multi-family units could be located in the highway-business district. A home may be converted into a two-family dwelling by special permit. Greater conversions within a home may take place if more contingencies are fulfilled, she added.

Again, the magic byword "character" comes into play. Power explained that the bylaw was passed with the intention of "preserving the character of Cohasset" while attempting to meet the demand for housing.

Cluster zoning within the A and B residential district was approved by the town last year. Two applications for cluster zoning are currently being proposed. One proposal developed by Frederick Thayer at 100 Pond Street, would include some multi-family dwellings. The other development, conditionally approved by the planning board, is being proposed by L.C. Realty Corp. and is known as Cedar Ledge Village. This proposal disappointed the planning board in its failure to provide numerous multi-family units within the development.

As the planning board chairman noted, "there is room for apartment unit developments of various kinds in all parts of the zoning map."

Yet the shortage of rental units in Cohasset continues without any foreseeable remedy.

Selectmen will sign contract on Cedar St. dump

Selectmen said last week they intend to sign a contract for the expansion and eventual closing of the town's Cedar Street landfill.

The board's decision to sign with the Sealund Corp. of Marshfield was based on a report submitted by the town's dump committee last week. The report provided a cost analysis of the Cohasset Heights Limited landfill proposal versus use of the town dump for a ten year period.

The Disposal Area Study committee unanimously recommended that selectmen sign the contract with Sealund Corp. which provides for the continuation of the Cedar Street landfill. "The figures come out the same...the ony financial advantage in the Barry Brothers proposal would occur if the rate of inflation over the next 10 years exceeded the eight percent annual increase we have figured, since their hauling fee is a fixed excalated figure," the committee wrote.

The committee reported the proposal's disadvantages as: 1. Cohasset Heights landfill may fill up rapidly and leave the town without a landfill; 2. their lack of experience in full range municipal service; 3. since March there have been some operational difficulties in relation to the board of health. For example, Cohasset Heights Limited Landfill has not yet installed a scale to weigh incoming loads.

The committee said the current disadvantages of the proposal were: 1. agreement terminates when the Cohasset Heights landfill is full; 2. have to waive royalty to town because of state law. The state will soon raise this royalty rate from 50 cents to a minimum of one dollar per ton; 3. must agree to extension of present site, but area and location of extension not specified in the offer.

The committee also wrote: "We must keep in mind: the town meeting voted twice — once formally last year, and once informally just a couple of months ago, to cap and extend the Cedar Street landfill. The board of health had to try three times to get a big in under the (town meeting) appropriation, and on the third try they only got one such bid. Sealund's bid is only open for 30 days.

Two weeks ago Selectmen Chairman Henry Ainslie asked the dump study committee for a cost analysis of the proposal. Last week the report was completed and submitted to selectmen from members Eleanor Cooney, secretary, Ernest Stevens, chairman, and Arthur Pompeo, Jr., vice-chairman.

☐Ann Patrolia recently received the "Golden Sally" award from the Metaphysical Kenetic School of Cosmic Harmony for showing "formidable courage at a recent incident in Revere." Traslated: Sally and friends from Westfield State College have formed a fan club for the rock group "Police," and bestow reward upon their members in recognition of fortitude at parties.

Congratulations, er...nice existing, Ann!

☐Some years back (I believe, nine) two Cohasset High School seniors shared the limelight in the senior class play, "Bye Bye Birdie." They were Sandy Dillon and Peter Reardon. On the same day, a Monday, last month, they both auditioned for roles in upcoming musicals in New York City and both made it! Keep your eyes on these two rising stars.

☐Peter has been chosen for the lead role, Cotty, in a musical play called "Preppies" which is in experimental stages, although it was attractive to backers after a performance in East Haddon, Connecticut. Directed by Peter Masterson (co-author of "Best Little Whorehouse in Texas"), it is hoped that the play will open in Boston sometime in November at the Wilbur Theatre.

Peter's mother, Ann Reardon, enjoyed the Ct. presentation and says it has "great potential." She was impressively modest about "Cotty," the main "preppie" in the play.

Peter is a graduate of Syracuse University where he majored in drama. He was active in theatre while growing up in Cohasset and performed in Notre Dame and Theatre by the Sea (Plymouth) productions.

Peter's dad, William, brother, sister, and at least a full busload of Cohasset friends, will be on hand for the hoped for Boston opening.

☐Sandy Dillon has just begun rehearsals for her roles of Janis Joplin and Grace Sylck in "Rock & Roll — The First 5,000 years," a musical review of the history of rock 'n roll. Sandy will "sing" the role of the two R & R stars and she also plays the piano.

This show, which is shooting for a Broadway opening in the fall, is being produced and directed by the same team that put "Dream Girls" together.

Sandy has been singing and playing the Big Apple clubs for two years now and reports home to parents, Barbara and Edward, that rehearsals are like having a "9-to-5" job after the long nights of the clubs' circuit. She is a Berklee College of Music graduate (cum laude, in 3½ years) where she earned a bachelor's degree in compostion. That is her main musical interest; she studied piano locally with Olive Mullen for ten years.

Sandy's whole family, including two brothers, a sister-in-law, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Sampson of Hingham, plan to be sitting in the front row of "Rock & Roll..." on opening night.

☐We wish both Peter and Sandy much luck and deserving reviews!

☐Marilyn Adams and Mary O'Connor are living proof that smokers can jog.

☐Margaret Lynch was getting ready to send a "top priority" message to the Mariner when I reached her last week. She and Charles are the beaming first grandparents of a boy... Charles Nicholas, born at 9:40 p.m. on July 21. He weighed 8 lbs. 2 ozs. and, while he looks like a baby, Margaret adds, he's very handsome.

Charles' parents are Megan and William Patti of Revere; Megan's sister, Mary Louise, was on hand at her nephew's arrival.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Patti of Boston are also grandparents and great grandmothers are Mrs. Charles Lynch of West Roxbury and Mrs. John Albert of Rye, New York, who has already come to visit her great grandson.

Margaret says little Charles will be visiting them over Labor Day Weekend and, I quote, "All our friends are welcome to come meet him."

☐Judy Bronstein says that she and two of her high school classmates (Sharon) had a mini-reunion last weekend in a Pembroke phonebooth...

☐Steve and Teesha Bryant will be leaving Cohasset soon, temporarily, for new quarters in London near Kensington Square. Steve will be working for Blyth, Eastman International for two years and then, we hope and anticipate, they will come home to Cohasset.

The Bryant's were surprised by many friends last weekend at a farewell party. They received a sailing calendar which was personalized with everyone's birthday, an umbrella, and Cohasset needlepoint. They anticipate many visitors.

☐Unfortunately, I also learned that the Bishop family is departing soon, more or less permanently, for Darien, Connecticut, from whence they came 3½ years ago.

David has a new, irresistible job in the insurance field; Jane has her old job back at a nursery school; and Cohasset's loss on the ice hockey rink (Paul — budding goalie) and in the swimming waters (Sarah, "Bishie") is Darien's indisputable gain!!

Happy re-beginnings and we hope they'll visit us often.

☐Eileen Mullaney, who wrote such interesting letters to the Mariner from Somalia, is now working in Los Angeles with the Traveling Nurse Association. She arrived on the West Coast after a cross-country trek that included camping and reunions with old friends from her past stints as a nurse in Ecuador and Africa.

☐Most people visit friends or relatives here or there for a week or two, but the lucky ones have those nearest and dearest rent a house nearby for a summer's month. Cynthia (Nancy Sandell's sister) and Thomas Perrington, of New York City, and Taylor, 2½, and Hallie, 9, are enjoying one last week in town.

Anna Sandell and her cousin are presently at camp in New Hampshire and Anna writes that she's "o.k. and camp is great."

Cynthia has been looking for (and we trust finding) outgrown clothes from the area's "best dressed kids" for her NYC resale shop, which does a booming business during the school year. Her husband is a pilot for United and commutes to and from Sandy Beach.

Mason Sandell is traveling in Minnesota where he's visiting family friends.

☐The Kasperowicz's have been out-of-town and just returned from Selingsgrove, Pennsylvania where they visited Tanna's parents, the Burns'. Their visit was timed for sister Jamie's graduation from nursing school.

They gambled, visited Hershey Park (where the chocolate makers tell you how healthy the stuff is), went fishing and visited Whispering Springs where they did Christmas shopping. In the same vein as Christmas, they stopped off at the Ice Mt. in New York on the way home, and in Mass. visited Sturbridge Village.

Carolyn Burns whipped son-in-law (Capt. R.) Ray at golf by 10 points in spite of the fact that he hit her in the back with a wild swing.

Truman is happy they hare home... ditto, yours truly,

Selectmen seek engineering review of marina project

By Jane Lane

A public hearing to review a proposal for a 91-boat marina in Bailey's Creek has been requested by selectmen to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The marina, which is proposed by William Figueirdo, would include the two 40 by ten-foot floats and 100 feet of walkway presently contained in the creek. An additional 540 feel of walkway and 45 feet of four by ten-foot finger floats are being requested by Figueirdo.

The Corps asked the town to comment on the proposal. Selectmen responded by requesting a public hearing be held in Cohasset. The board noted that the harbor study committee would be present to provide comments on the waterfront proposal.

During last week's harbor study committee meeting, chairman Charles Fink recalled the board's negative response to one phase of the proposal. The committee recently voted 4-2 against the plan, because of its subsequent displacement of 30 boats currently moored at the creek. A vote on the entire proposal can not be made until all facts are made public, although the committee considers it unfair to displace that many vessels, Fink stated.

"I could see a lot of benefits to this type of proposal, but there are monstrous problems to be solved," he said. "This type of thing could be done right — it has to be."

Committee member Robert Smith agreed such a project could be an asset to the harbor, although many problems would have to be solved before approval is granted. The conservation commission held a hearing on the proposal and subsequently issued several conditions, most notably, approval by the Army Corps of Engineers.

The chairman also expressed concern about the increased congestion of the off-shore parking facilities along Parker Avenue.

Harbormaster Harry Ritter questioned the harbor's ability to withstand the traffic of 91 more boats, particularly during the busier weekends. "On Saturday and Sunday afternoons, going in and out of Cohasset Harbor — how the hell are we going to handle that?" he asked. "If someone gets hurt on Cohasset Harbor, that's when I get concerned. We can't handle another 100 boats without widening both channels."

In committee action last week, proposed contracts for the redesign of Government Island Wharf were opened. A flat $17,000 fee will be paid to the company awarded the contract. The funds will be made available through a Coastal Zone Management grant, with $4250 in services provided by Cohasset Harbormaster Ritter.

This is the second round of bid openings for the committee. After the first session, CZM received complaints from two of the competing agencies that one bid was lower than the one awarded, and consideration was not given to minority participation in the companies. Five of the seven original bidders submitted a second proposal. A total of eight companies will be competing for the project which is scheduled to begin Oct. 30. The committee expects that selectmen will be unable to determine a contract award by that date. They foresee no problem in having the deadline extended by CZM for the wharf expansion.

The committee members will individually rank each company and will recommend two companies for the contract. After interviews with the two firms they will submit one name for final recommendation to selectmen. Selectmen will have the final authority to award the contract.

The companies vying for the contract are: Briggs Engineering of Norwell, Schoenfeld Associates, Inc. of Boston, Coffin and Richardson of Boston, Gale Engineering of Braintree, Urban Consulting Associates of Boston, Tibbetts Engineering Corp. of New Bedford, Loring Jacobs Co. of Norwell, and Anderson-Nichols and Co. Inc. of Boston.

During the meeting, committee members decided on seven factors which would be used as guidelines in recommending a contract award. Those factors would include the firm's integrity, compliance with public policy record of past performance in similar projects, financial and technical resources, knowledge of Cohasset Harbor and shore facilities, expertise in marine structural design, and expertise in environmental requirements and analysis.

Each company will be ranked on a scale of one to five (five is highest) on factors 3, 4, 6, 7, and 8. The first two factors will be ranked with a simple yes or no answer, the committee determined.

The committee is expected to vote on the contract recommendation at its scheduled September meeting.

No to five

We have listened to the excellent arguments put forth by our erudite Hull neighbors and we have reached our conclusion: the board of selectmen ought to remain a threesome.

We think former Hull Selectman Simmy Hartstone tells it "like it is" when he recalls that the expansion of Hull's board added two more windbags to the decision making process. And the sonic boom you may have heard the other day in the southern sky was not the Lawson Tower being launched into orbit, it was Scituate Selectman Bill McGowan notifying three of his colleagues where to launch their meetingsmanship.

We've also examined the arguments of the locals — disappointingly few though they have been. And we haven't seen anything that convinces us that the real intent of the proponents of expanding the board is not to dilute the influence of the incumbents — whom they regard as tweedle-dee, tweedle-dum and tweedle-dumb.

We of course don't use such impolite names and are wont to know the selectmen as 'Puddin'," "Fake," and "Shrinking Violet." We are told that in the distant past we have even criticized the present board.

But as we said three weeks ago, the proper way to dispose of disrelished officials is at annual town election and not by tinkering with a strong institution that in the course of time is bound to house both the strong and the weak.

We wonder how many selectmen's meetings proponents of enlarging the board have actually attended. Regardless of one's opinion of present company, seeing a townsman sitting at the foot of the T-shaped table presenting his grievances to three fellow townsmen, who know him and look him in the eye as they render a decision — is deeply inspiring. It is a form of government with its roots in English Common Law that most of the nations of this world need far more than they need assistance, oil, or anything else.

We have cited Scituate's troubles (see our Aug. 4 editorial) to point out that there is no magic in a board of selectmen of five. There's of course no magic in three either. But we think no case has been made for five, and that three is less windy, more efficient, and above all, more wieldable for the citizen who brings his grievance to the foot of the T-shaped table.

We recommend a "no" vote on Article 10.

Fire chief selection

Another important question before Town Meeting concerns the selection procedure for a new fire chief. Article One of the warrant proposes that the list of three finalists chosen by the fire chief selection committee for consideration by selectmen be expanded to include all eight semi-finalists.

The article (and the special town meeting itself) came about because many firefighters and many residents felt strongly that some excellent candidates, among them two current Cohasset firefighters, had been given short shrift by the selection committee.

The five-selectmen issue: for ...

Letters

To the Editor:

We are writing in response to the letter by former Hull selectman Hartstone, on the subject of a three-member vs. five-member Board of Selectmen. Specifically:

1. In 1974 Hull voters rejected Mr. Hartstone's imprecations and incantations and approved a change to a five-member board.

2. Indeed, for a great many voters, the mere specter of Mr. Hartstone sitting as one member of a three-member Board was sufficient reason to expand the Board to five members.

3. Ironically, Mr. Hartstone benefitted personally from the institution of a five-member Board when, in 1977, he was re-elected after finishing a distant second to Mr. Klayman, one of the new members of the expanded Board.

4. Mr. Hartstone chronicles events of the past with accuracy comparable to that utilized by the Revisionist Historians employed by the Communist regime in the People's Republic of China.

Item: "With a three-man board, the absenteeism was very slight," according to Mr. Hartstone. The Report of the Board of Selectmen for 1971 reveals otherwise: "The most significant vacancy occurred on the Board of Selectmen after the departure and delayed resignation of Martin A. Fallon. The latter's absence and the resultant controversy have raised questions concerning the effectiveness of a three-man board..." More specifically the absence of Mr. Fallon resulted in numerous "tie" votes (non-decisions) by the Board, and necessitated the calling of a special election on December 13, 1971 to fill the vacancy.

Item: "Yes, with a three-man board, we sometimes made fast decisions on normal matters but if proved to be incorrect, we then voted again," according to Mr. Hartstone. It is not our intention in this context to review all of the "fast decisions" of the past. Suffice it to say that part of the legacy left to us by the three-man board of Mr. Hartstone's era is an overabundance of liquor establishments, many of which continue to be a source of problems for the town of Hull. Unfortunately, a vote of the Board of Selectmen cannot undo the consequences of the "incorrect" "fast decisions" of the past.

5. We believe that the institution of a five-member Board of Selectmen in Hull has, on balance, satisfied the expectations of the voters who supported this change. Among the expectations were a more open form of government, including public discussion and decisions on issues affecting the public, increased participation by the public in the deliberations of the Board of Selectmen, a better representation of diverse opinions within the community, and the ability of the Board to continue functioning even when one or two members cannot be present for one reason or another. Whether these considerations apply to Cohasset is entirely up to the Cohasset voters to decide.

Reno Constantinides
Former member and chairman,
Board of Selectmen
Gerald Nirenberg
Chairman, Finance Committee
Hull

... And against expansion

To the Editor:

Tanna Kasperowicz's letter of August 18th contains statements not based on facts or the official records in Hull.

It is only a theory that five persons are better on a board than three. Any board, to be successful, must be composed of dedicated members who will perform the required duties and attend the meetings. Having a greater number of members is no guarantee that they will carry out this work and/or improve the quality of the structure.

A good example is the Hull Finance Committee. It was enlarged from nine to twelve members in order to have more than five or six attend. Most of their meetings have less than seven members attending out of twelve.

Tanna quotes the former Hull selectman Constantinides with the following:

1. that in the seven year period since the membership increased to five, seven new faces appeared on the board. He forgot to say that two selectmen resigned and four did not run for re-election. For comparison, from March of 1969 through December of 1971, three new faces joined the three man board. Wasn't this a new makeup of the board?

2. Claims 10 qualified candidates ran for the board in 1975 when the board expanded. He forgot to say that there were three openings on the board, and it was a wide open race. In 1973, six persons ran for one seat when it was a three man board. So what did it prove? That sometimes a lot of people get ambitious. Were all these ten people really qualified in knowledge of town government? Heck no.

NEWS ITEM — Cohasset: School committee adopts new drug & alcohol guide put together by parents, school personnel, town counsel and police chief. Includes all school levels. New drug rule: students can be searched

" . . . Hey, not bad . . . a B, three C's and and A in searching..."

3. Creative decisions with five members: He claims that the board was the cause of removing the MBTA charges? First of all, the charges were only reduced and this was due to the efforts of Sen. Allan McKinnon and Mary Jeanette Murray. We did not seek out private contractors to run a bus system in order to save money. The old time bus company went out of business. The MBTA ran the system for a short time and then quit since they claimed it was too costly. A private bus company then asked for the franchise which has been expanded to Quincy service.

4. Licensing procedures: They initiated some beauts for guidelines; raised the fees to become partners; then forced the homeowners to pay to park in front of their own homes. The next step is to charge the citizens for breathing. They also drove a lot of retail business out of town by soaking the motorists for parking. They also posted signs at the entrances of the town warning the tourists that Hull had restricted parking for outsiders. Smart?

5. Town leased land reevaluated: The policy of upgrading the leases was started by the three man board. Under the five man board's management, the gas station on George Washington Boulevard which some members considered so valuable, has been vacant for two years.

6. I cannot understand what he means but that is par for the course. Most of us never understood him when he spoke at town meetings and selectmen's meetings.

7. Priorities were set: That is a real laugh. Is that why many important decisions were delayed year after year? Three years ago the citizens voted to expand the town cemetery and is still in the process of getting plans? Why it took two years to start Phase two of the Kenberma Sewer Project costing over $700,000? Why it took one and half years to hire engineers to see about expanding the town dump? Why it takes months to fill vacancies, many of them caused by the political interference by the selectmen? Will Constantinides specify the names of these supposedly special interests and engineering firms who benefited by a three man board?

In your column "Around Town" there is an interesting item about Ray Kasperowicz and Constantinides sailing a boat and all they could do was bump into other boats and get stuck in the sandbar. This is not unusual for Constantinides since the ship, Town of Hull, was steered by him without a rudder for the past two years. The town has been stuck in the mud with his policies, indecisions and bright ideas.

If a five man board is so popular and successful here in Hull, why is it that more and more people are talking about having a town manager and going back to a three man board at the same time?

The DeBassio resignation letter

To the Selectmen:

Please be advised that subject to completing my second year as Chief of the Cohasset Police Department, I have reviewed and accessed the department's progress and achievements with some satisfaction. Notable improvements have been achieved in upgrading the equipment, systems, training and efficiency of the department and its appearance, performance and morale now serve as a source of pride to the entire community.

Notwithstanding final approval of the proposed "Police Manual" which includes Rules, Regulations, Policies and Procedures for the operation of the Police Department, the progress of my administration and its achievements are essentially consistent with my initial goals. I am also confident that the systems now in place, will prevail well into the future and serve the community in good stead.

Having fulfilled my primary obligations under the terms of my present contract with the Town of Cohasset, I have found it necessary to evaluate and plan for my own financial future. The exercise of that option has resulted in a career opportunity being offered in private industry. After careful consideration, I have decided to retire from public service and subject to your acceptance, tender my resignation as Chief of the Cohasset Police Department, effective Sept. 20, 1982.

I would like to offer my continued assistance to the Board of Selectmen in completing the Police Manual and will do everything possible to ensure an orderly transition. I consider the opportunity to have served in Cohasset as an appropriate culmination to a rewarding law enforcement career and thank you for your timely consideration.

Very Truly Yours,
John A. DeBassio, Chief
Cohasset Police Department

Fire chief selection ...

As we said on July 28, we ordinarily oppose altering a selection process in progress. But we think the new fire chief, whoever he is, will be in a stronger position if he does not have to confront a department and a town significant parts of which are disgruntled over the manner of his selection.

We therefore endorse Article One and urge a "yes" vote.

Selectmen briefs...

CIVIL DEFENSE

The Selectmen declared the position of civil defense director vacant after Acting Director Ubaldo DiBenedetto informed them that President Reagan's Emergency Evacuation Plan will require a civil defense director capable of devoting much more time to the past than he can give.

Chairman Henry Ainslie thanked DiBenedetto for "telling it like it is," and asked him if he would return to his former position of deputy director of civil defense when a new director is found. DiBenedetto said he would be glad to.

At one point during the discussion Ainslie asked DiBenedetto how he would be able to respond as civil defense director if a nuclear attack came while he was pursuing his professorial duties at Harvard. The ever helpful Executive Secretary Arthur Clark said, "He could use my mo-ped!"

GOVERNMENT ISLAND BIDS

Selectmen have received six bids for renovations at Government Island Pier, bids which they voted to turn over to the Harbor Study Committee for review. The apparent low bidder was Briggs Engineering of Norwell with a bid of $14,000.

Selectmen also received bids of $5,607 and $6,790 for a new sand spreader. These were turned over to Highway Surveyor Harold Litchfield for his recommendation.

SANDY BEACH GUESTS

Acting on behalf of the Sandy Beach Association, Police Chief John DeBassio last week wrote the selectmen asking them to terminate the issuance of guest parking permits at the beach.

He wrote that as a result of guest vehicles at the beach, residents and beach association members may be being denied access.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle noted that only 18 guest permits have been issued all summer, and that the season is nearly over anyway. Chairman Ainslie, in agreeing that no present action be taken, stated that the selectmen would review parking procedures at the beach over the winter.

FIGUEIREDO'S MOORING

William Figueiredo asked the selectmen to give him back his old mooring for his 40-foot commercial trawler. He said he had used the same spot for 30 years before Harbormaster Harry Ritter "took it away from me" four years ago.

Figueiredo said that in his present location he has to steer in and out among pleasure craft on his way to and fro. He stated that Harbormaster Ritter has placed other boats in his supposedly unsuitable former location. He added that Ritter "has a thing against me because I complained about him to the Army Corps of Engineers."

Ritter denied holding a grudge against Figueiredo and said Figueiredo was moved four years ago at his own request. Ritter also denied there are other boats moored at the former spot.

Figueiredo then stood up again and said, "There are only two fishermen older than me out there, and all I want is my old mooring back."

Chairman Ainslie told Figueiredo: "I wouldn't boast about that if I were you!" Ainslie then suggested that Selectman Laugelle, who is a boatsman himself, attempt to work out an arrangement agreeable to both the harbormaster and Figueiredo.

Figueiredo thanked Ainslie, saying, "I know I used to come in here half-cocked and sound off, but I'm too old for that now. All I asked for was a fair hearing, and I feel I've gotten one!"

MOTEL FENCE

John Muncey of South Main Street, accompanied by his tenant, asked selectmen what he could do about the 10-foot high fence being constructed at Kimball's Motel. He said the fence will obstruct the view of the harbor from his store and from his tenant's apartment, and will thus lower the value of his property.

Chairman Ainslie read a long opinion by Town Counsel Blake Thaxter, which said that in light of recent court decisions favorable to the Bells of Gammons Road, the owners of Kimball's apparently have the right to build a fence.

The courts have ruled, according to Thaxter that a fence does not require a special variance.

Ainslie then told Muncey: "As far as I'm concerned any ten-foot fence in Cohasset is inappropriate, but 'inappropriate' and 'illegal' are two different things. We have to follow Mr. Thaxter's advice, or we could be sued. I suggest you consult your own attorney."

Muncey said he would, and added that construction of the fence began on July 26, 3 weeks before a construction permit was issued.

Vacationing Mary Jane McArthur is expected to return in time for that meeting.

DeBassio served as chief for two years after succeeding Randolph Feola Sr.

DeBassio has a three-year contract with the town. Executive Secretary Arthur Clark said the contract could be broken by mutual agreement (between selectmen and DeBassio).

He dated his resignation effective Friday, Sept. 20. Soon after his termination as chief, DeBassio will become director of security for the Foxboro Company in Foxboro, which manufactures precision measuring instruments.

DeBassio stated his main reason for leaving was to improve his financial status. He said the recent dispute with selectmen over the use of a permanent intermittent police officer did figure into his decision to leave but it wasn't an overbearing factor. "It didn't discourage my staying," he said.

"Basically, the reason I'm leaving is financial. It's an opportunity...I wouldn't be leaving the police department unless I had not been provided with some degree of financial security and incentive," he said. DeBassio, who made $28,500 as chief, unsuccessfully tried to renegotiate his salary in February.

With the new Foxboro job there is no requirement that DeBassio move. He plans to continue living in Cohasset and said he doesn't anticipate a move in the near future.

Last week DeBassio met with selectmen in executive discussion session but said that other police business was discussed — not his resignation. He informed Clark of his intentions to resign last Thursday. The chief thanked selectmen Henry Ainslie, Jr. and Rocco Laugelle for holding a special meeting Monday morning. "I realize it's an awkward time for a meeting," he said.

Laugelle said, "I feel as though you don't stop progress...he (DeBassio) shouldn't be held back. I think he did a good job. I just hope the next chief does as well as he has."

Ainslie said, "I don't feel that it's good policy to stand in the way of anyone trying to better themselves or improve their financial status."

Police Association President Patrolman Robert Jackson said, "Naturally we're sorry to see him go. He's done a lot for the morale and he improved the efficiency of the department. We wish him the best of luck in the private sector."

Lt. Charles Stockbridge seems the logical replacement for DeBassio as acting chief since he has served in the absence of Feola on several occasions. When the Mariner phoned Stockbridge Tuesday, he said, "Heck, I'd have to take over, I'm the ranking officer next in line."

During the Blizzard of '78 Stockbridge took charge of the police department as acting chief for several months while Feola was hospitalized. And he often filled in as acting chief when Feola was sick or vacationing.

School Committee briefs...

DRUG AND ALCOHOL POLICY

School Supt. Eugene Crowell was to meet yesterday (Tuesday) with town counsel concerning the school committee's recently adopted Drug and Alcohol Policy Guide. Adoption of the guide is contingent upon town counsel's approval.

Crowell said town counsel wanted to ask a few questions about the procedural parts of the guide. He said town counsel had asked for more time to research the guide. Crowell didn't know if the request would be for a few extra days or an extra week.

The guide did not go out with school materials which were sent to students' homes this week. Crowell said that copies of the guide would probably be sent home to parents via the children instead of mailed. He estimated that mailing would cost 54 cents per copy but that a bulk mailing might be less expensive.

Nancy Clapp said she favored the mailing. Crowell said that local newspapers would alert parents prior to when the guides were sent home with students. School Committee Chairman Diana Kornet said that mailing the guide won't guarantee that parents would receive it, since it won't be certified mail.

Clapp also stated that the town counsel's office handled review of the guide poorly. She said the work of town counsel had been expensive and wasteful, spending double the money and double the time.

Crowell defended town counsel's work saying that they knew the guide was under constant revision and that they would have the final say.

In related news the school committee received a letter from Marie McCarthy of 45 Old Pasture Road. McCarthy wrote: "I totally support the committee in the adoption and the implementation of a strong, definitive Drug and Alcohol Policy.

"Regrettably, when reporters from local newspapers called me, they did not relay my strong support for the philosophy behind having a strong Drug and Alcohol policy; rather they emphasized my reservations about details of implementation.

"My concern focuses on the section of the policy regarding the search of a student's person. I am pleased to know that town counsel is reviewing the policy for its legal correctness and I trust this section will be deleted or amended to properly reflect the policy and implementation section."

Kindergarten enrollment

Roy Fitzsimmons questioned school officials at Monday's School Committee meeting regarding the kindergarten teacher-pupil ratio for the upcoming school year.

Osgood School Principal John Creamer said the last official count was 65 students. School Supt. Eugene Crowell said there would be three kindergarten classes and 1½ teachers. There would be no aides. Average class sizes would consist of 21 kindergarten students.

The joys of dining out ...

By Claire McDonough

"I have a real treat for us today," the Dragon said as he drove the family home from church. "Jay and Larry are working, so there's no point to making a big dinner. We'll eat out. No cooking, no mess, no cleanup."

"Wonderful," I agreed, thinking of the Alewife or the Garden of Eatin. I thought also of magazine pictures I have seen that show two smiling parents and several happy, well-mannered offspring enjoying gracious living at one of our finer restaurants. "It will be a valuable experience for the children."

Skipper looked up from his perusal of "Garfield." "Can Brendan come too?"

The Dragon was magnanimous. "Of course he can. Tanya, keep your pretty dress on so you'll look nice. We'll be going right back out."

We wound up at a semi-fast food place where you stand in line at the entrance. The kids each selected an entree from among the more expensive meals protrayed in living color inside the doorway.

Next came the salad bar. Tanya, who considers being forced to eat salad just slightly preferable to having one's liver devoured by eagles, insisted on piling her dish high with such unlikely-to-be-eaten items as hot peppers, raw onions and pickled beets.

Brendan made several loud comments regarding the probable composition of the salad dressings displayed at the end of the bar. When he had finished, I quietly returned my salad ingredients to their original locations. Suddenly I didn't want a salad.

Skipper applauded my decision. "It all looks gross," he assured me.

Breida and the Dragon (who was still smiling expansively) selected salads.

While we had been engrossed with salad ingredients, Tanya and Brendan had proceeded to the next section. Tanya had added pie, pudding, jello, cake, two glasses of Pepsi, one chocolate milk, four pats of butter and ten straws to her tray.

The Dragon watched her disappear around a corner. "If she leaves any of that stuff on her tray she's doomed." His smile was growing a trifle forced.

"Not to worry," Skipper reported, craning his neck. "She just dropped it all on the floor."

"What was that about no cleaning up?" I asked, grabbing a handfull of napkins.

The meal itself was fairly uneventful, if you discount a contest between two children (who shall remain nameless) to see who could devise the menu most likely to make everyone at the table ill. Let me just point out that both contestants displayed remarkable ingenuity and creativity. I would never have thought of fried rattlesnake intestines or lizzard casserole.

"How much did it cost?" I asked the Dragon as we were leaving. "$32.89, if you don't count the tip," he told me.

Gracious living never did come cheap.

Parent-School Organization open for business

The Cohasset Parent-School Organization is officially "open for business."

The newly-formed PSO met twice during the summer, and adopted the by-laws approved and recommended last spring by the former Communications Council Steering Committee. Dates for future meetings were set, and goals and objectives for 1982-83 were discussed.

PSO President Nancy Sandell announced that the first open meeting of the Organization will be on Thursday, Sept. 9, at 8 p.m. in Room #107 of the high school. "Richard Streeter, principal of the high school, has promised that this newly-renovated meeting room will be available for us. We are pleased with the administrative support the Organization has received, and we look forward to greeting parents, adminstrators and Board Members on the ninth," Sandell said.

On the agenda is the planning of a school system calendar for all three schools and their organizations. PSO Vice-President Edward Atkinson leads this endeavor. Also slated for discussion is the fall orientation designed to highlight the Cohasset PSO's first general membership meeting.

This program is organized by activities chairperson Sue McNamara. The calendar and the orientation meeting are both planned to increase parental awareness of the school system, and to increase parent participation in the school system's organization.

Both goals were given high priority by the PSO executive board during summer "brainstorming" sessions. Future Cohasset PSO meetings will be held on the second Thursday of each month at 8 p.m. in Room #107 at the high school.

Cohasset swimmers third at championship meet

The Cohasset Swim team had the depth it needed to continuously win league meets and finish first in the South Shore League standings. But the 16 year-old and under squad didn't have enough superstar performances to capture the League's Championship meet Saturday.

At the South Shore League's Division "A" meet, held at the Hanover Swim and Tennis Club, Cohasset placed third. Duxbury won the meet and Hanover finished second. The Boston College Seagles were fourth. Cohasset stood atop the league standings with a 5-1 record at the end of the regular season.

Once again Jane deLima was tops in the 12 and under diving competition. She placed first in diving at the championship meet and was undefeated for the season.

Diver Brian Bonnar managed a second place finish as he competed against the South Shore League's top diver. He and deLima were the two main reasons why Diving Coach Erin O'Brien was seen smiling at the meet. She was extremely pleased with their success.

FIRST PLACE TROPHY WINNERS

Niffy Jackson won two individual swimming events for Cohasset. Jonathan deLima, Eric Karcher and Stephen Camardo were first place finishers also.

THIRD PLACE TROPHY WINNERS

Taking home third place trophies for Cohasset were: Craig Carter, Danny Camardo, Bridget Cox, Sara Bishop, (2), Cindy Spooner, Jon deLima (2), Brooke Anderson (2), and Madeline McDonald.

FOURTH PLACE TROPHY WINNERS

Fourth place finishers in the league meet were: Collin Knox, Tammy Karcher, Caitlin Staunton (2), Jason Marsac (3), Sara Bishop, Ian Knox (4), Emily Tague, Sarah Trask (3), Greg Julian, Bridget Cox (3), Billy Baird, Madeline McDonald, Matt Buckley (3), Laura Pompeo (2), Mike Cunning, Jeanine Buckley, Adam Douglas (2), Joe Reidy, Kate Anderson (2), Kathy Wood, Cathleen Buckley and Diane Thayer.

Cohasset Coaches Doug Bell, Erin O'Brien and Brenda Birmann were all pleased with the season and final swim meet results. They said they will miss the 16 year-olds who will be ineligible to compete next summer.

The Cohasset Swimming and Diving team finished the regular season in first place with a 5-1 record. They lost only to the Boston College Seagles. The Cohasset squad wound up in third place at the end of the season championship meet.

Special town meeting begins Monday

Special town meeting is scheduled to begin Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Cohasset High School auditorium. There are 10 articles in the warrant.

A citizen's petition with more than 400 signatures was submitted to selectmen last month calling for the special town meeting.

The petitioner's article asks voters to amend previous town meeting action concerning selection of a fire chief. Residents and firefighters were unhappy when two local applicants were not chosen as one of the three fire chief finalists by the Fire Chief Search Committee.

Townspeople were particularly disappointed that Acting Chief Roger Lincoln was passed over. Both Lincoln and Captain James Gurry were included in the eight semi-finalists interviewed by the committee.

Article number one on the special town meeting warrant asks that all eight semi-finalist candidates be included on the list from which selectmen will choose a fire chief. The fire chief position became vacant in March when Charles Piepenbrink retired.

The last article for the evening, number 10, asks voters to expand the board of selectmen from three members to five. The article was inserted by selectmen who were given a citizen's petition requesting the articles.

Article 3 asks voters to appropriate $50,000 for partial high school auditorium renovations and brick repairs. Article 8 seeks approval of state law which would permit the towing away of illegally parked or standing vehicles in the town.

Other money appropriation articles are : $31,500 for the town's group health insurance; $1,500 police department custodial services; collective bargaining for Cohasset Police Association; $155 in unpaid fire department bills. Also: an article concerning payment of police matrons and another article to allow selectmen to seek bids for sale of both the North Cohasset Fire Station building and land.

□Cohasset High School girls' basketball players have kept their game up over the summer by playing in a summer league, which includes teams from Canton, Milton, Norwell, and Sacred Heart Academy. Beverly Mullaney, Alana O'Brien, Gia Barressi, Carla Lucas, Elizabeth Glasfeld and Tracy Fitzpatrick have held their own admirably with coach Bill Fallon, and sometimes, without coach Fallon.

They have played often with only five, and in a pinch, a girl from Scituate has filled in for them.

Nonetheless, they have earned a place in the league's playoff's...we anticipate they will win with determination like theirs! Good luck!

Right about now, potato salad and cold cuts are beginning to pall and one wonderful way to revive your appetite on a hot summer's day is to feast on iced soups. The work involved is minimal, as is the cost when you use up odds and ends of vegetables from your garden. Add a salad, some crusty rolls and fruit and you'll end up with a rather pleasing meal. When I tell you our cold soup recipes are from Sue Sack and Jan Fossella, they of "Serendipity" catering fame, you will be joining many a Mariner reader in enjoying a bowl of homemade soup. For want of space, I can't share all the recipes they have sent, so just for this week, here is Serendipity's way of preparing

CHILLED CUCUMBER SOUP

1½ c. chicken stock
3 c. chopped and peeled cucumbers
1½ c. light cream
1/3 c. chopped chives
1/3 c. chopped celery leaves
1/3 c. chopped parsley
3 T flour
3 T butter

Combine in processor or blender. Heat until slightly thick. Salt and pepper to taste. Chill and when ready to serve, top with grated lemon rind. Serves eight.

One of last month's columns suggested making "Imitation Boursin" and prompted Gail Whelan to write, "couldn't help but wonder why the gals make "imitation" boursin when, by adding a. . . . . .you can have the real thing!" So here is Gail's recipe for

BOURSIN. . . . THE REAL THING

8 oz. cream cheese, softened
carton of whipped butter
½ tsp. each of oregano, thyme, dill weed, basil and marjoram
2 lg. garlic cloves, mashed
Salt to taste
½ c. finely minced parsley
Fresh ground black pepper

Season butter and cheese with remaining ingredients. Chill. Makes 1½ c. As a gift, pack in small crocks. May be frozen.

Some time ago, when Sue Sack was dining in a New York restaurant, she ordered this cold soup which is of African derivation. Sue asked the chef for the recipe which is how we all come to share this chilled, mock

SENEGALESE SOUP

2 c. cream chicken stock
2 c. light cream
1 T curry
1 c. chicken meat, cooked and chopped
1 tsp. salt
Freshly ground black pepper to taste

Combine in pan. Combine curry with a little of the liquid and add to rest of ingredients. Stir constantly and stir in lemon juice after removing from heat. Cool, and garnish with toasted, sliced almonds. Serves eight.

It may be that company's coming, there's a birthday in the offing, or that you're a chocolate freak; any reason will do to try out Karen Smith's

FUDGE ICE CREAM CAKE

1 pkg. Duncan Hines chocolate cake
1 pint chocolate ice cream
3 eggs
1 c. water

Combine all ingredients in large bowl. Beat four or five minutes until smooth. Pour into greased and floured 10" tube pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 50 to 60 minutes, or until done.

Just a reminder that we're all waiting for you to share your family's favorite recipe. We all need suggestions, especially (dare I say this?) now that fall's coming on and appetites will be expanding with the arrival of cool weather. Whether simple or exotic, slimming or fattening, a new taste treat, or time-tested, we all need ideas and would welcome yours.

Five-member board approved by 21 votes

Selectmen expansionists triumph at TM

By Donna Cogliano

A special town meeting voted Monday to expand the Cohasset Board of Selectmen from three to five members.

The five-member board will be in place next spring after the annual town election.

In a secret ballot, the final vote was 217-196 in favor of the citizens' article to expand the board.

Former Cohasset Selectman Thomas Churchill spoke in favor of the expansion and received the warmest, loudest response of the crowd.

Expanding the board of selectmen would attract a wider range of personalities and opinion, making the selectmen a more effective policy making board, he said.

Getting the treatment...page 12

Future planning of land use and harbor utilization could be better addressed by a larger board, said Churchill.

Nearly 600 townspeople filled the High School auditorium for this special meeting — far more than the crowds for most town meetings — and completed action on all ten warrant articles. The meeting ended by 11:30 p.m.

Voters waited to enter in the check-in line which extended outside the school. Citizens continually filed into the auditorium from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. some 60 to 75 individuals stood at the rear and side aisles of the auditorium since seating was tight.

Special town meeting was scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. It actually got underway at 7:51 p.m. Moderator William Weeks opened the meeting saying there appeared to be well in excess of a quorum.

It could have been billed as a double feature with an early and late show. Admission was free. The early show being article one, seeking an expanded list of fire chief finalists, and the late show being the last article, number 10, called for expansion of the selectmen.

After Churchill spoke in favor of increasing the board of selectmen, Advisory Committee Chairman Jean Cotton reported that her board did not recommend approval. She said the committee saw the need for more discussion of the issue and that it should be a decision made at an annual town meeting rather than a special one.

Richard Leggat of Atlantic Avenue said the 5-man board draws on the strength of citizenry participation. Since there is some uneasiness of recent selectmen decisions, Leggat suggested that a five-man board could potentially relieve some problems and broaden the range of participation at the selectmen's office.

The Government Structure Study Committee was not in favor of expanding the board at this time, reported Member Donna McGee. She said the committee was willing to research the subject more thoroughly in the future.

Linda Henderson of Jerusalem Road questioned whether there would be five qualified people in town willing to devote the time to serve as selectmen.

Raymond Kasperowicz of South Main St. defended the special town meeting issue and said, "I am convinced that the combined body makes a very wise decision."

Five members is not a guarantee that you'll have the best form of government but you will have a few more people probing and asking questions, he said. "I think it's worth a try." Vote your conscious now, said Kasperowicz and concentrate on getting your candidates out later.

Agreement close on Cox estate sale

Tentative agreement reached with the Roy family

The John R. Roy Family of Jerusalem Road has reached a tentative agreement with executors of the Jessie Cox estate to buy the Cox mansion on Atlantic Avenue.

The home of the late Jessie Cox includes more than 50 rooms and lies on nearly seven acres overlooking Cohasset Harbor. The purchase price is reported to be about $1 million.

The Roy Family owns Kimball's Motel on Cohasset Harbor and the Airtek Corporation, an air pollution control company with headquarters at State Street South in Quincy.

Fire chief finalists go from three to eight

Two Cohasset firefighters are now in the running for the fire chief's job.

They will be included among eight finalists from which selectmen will choose a chief to succeed Charles Piepenbrink, who retired in March.

Selectmen were directed by special town meeting Monday to consider eight firefighters as candidates for fire chief rather than the three finalists chosen by the fire chief search committee.

Cohasset's Acting Chief Roger Lincoln and Captain James Gurry will now be among those to be considered by selectmen for chief.

A citizens' petition of 500 signatures calling for a special town meeting was presented to selectmen last month to rescind 1981 town meeting action regarding the selection process for a new fire chief.

In a secret ballot, the special town meeting Monday voted 326-247 to expand the list of fire chief finalists.

Firefighter Dick Conley moved that that article be approved, after cautioning voters that three finalists limited selectmen in choosing a chief. Suppose two candidates didn't want the job and Cohasset doesn't want the third candidate, he said.

Retired postmaster T. Gerard Keating of Blackhorse Lane favored Lincoln for the chief's position since he had risen through the ranks. Opportunities for advancement are very limited and may only come along once in the life of a firefighter, he said. It's not proper to deny local candidates to be considered in the final step when you have such an attractive candidate like Lincoln.

Keating said selectmen should not be married to the idea of choosing out-of-town chiefs just because Police Chief John DeBassio was such a great choice.

Mary Grassie of 60 Elm St. said, "I think that the men in the fire department are very good men...I think he (Lincoln) could make this town a very good

Sekar Inc. takes over Cohasset Ford

Sekar, Inc. of Marshfield and Pembroke is moving into the old Cohasset Motors building on Route 3A.

Howard Schramn and Sekar, Inc., an import-export distributor, are entering into a lease-purchase agreement, said Realtor Robert Mullin. "We're leasing the property subject to obtaining a variance from the town," he said. A variance is needed to begin full operation of the distributing business.

Inventory and trucks from the Pembroke warehouse began moving into the rear section of the building Friday. A Sekar manager predicted it would take a month to move in. The home base office in Marshfield will locate at the 3A building when and if a variance is approved.

The Sekar company distributes products throughout the country. General Manager George Muir said his company deals with four types of products: ski-wear, automotive, hardware, home and garden tools.

While the Mariner visited the Cohasset Motors building Monday, rakes were being packaged and ski jackets and pants were being sent off to stores up north.

Phones will be installed some time next week, said Muir.

The company employs between 20 to 25 people and is always looking for local help, said a manager.

The Sekar company currently has headquarters in Marshfield. Workers were moving materials from the Pembroke warehouse to the new Cohasset warehouse this week.

Cohasset's week...

Beach samples

Ongoing beach samples taken at the Town's public swimming areas continue to reveal low fecal counts. The Board of Health will continue to sample the beaches for as long as the weather permits swimming.

New rescue equipment

A new piece of emergency equipment was added to the Fire Department ambulance recently. It was purchased with funds provided by the Cohasset Firemen's Benefit Association.

The new piece of equipment is called a Kendrick Extrication Device (K.E.D.) used primarily for victims of automobile accidents with possible spinal and neck injuries. With certain variations, the K.E.D. "jacket" can also be used for injuries of the hip and pelvic areas.

One important feature of the K.E.D. "jacket" is that rescue time and removal of difficult extrication victims is greatly reduced. Especially convenient in confined areas or hard to get at positions found in sports cars, compact cars, etc.

In the future Fire Department would like to have two such "jackets" on the ambulance, whereas most accidents involve more than one victim. Also the emergency medical technicians as well as other members of the Fire Department hope to someday acquire a survival suit, which allows water rescues during even the most severe of weather conditions with no danger or discomfort to the rescuer.

Chief dumps fireworks

On Friday morning Police Chief John DeBassio and assistant harbormaster Clifford Dixon dumped three bags of fireworks in the ocean about a mile off Cohasset's seashore.

DeBassio said police had accumulated and seized fireworks during the past months particularly on the July Fourth weekend. He filled three burlap bags with skyrockets, firecrackers and quarter-pounders.

The fireworks were taking up considerable space in DeBassio's office closet and he wanted to dispose of them because they were potentially dangerous.

DeBassio had contacted the Fire Marshall's office in Boston several times asking that someone pick up the fireworks. Apparently they didn't have the time or staff to get down to Cohasset, he said.

The assistant harbormaster was brought along to make the dumping official. DeBassio said Dixon picked a spot to dispose of the fireworks where lobstermen and fishermen would be least affected.

The three burlap bags were weighted down and dropped in the deep waters to guarantee that the fireworks would not be recirculated. "It's the best guarantee that we're not going to get them back in circulation...in the absence of the Fire Marshall, it seemed the alternative," said DeBassio.

Early deadline

Next week's holiday, Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 6 means an early dearline for advertising and news copy to be in next week's issue of the Mariner.

All copy should be at the Mariner office, 58 Main St. (P.O. Box 682) by Friday, that's the third, at 2 p.m.

That done, as one might infer, staff members will be freer to devil the eggs and eat them in conjunction with other members of the 'labor day' force.

Health meeting change

The board of health's August 23 meeting was cancelled. The next meeting of the board will be Monday, Sept. 13 at 7:30 p.m.

Emergency school meeting

The school committee held an emergency meeting Monday 45 minutes before the start of special town meeting. The committee met to discuss the advisory committee's recommendation that only $20,000 in building maintenance be requested.

The committee discussed five possible articles and chose the $50,000 request which was amended to eventually $20,000 on the floor of town meeting and accepted.

Crowell posted the meeting Saturday morning at town hall, the library and post office. However, the notice was not posted 48 hours prior to the meeting and that's why an emergency meeting was announced on Monday.

Sunday is excluded from the 48 hour count and that is why the committee called for an emergency meeting Monday. Crowell said he finished posting the emergency meeting by 2 p.m. Monday.

Public hearing

The Board of Health will hold a public hearing on the proposed new rules and regulations for the Cedar St. Landfill, Sept. 13. The proposed changes will be discussed, and comments are welcome.

In addition, Board Members will discuss revisions in the fees currently charged for the review of subsurface and/or miscellaneous disposal.

B & E at Town Hall

Though there were no forced signs of entry to the building police are investigating the break in and larceny of $64 from the treasurer/collector's office upstairs in town hall which happened over the weekend.

Town Hall employees learned of the break and entry early Monday morning when they returned to work. The treasurer's door had been kicked in and carpenters repaired it Monday afternoon. The large safe was banged up a little, possibly with a hammer which was found outside in the grass. The safe is dented in one corner but is still usuable, reported Town Treasurer Gordon Flint.

The intruder took $64 from the cash boxes. "We deposit daily so there wasn't much (cash) on hand," said Flint. On Friday money from the cash box was deposited at noon.

Police fingerprinted and took pictures of the break and entry scene. Files in the back room, across from the town accountant's office, were also tampered with.

Selectmen expansionists triumph...

Former School Committee Chairman Pat Walsh reminded townspeople that the decision to reduce the school board from six members to five was made at a special town meeting.

She said she recently attended at selectmen's meeting where two agenda items were set aside because one selectman was away on vacation. She said one item was only a routine appointment but could not be made because one selectman was related by marriage. After you have lived in a town this size for some years, said Walsh, you are bound to be related to others in town.

One man said that 273 Massachusetts communities has three-man boards while 61 towns had five-man boards.

OTHER ACTION

In other town meeting action, voters unamimously approved an appropriation of $31,500 for the town's group health insurance, and $1,500 for custodial services in the police department. Also approved were articles requiring that police matrons be put under the same classification as permanent intermittent patrolmen.

Another article directed payment of $155 in unpaid fire department bills for firefighters injured in the line of duty.

Two town meeting articles were indefinitely postponed: one, calling for a collective bargaining agreement between police and the town remains unsettled; and another, Article 8 to accept state towing law for the town. Police Sergeant Richard Barrow alerted selectmen to the fact that this law was already accepted by a 1973 town meeting.

The school committee's request for $50,000 was reduced to $20,000 and approved by a close vote. The $20,000 is earmarked for roofing repairs over the High School auditorium.

Following a presentation made by advisory board members, the town meeting voted against giving selectmen authorization to sell both the North Cohasset Fire station and land.

Advisory Committee Member Jim Lagrotteria suggested the building be demolished and used as a place where the elderly could sit and chit-chat.

He also pointed to problems with installing an adequate septic holding tank and maintaining an easement for entrance to Straits Pond. Health Board Chairman Barbara Kern told the meeting that the holding tank situation had not been discussed by the board.

All told, the special town meeting approved seven warrant articles, denied one, and voted to indefinitely postpone two. All action was completed within 3½ hours.

place to live."

Pat Walsh of North Main St. wanted to know why selectmen decided to limit themselves to three candidates in the warrant article. Selectman Chairman Henry Ainslie responded that, "We thought three was a reasonable figure."

The advisory committee and selectmen recommended against expansion of the Chief's list.

After the vote was announced, a resolution congratulating and thanking the fire search committee for their work was accepted by the meeting.

Candidates respond to Common Cause questionnaire

Common Cause of Massachusetts this week released the responses to its 1982 questionnaire sent to all state legislative candidates.

Selecting 17 issues that revolve around responsive and accountable government, the non-partisan citizen lobbying organization included two questions on campaign finance reform and three questions on legislative rules reform.

The questions here were answered by three candidates for the Massachusetts Senate from the Plymouth-Norfolk District: incumbent Democrat Allan McKinnon and Republican Thomas Barry and Vincent Mina.

ELECTORAL REFORM

1. Public Financing of Campaigns

A 1975 law provides for limited public financing of campaigns for the offices of Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Attorney General, Secretary of State, Auditor and Treasurer.

A. Public financing of campaigns is funded by those taxpayers who agree to add one dollar to their state tax liability for this purpose — the so-called "dollar add-on" system. This system of financing has proved less than successful than the one employed by the Federal government in which taxpayers can indicate that one dollar from their total tax payment should be used for this purpose without increasing the size of their tax liability — the "dollar check-off system."

Do you support legislation to change the system of public financing in Massachusetts from "dollar add-on" to "dollar check-off?" Yes: Barry, McKinnon, Mina.

B. The law does not apply to campaigns for state legislature.

Do you support legislation to apply the state's public financing law to campaigns for state legislature? Yes: Barry, McKinnon; No: Mina.

2. Campaign Contributions.

Current campaign contribution laws allow unrestricted contributions to candidates by political committees but limit individual contributions to $1,000.

What level of limits on political committee contributions will you support?

Constitutional Office Candidates (Check One): Unlimited, $5,000; $2,500; $1,000. Mina checked $5,000; Barry and McKinnon checked $1,000.

Legislative Candidates (Check One): Unlimited; $5,000; $2,500; $1,000. Mina checked $2,500; Barry and McKinnon checked $1,000.

3. Filing Deadlines

Two 1979 changes in election laws require individuals to make decisions on candidacy so far in advance of the election that they appear to reduce the number of candidates and the competition for political offices.

A. One such law changed the filing deadlines for candidates from June to April.

Do you support legislation restoring the filing deadlines to June? All three answered Yes.

B. The other law prohibits candidates from switching politcal registration after 90 days prior to the filing deadline.

Do you support legislation easing the restrictions for candidates to change their registration? Yes, Barry; No. McKinnon and Mina.

WARD COMMISSION RECOMMENDATIONS

4. Inspector General

The current law allows the Inspector General to subpoena witnesses as well as records but exempts all legislative documents.

Do you support legislation to allow the Inspector General to subpoena legislative documents? All three answered Yes.

5. Construction Reform Law

The Construction Reform Law (Ch. 579) resulting from Ward Commission recommendations sets out procedures to be followed in construction, acquisition, operation, and disposal of state lands and buildings.

Will you insist that all legislation dealing with these matters conform to the requirements of this law? All three answered Yes.

6. Public Bidding

The Ward Commission proposed the elimination of the current requirement of filed sub-bidding. This requirement significantly restricts the ability of a general contractor to choose his/her own subcontractors for large construction work.

Do you support legislation to eliminate the system of filed sub-bidding? All three answered Yes.

JUDICIAL NOMINATING COMMITTEE

7. Do you support legislation to eliminate political activity on behalf of gubernatorial candidates by members of the governor's Judicial Nominating Committee? All three answered Yes.

LEGISLATIVE PROCESS

8. Personnel Scheduling

Current law links appropriations for each state agency with detailed schedules of positions and salaries for employees of that agency which must be approved by both Ways and Means Committees. This practice has the effect of drastically restricting the discretion of executive officers in the area of personnel management and injecting the legislature into the ongoing administration of state agencies.

Do you support legislative changes to eliminate the practice of scheduling salaries and positions for state agencies by the legislature? Yes: McKinnon and Mina; No: Barry.

9. Legislative Approval of Executive Agency Rules and Regulations

The legislature has shown an increased interest in exercising oversight of executive branch agencies. There have been several proposals recently that would give the legislature veto power over executive agency rules and regulations.

Do you support legislation that would give the legislature the power to review, and approve or veto, all executive agency rules and regulations? Yes: McKinnon; No. Barry and Mina.

RULES REFORM

10. More Democratic Legislative Rules

The Massachusetts Legislature operates under a system whereby committee chairpersons and all members of committees are appointed by the Speaker of the House and Senate President. Proposed rules reform would provide the full membership a greater voice in the selection of committee chairpersons.

Do you support a change in rules to provide for the election of committee chairpersons by a caucus of the majority party? All three answered Yes.

11. Recorded Committee Votes

There is frequently no formal record of legislative committee action on bills. Committee hearings are often sparsely attended by committee members and the fate of bills is often determined by less than a majority of committee members.

Do you support rules to provide that all bills reported out of legislative committee include a recorded roll call of each vote on the bill? All three answered Yes.

12. Third Reading of Bills

The Committee on Bills in Third Reading is one of the few legislative committees without any deadline for reporting bills out. As a result, many bills, which have already received legislative approval, die in this committee.

Do you support a rule to establish a requirement for the Committee on Third Reading to report out all bills? All three answered Yes.

LEGISLATIVE COMPENSATION

13. Full-Time/Part-Time Legislature

The current legislation increasing legislative salaries to $30,000 appears to be based on the concept that the job of Representative and Senator is full-time, not part-time.

Do you believe that the position for which you are campaigning is a full-time position? Yes: McKinnon and Mina; No: Barry.

14. Outside Earned Income

There are limits on the amount of outside earned income which a U.S. Senator or Representative can earn over his/her Federal salary.

What level of limits on outside earned income for the legislature would you support? Unlimited; $15,000; $10,000; $5,000; Other. Barry answered Unlimited; McKinnon answered $10,000; Mina answered $5,000.

15. Pay Differential

The current legislation to increase public salaries includes a substantial differential in the pay rates between the top legislative leadership positions ($60,000-$75,000) and the rank and file ($30,000).

Do you support this level of differential? Yes: McKinnon; No: Barry and Mina.

ACCOUNTABLE GOVERNMENT

16. County Governments

The legislature has taken steps in recent years to transfer vital services from county to state jurisdiction, thereby reducing the functions of county government.

Do you support legislation to reduce further the functions of county government? Yes: McKinnon; No: Barry and Mina.

17. Municipal Financial Disclosure

Current state law requires financial disclosure only by certain elected and appointed officials.

Would you support the enactment of legislation requiring limited financial disclosure by certain municipal officials? All three answered Yes.

Whether it enjoys a place on the porch or the informal setting of a den, a rocking chair is an invitation to lulled comfort. When an adult sits down in a rocker, you can be sure that a youngster will quickly take a seat in his lap to enjoy the rhythmic motion. Research has shown that the rocking chair may be an American invention. Popularized during the late 18th century, the rocker's predecessor may be found in the Southern "joggling board." It consisted of wooden slats affixed to sawhorses on each end. A mother would gently bounce on it with her child until the baby was quieted.

You don't have to have a colonial decor to accommodate your rocker. Today they come in all styles, shapes and colors. No matter what decor you prefer, BOUND BROOK PAINT & HARDWARE has the paint, sundries, wallpaper, window treatments and hardware for you. When you need us or if you are just in the browsing stage, stop by and see us here in N. Scituate at 763 Country Way or call 545-3624. Our hours are Mon-Wed, 8-6, Thurs & Fri 8-8:30, Sat 7-5 and we're the people you can talk to. We also wish you all a happy and safe Labor Day weekend and ask that you drive carefully.

Decorating Tip: A rocking chair is another sign of tranquility in a home.

around town

Patty Tolini and Barbara Lagrotteria, both age 9½, and "friends" on the Osgood playground.

Apologies for the omission.

☐Mariner photos are available at the Cohasset Community Center during regular office hours and the 50 cents they cost goes to the Center.

It usually takes one to two weeks after they appear in the paper to make the trip to Cohasset.

There are probably a year's worth of pictures there now — and many never made the paper, so be sure to drop in and have a look.

☐Bill Ripley is in Norwood Hospital recovering from a nasty accident. Am sure cards would be appreciated. A couple of weeks ago we helped to celebrate Bill's 80th birthday party at the Log 'n Line, if you remember. Your lunch group misses you, Bill — hurry back to us soon.

☐Got home from Pa. and had lots of Around Town mail awaiting me from Larry Fone — who reported that Maureen Harris of North Conway, New Hampshire, stopped in to Cookworks for a visit. She reads the Mariner in New Hampshire and enjoys keeping up with her friends through Around Town. Such good taste.

☐Larry Fone would like to discover a place where he can purchase a fat, plump tomato (garden grown) and some fresh corn. "These New England staples are almost unavailable!" Naturally, I saw lots of corn in Pa., and some corn stands in New York. But when we hit New England there seemed to be nothing. Think all the corn got rained out this year.

☐If you want delicious recipe for a New Hampshire Blueberry Cobbler call 383-1906.

☐On Oct. 15 somethng very nice is going to happen in the village. Billed as "Two Restaurants in one," it is still a secret. But it will taste good. And it may even have chocolate croissants, who knows? It starts with H.

☐The Old Pasture Road gang held its second dinner of the year at Joe Burbank's house last weekend — there was a traditional all-day yard sale, and a gourmet dinner cooked by Joe. Joe is an art teacher at Cohasset High. His wife Gigi teaches English.

☐Eric and Evelyn Pearson held a party for Milton Samuels at their home recently. Milton is the law enforcement for the Virgin Islands National Park — he apparently really has his hands full when Eric and Evelyn, Mr. and Mrs. Domenic Baccari, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Ahern, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Pearson Jr., Burton Whipple of Hingham, Benjamin Merritt of Billerica and Mrs. Joanne Cogill are all down there.

☐Sorry we missed it — Doris and Jack Golden had a very different and beautiful luncheon at their home on the 22nd. Over 150 people attended, many more were invited who couldn't make it. Doris said she is still receiving notes from those in attendance who found the Mass to be very uplifting.

☐The dump really is the very best place to go to meet people. Special thanks to Skinny here for the six-pack of coke last weekend when Dickie and I were doing our town affairs thing.

☐Can you really be hypnotized to stop doing something? After five days Marilyn Adams says yes. She and a friend recently attended a stop smoking clinic at Freeport Hall in Boston, and so far it's worked.

Marilyn said, "They never say you'll never smoke again. But they do tell you the first cigarette is a big trap." Marilyn said the sessions are relaxing — "I didn't want to open my eyes." In between sessions she rubs her finger and thumb together if she finds she's wanting a cigarette and listens to tapes which tell about the poison in cigarettes.

Wonder if our gal Mary Jeanette Murray has heard about this?

☐Millie Mitman has been having a dickens of a time trying to get the Mariner. "I'm not getting the Mirror, either," she said. Recently she sent in an orange card but then nothing happened. According to the Mariner staff, subscription renewal cards are not orange. Let us know what happens this week, Millie!

☐Marie and Richard Caristi recently celebrated their 15th Wedding Anniverary with friends on the Cape.

☐Marie is a co-president of the League of Women Voters this year. She shares the co-position with Chartis Langmaid. They are looking for new members (it's a great way for newcomers to meet other people and learn about the town) and will be doing the following studies this year: National Security, three-year Health Care (continuing), and their local study will be town government structure. And that's certainly been a newsy topic recently.

☐Laura Atherton is membership chairman for the League.

☐This fall the League will be sponsoring an educational forum to encourage people to run for local offices.

☐BARTOW & THE BAT — sounds like a children's story. But it's not. It's a true story and Steve Bartow saved the day. Chris discovered the bat flying around the third floor — his parents as usual didn't acknowledge his cries until it flew to the second floor and got cornered in the bathroom — where Steve went after it with a big pole and a net. "Bats have sonar," Steve said, explaining why it was difficult to capture him.

Finally Steve manuevered the bat into the bureau drawer where the bat jumped around for awhile inside Christopher's pajamas.

The bat got away. The Bartows are relieved. And Christopher will NEVER wear "those" pajamas EVER AGAIN.

☐Navy Photographer's Mate 3rd Class Robert Sullivan, son of Jack Sullivan of 708 Jerusalem Road and Marie Sullivan of Abington, has reported for duty with Atlantic Fleet Audio-Visual Command, Naval Air Station, Norfolk, Va.

☐The crabapple tree at the Police Station is ripe for picking — and almost not a blemish or bruise to be seen. So I picked some last week. Hope it's legal. There are probably enough crabapples on that tree to make one million jars of jelly! Brian Noonan called me for my recipe, recently. I just used the recipe in the Fanny Farmer Cookbook. Having never made jelly before I have no idea how long it takes to set or if I prepared it correctly. Cohasset jelly-makers say you must store jelly in a cool place for at least a month before it has any substance. I will label my jelly POLICE JELLY.

On town meeting

Monday's special town meeting was a great success in that it was well-attended, well-run by Moderator Bill Weeks, and speakers on all sides of the questions at hand were both briefly enlightening and enlighteningly brief.

All outcomes aside, any time 573 voters care enough to stand in line to attend a town meeting on the last Monday in August, democracy is working in Cohasset.

A couple of points on the two major issues of the evening. First, on expanding the number of finalists for fire chief (which passed), we agree with Gerard Keating's remark that the town should not be "married to the idea" of selecting out-of-town chiefs just because Police Chief John DeBassio, who came from the Brockton Police Department, was a very good appointment.

Indeed he was, but it should be remembered that he will not be with us much longer. It is possible, we think, that a "native" might have weathered the storms DeBassio has confronted, and might have continued to serve the town in the coming years. DeBassio, though his performance has been superior, didn't stick around very long.

We favor hiring the best person for any job at all times, but it seems to us that the "local" factor should count for something in a man's favor because there is a little less likelihood of an untimely resignation and the inevitable disruption that follows.

On the expansion of the board of selectmen to five, which also passed, we have just one note of caution. We opposed it not because we thought it was a terrible idea but because it was a little like feeding bisquits to the pig 'cause the dog won't stop barking.

The fancy word for what we mean is "disingenuous," and we've seen it happen in government many times before. Public dissatisfaction exists for good cause. Somebody comes along with a "tinkering" idea to reform some aspect of the government, which they believe will of itself eliminate the cause of the dissatisfaction.

Suddenly all difficulties become associated with the "old system," and the only solution becomes the adoption of the "tinkering" reform. And it can't wait another day, it must be done now, or all the glorious benefits that will accrue from the "tinkering" will be lost forever!

This is exactly the sort of thinking that lowered the drinking age to 18 in Massachusetts in the early seventies — with tragic results. And we could cite many "reforms" of the last 20 years that have come to be an encumbrance upon us.

We of course don't think a five-man board will be "tragic." Our word of caution is this: Even if it works as well as we hope it will, it is no panacea. It is no substitute, nor will it ever be, for the ongoing involvement of the citizens of the town in the business of the town — and that is hard work.

In short, if anyone thinks that Monday's excellent town meeting puts to bed the contentious difficulties that brought about the movement to expand the board...we'll be in worse trouble than we were before.

Finally a word about the present selectmen. We may have given the impression in discussing the expansion issue that we think the present board

School shopping is no spree

By Claire McDonough

School shopping was wonderful this year. The Dragon did it.

We have been married for 28 years, and for 22 of them I have dragged assorted offspring through aisles of clothing looking for apparel that meet three criteria.

They must fit (without the aid of a shoe horn).

They must not gross out the offspring's classmates.

They must not require an arrangement with the Godfather Savings and Loan Association.

Very few items meet all three criteria at the same time, and what one saves on sale items is often more than made up in the purchase of headache remedies.

The kids learned early on. "Don't," the older ones would caution their less experienced siblings, "tell Daddy how much the jeans cost."

This year he had to worry about telling me. I loved it.

Thursday evening I noticed that he was pale, his hands were shaking, and he kept looking nervously over his shoulder.

"Took the kids school shopping, huh?" I ccmmented.

"It's a jungle out there," he groaned, adding three spoonfulls of sugar to his Tab. "The price of outfitting the kids for school is roughly the same as the national debt, and none of the stores carry the brand names the kids want in the sizes that fit them."

"Did you have enough money with you?" I asked.

"I'm trying to tell you. There isn't enough money. And anyway a sweet little old lady pushed me into the fountain and everything in my wallet got wet. She was trying to beat me to some 'Sweats by ebi' that were marked down."

"Who got them?"

"Look," he told me, "it's a dog eat dog world out there. Little old ladies have to learn to look out for themselves."

"Poor baby," I stroked his brow. "I shouldn't have asked you to do it. Men aren't tough enough to cope with school shopping. I should have broken you in on something easy. Like Christmas."

"Never mind," he gave me a martyred look. "It was worth it. I got everything done in one day, and everybody's happy. Now I can relax. I may," he mused, "go to bed for the rest of my life."

I noticed Breida and Skipper frantically motioning behind his back, and I joined them in the hallway.

"How do we break it to Daddy?" Breida asked nervously. "We don't have anything to wear to school."

I gasped, and Skipper nodded. "When we got home we found out we have all the wrong bags. They must have gotten mixed up with someone else's when we stopped at Friendly's."

"Let's not panic yet," I said, panicking. "Maybe there's something here you can wear."

Skipper eyed me glumly. "Maybe Breida doesn't mind going to school in that funny-looking underwear," he said, "but I'll be darned if I'm going to wear tee shirts that say 'Up the Gray Panthers.' "

"I guess we'll have to tell him," I sighed. "Only a fool messes with a little old lady."

In praise of Kenny Thayer, recycler

Letters

To the Editor:

As a resident of Cohasset, I want to write you about a remarkable individual, Kenny Thayer, who is in charge of the Recycling Center at the Town dump.

He is one of those rare individuals who loves his job, greets everyone with a smile and courteously helps with carrying newspapers and glass. The town is lucky indeed to have a dedicated worker such as Kenny, one who makes all of us feel better after a trip to the Recycling Center.

Sincerely and with gratitude,
Helen Hooper

School committee briefs...

DRIVER EDUCATION APPROVED

The school committee voted unanimously last week to contract with the Scituate Auto Driving School for the High School's driver education program.

School Supt. Eugene Crowell reported that the costs for the course did not increase from last year. The total cost for each student will be $95.

CASH ADVANCE GRANTED

A cash advance of $500 was approved by the committee for Guidance Director John Leary. He will attend a conference in Minneapolis for the National Association of College Admission Counselling.

School comittee Member John Langmaid III said the cash advance only partially covers the trip's expenses. He said Leary would be paying some of the costs also.

REDUCED LUNCH PRICE

Last week the committee authorized continuation of the school system's reduced lunch program. School Business manager John Raftery said he would announce qualifications for program participants this week.

TEACHING ASSIGNMENTS

High School history teacher Dorothy Wondolowski will teach an extra course this fall. She was assigned to teach an advanced placement history class.

This year 30 students requested the course. If the Appeals Board says no to Figueiredo trailer

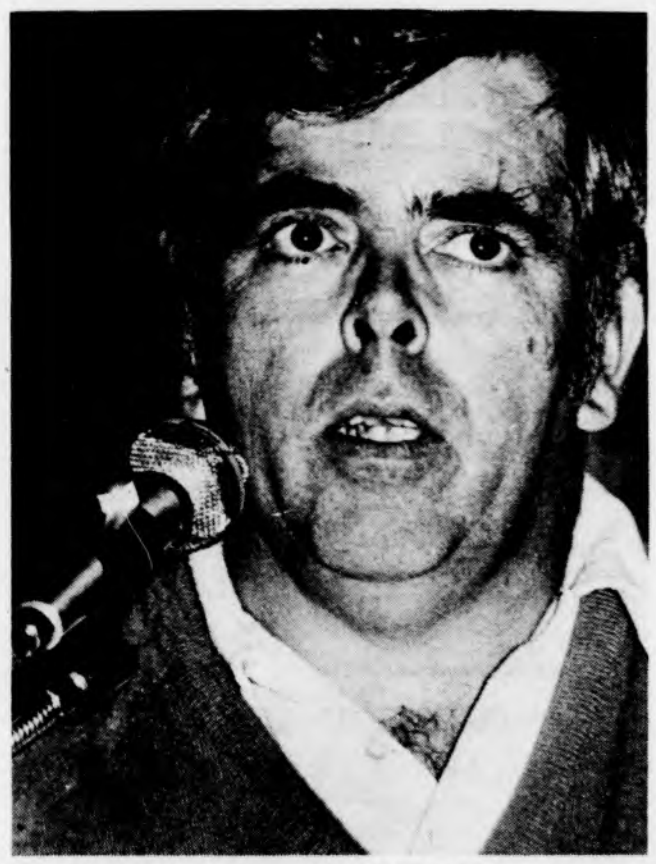
Fisherman William Figueiredo won't be allowed to keep and live in a house trailer at his 37 Parker Ave. boatyard property for more than a month this year.

He wanted to provide security for his business during six months of the year and guard against thefts and vandalism. The zoning board of appeals unanimously denied the trailer variance last Thursday.



A public hearing was held May 25 by the board and was continued several times. Figueiredo maintains that the board did not act within the allotted constraint time. He has instructed his attorney, Joseph Killian to look into the matter.

The board's decision states they agreed with Figueiredo that his presence on the property would be beneficial to his business. However, the board cited a by-law which requires special circumstances relating to the land itself and not to business considerations.

The decision stated, "The board is of the opinion that the applicant has failed to show any circumstances relating to soil conditions, shape or topography of the land which necessitates the granting of the requested variance. Therefore, we are unable to grant the relief requested by the applicant.

"Cohasset Harbor is one of Cohasset's aesthetic assets. Views from the harbor are part of the beauty of the harbor...the by-laws as a judgment by the town that trailers are not conducive to the purposes for which the by-law was adopted. Those purposes include the conservation of land value and protection of the "outstanding characteristics and natural beauty of the town." The board finds that the prolonged annual use of a trailer on the shore of the harbor would be detrimental to the outstanding characteristics of Cohasset Harbor."

Though the variance was denied Figueiredo will be allowed temporary use of the trailer on his property within by-law limits. He may use the trailer a total of 30 days during any 12-month period.

Dukakis coordinators

Priscilla Tebbets and Donna McGee have been named local coordinators for the Mike Dukakis campaign in Cohasset.

Residents who are interested in the Dukakis campaign or who would like to do some volunteer work for the campaign are asked to call Mrs. Tebbets at 383-1662 or Mrs. McGee at 383-9114.

class were not divided into two sections then seven students would not be permitted to take the course.

The committee voted unanimously, 5-0, to increase Wondolowski's work load by one teaching period at $3,595.

In other action the committee told the school superintendent to hire a permanent 3/5 substitute typing teacher. This year three periods of typing will be offered.

RESIGNATION AND APPOINTMENTS

Doreen Flynn was appointed a half-time aide at the Deer Hill School.

The committee accepted the resignation of Mary Goff as an activity aide at the Osgood School.

Diane Pereira was appointed an activity aide by the school committee last week. She will be assigned to the Osgood School and replaces Goff.

SPECIAL NEEDS TRANSPORTATION

The school committee decided last week to contract with the School Transportation Inc. of Quincy for special needs transportation for the 1982-83 school year.

School Business Manager John Raftery said there were four bidders but the Quincy company provided the best combination of services. The Cohasset School system contracted with the Quincy company last year. This year's rate is $85 per day for service.

MILK AND DESSERTS

The school committee voted last week to purchase milk from Henrikson's Dairy for the upcoming school year. Henrikson's Dairy of Abington was the low bidder.

Vandals to pay repair cost of damage at CHS

Two male juveniles agreed to pay the costs of window damage they did this past weekend at the west wing of the High School.

When a neighbor heard glass breaking he ran and chased the two youths while his wife called police for assistance. Police and the gentleman apprehended the two youths.

School Supt. Eugene Crowell said, "They have admitted to the crime...I think it's important that the culprits were apprehended...so that the taxpayer doesn't have to stand this. We were fortunate, thanks to the police and a neighbor." He estimated window damage at $500.

That is not the case. We have disagreed with them outspokenly on certain issues. But we think everyone would do well to contemplate the number of hours selectmen spend on town business in the course of a year. We wonder how many hours a man like Henry Ainslie has spent on Cohasset's welfare in the course of four terms.

The number, whatever it is, is extraordinary. So when the Mariner criticizes the selectmen we remain grateful for the service they render. And we hope that the newcomers who join the board next year — whoever they turn out to be — are prepared for a thankless grind.

A tour of the Boston galleries

If you've ever wanted to visit galleries and museums in the Boston area but didn't have anyone to go with, or if you've ever wanted to try your hand at painting a watercolor and didn't know where to start — the South Shore Art Center has the answer to both those dilemas with Tours of Galleries and Museums and Watercolor Week.

Starting Thursday, Sept. 23, Louise Kalish will lead once-a-month half-day tours to Boston Galleries and Museums. The tours will take place the third Thursday of each month Sept. through June (no December tour) with the group meeting at 10 a.m. at the location to be visited; car-pools can be arranged through the Art Center.

The emphasis will be on Contemporary art and viewing outstanding new exhibits in the area. Either Kalish or a lecturer from the institution will speak on the exhibit. Visits to artists' studios are often part of the Tour and museums sure to be included will be the Brockton Museum, Institue of Contemporary Art and new exhibits at the Museum of Fine Arts as well as the Rose Museum.

Ms. Kalish is an experienced tour guide and trained as a docent at the Rose Museum as well as being a professional artist and teacher.

Watercolor Week with Virginia Avery is a good opportunity for painters and would-be painters to capture the early Fall landscape during the week of Sept. 20-24.

The group will meet daily from 9:30 to 12:30 at an outdoor location, weather permitting. Beginners will learn basic skills while intermediate and advanced painters can refine their technique.

Ms. Avery will give brief demonstrations but the emphasis will be on helping each individual develop skills in paint handling and brush work. Avery is a well-known watercolorist in the Boston area and will be giving an hour demonstration at the South Shore Art Center Open House on Sunday, Sept. 10 starting at 5 p.m.

Registration for both these offerings must be made in advance either by mail or in person at the Center on 103 Ripley Road. A detailed schedule on these and the regular class offerings starting the week of Sept. 27 is available by calling 383-9548.

Murray pleased with drunk driving crackdown

State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, R-Cohasset, announced her pleasure at the signing of the drunk driving legislation.

"I am very pleased that we finally have a statute which addresses the problem of the driver who has been drinking," said Mary Jeanette.

Rep. Murray continued, "I filed a bill calling for more strict sentences and loss of license, some of that bill has been incorporated into the new law."

The Cohasset legislator also filed the "container" bill which is in Section 10 of the new law which is Chapter 373 of the Acts of 1982. A fine of $100 up to $500 shall be imposed on a person who while "operating a motor vehicle" while drinking from a container of any alcoholic beverage.

Rep. Murray attended the Governor's signing of the Drunken Driving, Chapter 373. Hundreds of people attended including many of the police officers of the Commonwealth. The Governor was acclaimed for his forcefulness in promoting this law into enforcement.

Mary Jeanette concluded: "The new law will succeed in substantially cutting roadway deaths. I commend my colleagues in the legislature and Governor Edward J. King for their favorable action on the "Drunk Driving" legislation. I also support and thank all members of MADD, SADD, RID and the law enforcement people of the municipalities and the State."

Coast Guard report for the week

SATURDAY, AUG. 21

12:58 p.m., Received call from the vessel September Song reporting a disabled outboard with engine trouble 3 miles off Farnham Rock. The CG Auxiliary vessel Bobbet was dispatched to search the area and found negative sightings. It was determined that a civilian vessel towed the outboard.

4:20 p.m., CG Auxiliary vessel Bobbet received call on distress channel 16 from the 23' Mark's Pride owned and operated by Allen Campbell, reporting engine failure ¼ mile South of Green Harbor. CG Auxiliary vessel Bobbet was enroute to tow the vessel to Green Harbor Marina.

8:48 p.m., On August 21, Candy Ford notified the CG Station Scituate of the 60 ft. sailing vessel Seven Bells overdue on a trip from Duxbury to Scituate Harbor. The CG 41455 was dispatched to search the area and found the Seven Bells, owned and operated by John Mahoney, 2 miles South of "SA" Gong and escorted the sailing vessel to Scituate Harbor where a boarding was conducted by CG personnel to ensure the proper equipment was on board. The vessel was overdue, due to auxiliary engine failure.

SUNDAY, AUG. 22

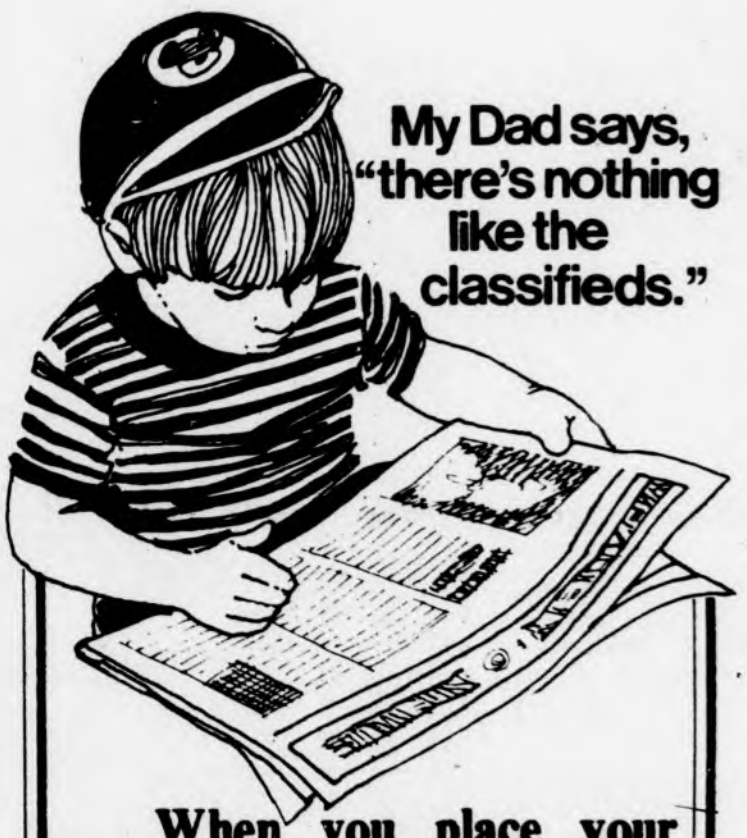
4:25 p.m., The CG notified by phone of a capsized 18' Catamaran 200 yards off Scituate Beach with 3 people on board. The CG 41455 utility boat was dispatched but recalled prior to arriving on scene, when the Catamaran righted itself.

1:09 p.m., Received call from the vessel Intruder II reporting the motor vessel Lioz was experiencing engine trouble 1½ miles off Manomet Point. CG 41455 was dispatched to tow the vessel owned and operated by Joel Kaplan to Marshfield Harbor. The Auxiliary vessels Chubby and Bluebell assisted by searching the area.

TUESDAY, AUG. 24

8:41 p.m., Received call on channel 9 CB from the Yacht Louise 1½ miles off 4th Cliff reporting engine trouble. CG 41455 was dispatched to tow the vessel Yacht Louise owned and operated by Ralph A. Purinton to Scituate.

THURSDAY, AUG. 26



4:20 p.m., Received call on channel 16, distress frequency from the fishing vessel Distle reporting the 41' sailing vessel Last Call experiencing engine trouble 6 miles East of Scituate Harbor. CG41455 was dispatched to tow the sailing vessel owned and operated by Norman Romano to Scituate Harbor.

7:25 p.m., Received call on distress channel 16 from the vessel Lady Irma reporting a 25' lobster boat experiencing engine trouble 3½ miles S.E. of Scituate Harbor. The CG 41455 was diverted to the lobster boat owned and operated by Steven Bowie and towed the vessel to Scituate Harbor.

8:24 p.m., Received call from Mrs. Michelangelo reporting her husband and two other persons on board an 18' inboard outboard, were overdue from a fishing trip from Plymouth Harbor to Cape Cod Bay. CG 41455 was dispatched for an extensive all night search involving the CG Cutter Cape Henlopen as the on scene commander, and utility boats from CG Stations in Hull, Provincetown, Sandwich, and a helicopter from Cape Cod Air Station were involved in the search. The CG 41455 was recalled to the Station Scituate and another crew relieved the fatigued crew. The search for the overdue, an 18 ft. inboard, outboard ended when the Plymouth Harbormaster located the vessel, a light green, and not white as the CG was told, in tow by a civilian vessel off the Plymouth Nuclear Power Plant. The Plymouth Harbormaster relieved the civilian vessel of the tow and brought the vessel safely into Plymouth Harbor where the CG 41455 utility boat personnel boarded and inspected the vessel to insure proper lifesaving equipment was onboard and vessel was issued a citation for no running lights, flares and no sound producing device.

CHS NEWS

. . . Fall sports . . . travel . . . homeroom changes . . . schedules . . .

By Patricia Anne Walsh
PSO Correspondent

FALL SPORTS

Fall sports and head coaches include football under John Leone, Boys Soccer under John Anderson, Girls Soccer under William Fallon, Girls Field Hockey under Gino DiGirolamo and Cross Country under John Mika.

Athletic Director, Clark Chatterton reports there were largenumbers of signups in June, especially for boys and girls soccer. Football, Soccer and Cross Country practices started Monday this week.

Mr. Chatterton stated that students are usually allowed to report up to the opening of school if they have extenuating circumstances, such as family vacations — not if they were "just hanging around town" — except for football, which is practicing double sessions.

PHYSICAL EXAMINATIONS

Physicals for Boys Football and Boys Soccer were given last Thursday and Friday free by the school physician. If youngsters missed the physicals, or do not wish to use the school doctor, they may use their personal physician at their own expense. The remaining physicals for girls' sports and for cross country will be offered when school classes start.

ELIGIBILITY

All high school students Grades 7 - 12 are eligible for all fall sports, except for football, which requires being in Grades 8 - 12.

TRAVEL

Unique and exciting news, Clark reports, is that Boys and Girls Soccer teams are traveling away to Cape Cod to play on Friday, Sept. 30 (teacher's day) at Chatham andSaturday morning at Nauset. They will spend the Friday night away. Funds were raised through a car wash.

LEAGUE NEWS

The South Shore League is actively seeking 4 - 10 schools, both large and small, to bring into the league, because they want two tiers. This will permit small and large schools to compete against each other, and promote a better balance, rather than having very small schools compete against very large schools. Applications will be accepted from schools up to Oct. 15.

CROSS COUNTRY

To form a Girls Cross Country Team it is necessary to have a minimum of five girls running. Since there were only three girls last year, they ran with the boys. Only five out of the 10 schools in the league fielded a separate girls cross country team.

FOOTBALL JAMBOREE

Friday evening, Sept. 10, 6 p.m., in Middleboro. Ten schools will participate.

NEWS FROM THE PRINCIPAL

Opening Day: Tuesday, Sept. 7.

Renovations to the guidance suits are completed. The computer room carpentry is in process but should be completed in time for school opening.

Business Ed. is moving to Room 100 for word processing and business math, and Room 103 is now housing Special Education classes. Room 107 is being reserved and set up for conferences and PSO meetings.

HOMEROOM CHANGES

The Senior Class will this year be housed in a single homeroom, the New Study Hall. The advantage is that the class will be readily available for short meetings regarding senior class affairs. They can easily be addressed by the administration, class advisors and class officers, rather than "waiting 20 minutes for the class to assemble in the auditorium for five minutes worth of business."

The 10th grade is moving to the second floor of the North Wing and the 9th grade to the second floor of the South Wing. The 7th, 8th and 11th grades will have homerooms in their usual locations.

STUDENT SCHEDULES

Kudos to the administration, and especially Mr. Streeter, for sending out student schedules well in advance of opening day, and allowing appointments for schedule changes before school opens. See letter sent to all parents for details.

THANK YOU

On behalf of the community we wish to extend our gratitude to Nancy Sandell, the originator, and to Sharon Becker, her assistant, who for the past two years have managed this column.

They have given unstintingly of their time and gasoline in gathering, collating and typing this CHS news column, so that the parents might be better informed and keep in touch with events that affect their youngsters and the school system.

Swim team defeated the Alumni

The 1982 Swim Team and Diving Team challenged the Alumni swimmers and divers on Saturday. Turned out that the Alumni Squad out-numbered the 1982 14 and 16 and unders.

The strong young team still managed a victory. The 1982 squad defeated the Oldies but Goodies, 155 to 130.

The Alumni squad was a more tired looking crew, but they lasted through the meet.

The oldies were: Nicky Anderson, Phil Lehr, Pam Becker, J.T. Price, Pam Johnson, Erin O'Brien, Bernie Caughey, Ellen McCarthy, Terry England, Doug Bell, Mike Fiori, Mary Jo Mahoney, Chris Julian, Mike Julian, Mark Buckley, Susan Buckley and Christine Karcher.

Those from 1982 squad were: Robbie Lowe, Mike Cunning, Maureen Costello (a very talented newcomer to Cohasset), Katee Duffy, Eric Karcher, Kathleen Buckley, Jay Santini, Sarah Trask, Katie Anderson, Bridget Cox, Kerry Lee O'Brien, Sara Bishop, Andrea Lowe, and of course, John and Jennifer Jackson.

First place finishers were: Rob Lowe-Diving, Mike Cunning, I.M., Maureen Costello, I.M., Mike Cunning-50 freestyle, Mary Jo Mahoney-50 freestyle, Chris Julian-25 butterfly, Erin O'Brien-25 butterfly, Eric Karcher-50 Breaststroke, Kathleen Buckley-50 Breastroke, Doug Bell-50 Backstroke, and Erin O'Brien-50 Backstroke.

Relay winners were: Doug Bell, Chris Julian, Mike Fiori and J.T. Price, Maureen Costello, Kate Anderson, Sara Trask, Bridget Cox, Mike Cunning, Bob Lowe, and Jay Santini.

Second place finishers were Doug Bell, I.M., Erin O'Brien-Diving and I.M., Mike Fiori-50 Freestyle, Maureen Costello-50 Freestyle, Mike Cunning-25 Butterfly, Katee Duffy-25 Butterfly, Mark Buckley-50 Breastroke, Sue Buckley-50 Breaststroke, Jay Santini-50 Backstroke and Kathleen Buckley-50 Backstroke.

Second place relay finishers were: Mo Costello, Jay Santini, Mike Cunning, Rob Lowe, Pam Johnson, Joey Mahoney, Erin O'Brien, Terry England, Ellen McCarthy, Kerry O'Brien and Pam Becker.

The 1982 Diving Coach Erin O'Brien lost to her best 16 and under boy — Robbie Lowe. Nicky Anderson and Doug Bell both executed fail dives during the competition. It made for a fun start of the day! Everyone had a great time —and it will now be an annual summer meet. See you next year. Thanks for participating.

Getting the treatment at Holistic Health

By Donna Cogliano

Good vibrations best describe what's going on at the Holistic Health center these days.

The scrubbing, the massaging, softening, deep cleansing, nourishing and stimulating citrus scents were all included in a facial treatment received by this reporter last week.

The reporter was greeted by Holistic Health owner Mark Dana Mincolla and esthetician Cecilia Joy, and given a tour of the cozy, modern health center which is located at the rear of the Reflections Hair Salon on Elm St.

Both Mincolla and Joy spoke about the philosophy, practices, and future of the business which was born at the end of May.

After the chit-chat, the reporter plopped herself onto a chair resembling a dentist's chair. She didn't like the looks of it but kept a positive outlook anyway. This was no ordinary chair — it produced a vibrating sensation.

"If you don't like it, I'll turn if off," said the esthetician, "but most people like it." It will help you relax, she said. The reporter said "Oh, it's fine. I'll try it for a while."

For an hour the reporter welcomed the vibrating sensation from the waist down. She almost fell into a sleep but fought it off. "Remember," she said to herself, "This is an assignment — one of the more pleasurable ones, yet still a story must be written."

So the reporter got back to work. Cecilia mentioned earlier that she gave facials to men and women. At last count she had treated more men than women. Do you think that's because you're an attractive young woman? asked the reporter. No, said Cecilia as she explained that many men truly care about their hair and complexion these days.

Last week Cecilia treated a young Cohasset man who sought help for an ingrown facial hair.

Application after application the reporter wondered (prayed) that she would emerge from the facial with a "new-you" look. She wanted a healthy glow similar to Cecilia's. But Cecilia said it would take two days to really notice the results of the facial.

A citrus cleanser, a sea kelp-herbal facial scrub, a lemon-mint astringent covered the face during separate steps of the facial ritual.

Holistic Health uses Rachel Perry products for facials. These products are available for cutomers to buy. "These products usually sell themselves," said Cecilia. "You just tell the customer what you're using each step of the way." She said it is not her policy to push the products.

Then came the texturizing mask with vitamin "E." The reporter used to think she looked good in blue. But she changed her mind as the wet blue mask tightened into a light blue cement-like surface. Only her lips and eyes were left unplastered as she stared into the mirror's reflection of a vaguely familiar face.

Finally the facial was complete. The face had been moisturized, nourished and treated with wrinkle creams. The blood had rushed to the surface of her face. The invigorating scrubbing and massaging pleasantly awoke the entire face and neck area.

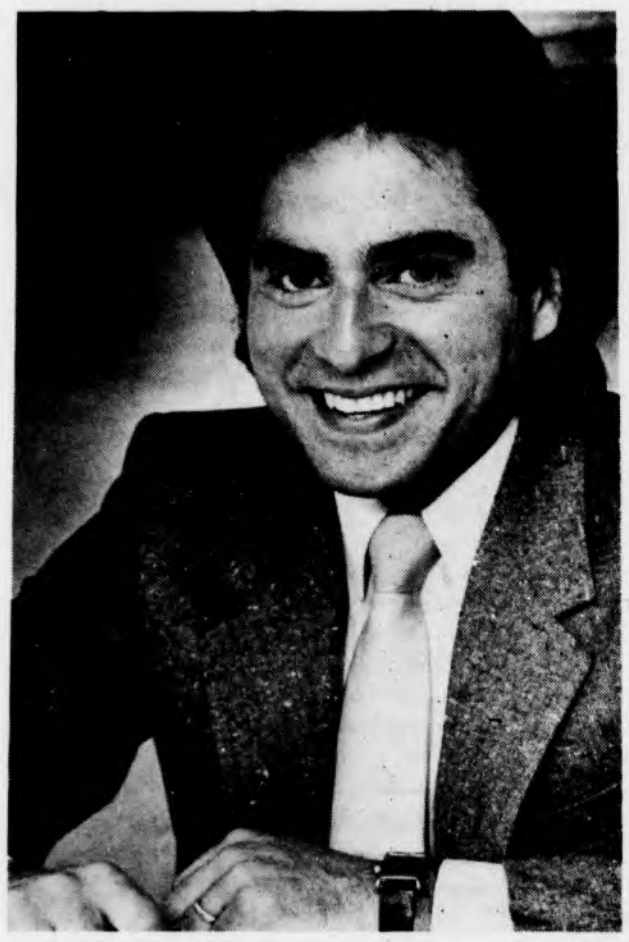
As Cecilia turned off the vibrating chair she asked a favor of the reporter. She wanted people to know that herbal facials are also offered at Holistic Health. This particular facial is geared toward people with specific skin disorders such as hives, oily skin or eczema. In addition to the herbal facial, customers may opt for either a basic facial of 30 minutes or the hour-long one.

Mincolla, who offers nutritional counseling, is pleased with the dawning months of the Holistic Health center. "It's really taking off well," he said. With the center located at the rear of the Reflections Hair Salon, Mincolla thought facials would be the most popular business. But not so, says Mincolla, "We're doing a lot of hair analysis and nutritional counsellings."

Mincolla, who has a master's degree in Holistic Health from Goddard College said, "I'm trying to inspire and teach people to help themselves...The time to take care of yourself is today."

Holistic Health originates from the word "whole-histic" and represents a total approach to preventive medicine which focuses on well-being rather than disease.

A basic nutritional consultation at the center is designed to improve dietary habits. This program "A" offering is a 60 minute thorough session including a questionnaire life style survey.



The consultation focuses on relaxation habits, exercise, diet analysis and environmental health.

The program "B" offering includes a series of laboratory tests and a hair analysis. The hair analysis reports on the mineral ratio of a person.

Intentions of Holistic Health Inc. are to act as counselor, consumer advocate and to provide guidance for individual health needs at the community level. "We in no way intend to be diagnostic or prescriptive. We don't want to compete with the medical professions," said Mincolla.

Minelli named outstanding coach at Cowen's

Cohasset High School boys' varsity basketball Coach Ed Minelli was recently named outstanding coach of the Dave Cowen's Camp held at Regis College in Wellesley.

His West All-star team was undefeated in league play. Minelli coached boys ages 15 to 18 from Greece, England, New York City and throughout the New England states.

At the conclusion of the five-week Cowen's Camp Minelli was recognized for his keen coaching talent.

Selectmen agenda

On tonight's agenda for the selectmen's meeting at town hall, 8 p.m., are: the resignation of police Chief John De Bassio; appointment of assistant harbormaster, Tom Wigmore; executive secretary contract; appointment of Paul Bilodeau to fire department; harbor study committee and Harbormaster Harry Ritter to meet with board to discuss a special town counsel for William Figueiredo's proposed marina.

For some of us, Labor Day is rather unique in that it is the only holiday in the year that makes one feel rather dismal. Instead of the usual anticipation, the mere mention that the weekend is in the offing arouses a sort of dread. What's to celebrate when summer is ending, days are getting shorter, the oil burner will soon be cranking up and the curtains will no longer billow with the soft summer breezes at the window? Ah well, good food is said to be one way of lifting one's spirits and if anything could do it, it would be Milly Carr's recipe for

BAKED EGGPLANT WITH MOZZARELLA CRUST

1 large eggplant
4 T butter
1 small onion, finely chopped
1/2 c. bread crumbs
1/4 tsp. salt, pepper to taste
3/4 c. shredded mozzarella cheese

Cut eggplant in half and bake in 375 degree oven for 35 min. Meanwhile heat 2 T butter in small saucepan, add onions and stir while cooking for 3 or 4 min. Add remaining butter. Stir in crumbs and cook over low heat for a minute. Remove and set aside. When eggplant is tender, scoop out meat of eggplant and place in shallow baking dish and chop into small pieces. Stir in salt and pepper. Spread eggplant evenly over dish and sprinkle with crumb mixture. Top with mozzarella. Bake at 375 degrees for 10 to 12 min., or until top is golden.

And then, there are those for whom Labor Day heralds the loveliest time of the year here on the South Shore. Traffic lets up and the beaches are less crowded; the blue water sparkles and the air is bracing. Gardens are still going strong, with Patient Lucy plants still colorful; dahlias, geraniums and marigolds providing splashes of color until frost. The holiday weekend usually calls a halt to outdoor cookouts, but if you're invited to a last such affair, why not take along Robert Thayer's

RICE DELIGHT SALAD

14 oz. pkg. quick-cooking rice, cooked per directions
1/3 c. chopped spanish olives
1/4 c. each chopped black olives, cashew nuts and onions
1/3 c. herb and spice dressing

Mix all ingredients and pour into bundt cake mold. Press firmly. Place dish on mold and turn to release salad. Garnish with olives and parsley.

Once school starts, mothers are off and running to their first September club meetings, into volunteer work at schools and hospitals, or some other worthwhile cause. Many a mom, like Beverly Johnston and Sandy Putney, returns to the classroom, ambitiously studying towards her degree, joining her kids in the evening when mountains of homework beckon. Busy times like these call for nourishing meals that require the least amount of time and effort, so cast an eye on another of Millie Carr's recipes for

EASIEST POT ROAST EVER

3½-4 lb. chuck, blade or other pot roast
1/2 pkg. dry onion soup
3 T water or dry red wine
1/2 c. tomato juice
2 T honey
1 bay leaf

Place roast in center of wide piece of heavy-duty aluminum foil in roasting pan. Bring foil up around sides of roast. Mix together onion soup and wine. Stir in tomato juice and honey. Blend and pour over roast. Add bay leaf. Wrap foil loosely around meat. Seal edges to form air-tight package. Heat oven to 325 degrees. Bake roast 45 min. per pound. Skim fat off, if necessary, before thickening meat juices for gravy. Yield: 4-6 servings.

Farm stands beckon with tempting offerings of blueberries, corn and tomatoes and will soon be offering glowing pumpkins, tangy russet apples and heaps of hubbard or butternut squash. Here is Barbara Warren's recipe for a casserole of

HOT BUTTERED SQUASH

1 c. cooked squash
1/4 c. margarine, melted
2 T brown sugar
1/2 c. cracker crumbs
1 egg, slightly beaten
Salt and pepper to taste, mustard also, if desired

Top with mixture of crumbs and margarine and bake 20 min. at 350 degrees. Ingredients may be extended to serve more people.

Twenty-five years of memories and friends

By Lois Martin

How they did it all I'll never know. But a record was set Sunday that will withstand all challenges.

Our friends and family gave us a 25th wedding anniversary party.

And boy were we feted.

It was to be a surprise, not an easy feat with someone who scents each sweet breeze for news. But they had at it early, tapping the resources of Andy (who could be confused with his father) and Terry (who is a block off this old chip). They swiped my address book and notified those who've been near and dear for those years that there would be a celebration. Whatever they thought they'd do could not have been so grand as what they did.

PATCHES

The invitations fashioned with the Mariner in mind, warned "Loose lips sink ships." And though I encountered no one whose lips lost control, I did catch a syllable or two that gave warnings.

But there were surprises I hadn't planned on. I'd tried all day, between cooking for what was pretexted as a summer casual buffet, to reach my mother on the phone. She wasn't home because she was en route to Marshfield.

And heading here from the other direction were my sister, Marilyn, and her husband Dick. There were special telephone calls from Janet Reeves in Florida, Bill & Mary Grady, and Maxie and Patty Anderson, those magnificent aeronauts of Albuquerque from whom we gleaned a lift that has lasted.

And telegrams came from the Burlocks in Houlton...and from California, from good ole Brian Martin whom we remember as being perfect because we haven't seen him since Christmas.

They held the festival in a home where the living room furniture had been moved to favor fun and dancing. Another surprise was the arrival of Marie and Jack, our local favorites of the C & W set with music that left my little legs in motion for hours.

They had balloons and food and special Martin nephews and wives.

And they gave joy and merriment and mirth.

We've had friends celebrating anniversaries lately. I've been to parties for a lot of reasons but I've never had a better time. And for what was a novel if not a unique experience, I didn't address the group. Richard did and he did it well.

But if I may I'll take my turn here.

I have never presumed to understand the necessary ingredients for an enduring marriage. That is one of life's mysteries. I know people must above all have respect for one another. And I know children sweeten a marriage but can never be called upon to save one. And clearly good fortune and hard work are components of measure.

But the background music for the quality of our lives, the very core of caring, has been provided in our 25 years of friends. I count myself a savvy soul when it comes to spotting magnificent people. I tell you I know some of the best who walk the earth. I know the best of what they are.

And I have been the inheritor of their love. The marvel of it is that true friends have seen us in the worst and best of times and they have stuck it out as couples do in a marriage.

Relationships don't amount to a hill of beans without friendship as a foundation.

I toast our friends. I cherish what they've contributed during these 25 years. I tell you I don't know that we could have done it without you. And I count among them, those gladsome fellow conspirators in celebration, Andrew and Terrence Martin.

Back to school stress

Back-to-school can bring heavy emotional stress for parents and children with fathers more apt to be affected during the junior-senior high school transition while mothers tend to feel the impact when the last child enters the first grade.

Psychotherapist Timothy Ryan of Family Counseling & Guidance Centers in Marshfield cautions that many parents are not ready for such crises.

One of the most difficult periods for mothers, says Ryan, is when the last child enters first grade. "This can be a very unsettling period. A sort of "hinge" time when lots of things can change for the whole family. The mother may feel a deep sense of loss, question her own worth, wrestle with decisions about outside employment, begin looking at the marriage more critically, and face a real identity crisis. The question, "What do I do now?" can be a terrifying one. Especially if there has been a fantasy about the new freedom, and the reality has been a letdown."

Their grades superficial, officials say

A 'D' for Boston Magazine

By Donna Cogliano

Though the first day of school was only yesterday (Tuesday), report cards are already out for Cohasset. In the September issue of Boston Magazine Cohasset students were graded a "B" for their smarts.

Cohasset school officials talked with the Mariner this past weekend and were concerned with the simple survey results of such a complex issue.

School Committee Chairman Diana Kornet, who had not read the article, said the information was gathered quickly in the spring and that there had been some confusion over what type of testing results the researcher wanted. She said the information seemed quite superficial.

Thirty school systems around Route 128 were included in "Boston Magazine's Report Card on Suburban Public Schools."

Hingham students earned a "C" and Scituate students were given a "C-". The student grades were based on SAT results of the high school students.

Cohasset students were ranked in the top ten academically.

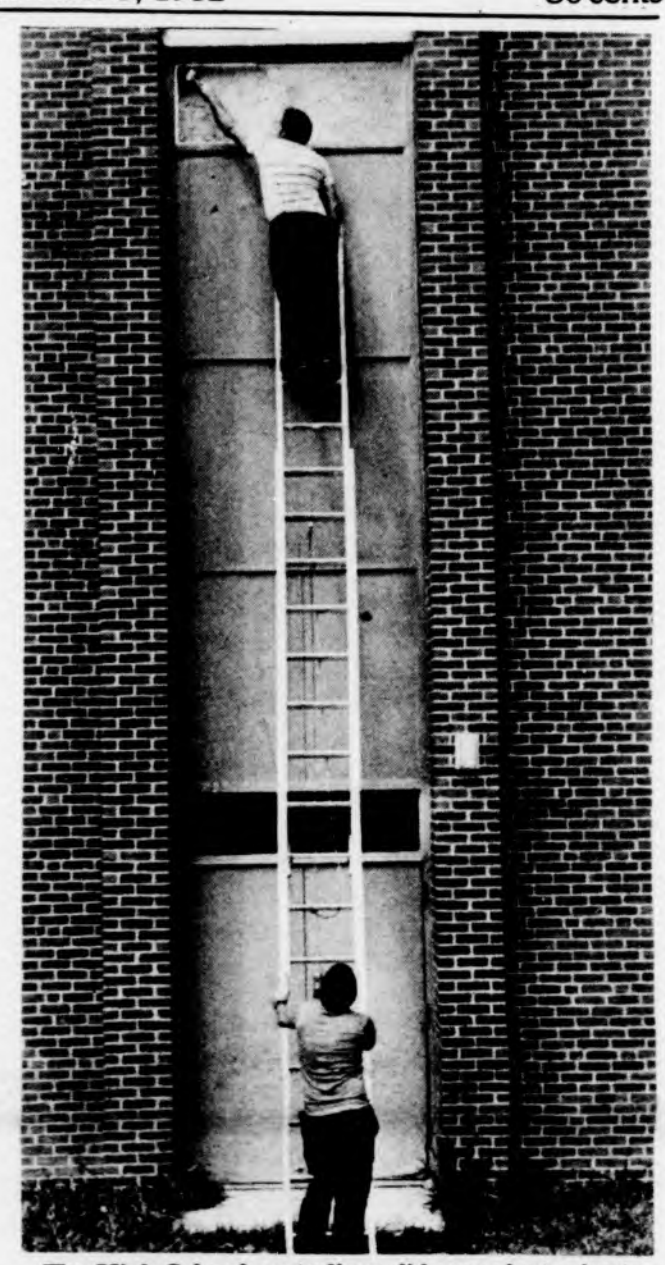
School Supt. Eugene Crowell said that scholastic aptitude tests should never be used in comparing schools. He said SAT's are only an indication of how well a student will do in college. He said achievement tests should be used to measure the academic accomplishments of students.

The Cohasset teachers were given a "C-plus" grade while the town was given a "C" grade for the amount of money budgeted for the schools.

Doctorate degree holders aren't necessarily the best teachers, said Crowell, who has had to let a few of these teachers go during his career. He disagreed with Boston Magazine's grade schedule and said the Cohasset teachers deserve an "A" grade.

Only one of the 30 polled schools received an "A" grade in the teaching area. Concord-Carlisle teachers were given an "A-plus."

School committee members, Richard Conley, Joseph Nedrow and John Langmaid III agreed with the superintendent's stand that teachers with the highest degrees aren't always the best instructors for students.



"All in all, we're proud to come up in the top ten," said Crowell, "but we're not sure what it means.

"It was an interesting little article," he said, "I felt it was certainly an ambitious and difficult task for any newspaper or magazine to embark on."

Crowell said, in supplying information to the Magazine, he relied heavily on the recent evaluation for which the Cohasset schools received a ten-year accreditation.

The Cohasset school administration was given some 20 to 25 questions for the survey. Crowell obtained permission from the school committee before addressing the questions. He said three-quarters of the questions were opinion questions and only five or six questions dealt with factual information. The opinion questions focused on teacher morale and dedication, etc.

Police Chief DeBassio will leave Sept. 20

Police Chief John DeBassio is scheduled to leave the Cohasset Police Department next week. Selectmen voted unanimously last week to accept his resignation which becomes effective Sept. 20.

DeBassio submitted his resignation to selectmen Aug. 23, citing financial reasons as the major factor in his decision to leave. He plans to take a job as director of security for the Foxboro Company in Foxboro.

DeBassio said the recent dispute with selectmen over the use of a permanent intermittent police officer also figured into his decision to leave.

Before voting to accept the resignation Selectman Mary Jan McArthur tried to convince the board to delay the effective date. She said in talking with DeBassio, he seemed willing to stay on a bit longer.

McArthur argued that postponement of the chief's leaving would allow for a smoother transition period. She said, "He is willing to stay on for a while longer."

Selectmen Chairman Henry Ainslie wanted to accept the resignation saying the board had been accused of not acting fast enough in the past. "I don't see any sense in dragging it out another six weeks and just giving another indication of indecision," he said.

McArthur responded, "I don't think the town would take it as indecision...the longer he (DeBassio) stays the better for the department and for the town."

Selectman Rocco Laugelle said DeBassio originally indicated that he would like to leave Sept. 20. "He

Moderate turnout expected for primary

A moderate turnout is expected in Cohasset for next Tuesday's Massachusetts Primary.

The polls are open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Town Hall. Residents who wish to cast absentee ballots have until Monday, Sept. 13, to do so.

Asst. Town Clerk Frances Marks said the easiest way to vote absentee is at the Town Clerk's office during regular business hours — from 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 to 4 p.m.

With no major races at the local level, the much heralded "Rematch" between Gov. Edward King and former Gov. Michael Dukakis is the major draw for Democrats. Neither has spent time in Cohasset other than King's appearance at a fundraiser at Hugo's Lighthouse. Both candidates, however, have active coordinators in Cohasset.

The gubernatorial race is also the major draw for Republicans who must choose among John Sears, John Lakian and Andrew Card.

The only other GOP contest is between Thomas Barry of Duxbury and Vincent Mina of Weymouth for the right to oppose State Sen. Alan McKinnon of Weymouth. McKinnon, the incumbent, is unopposed in the Democratic Primary.

State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray of Cohasset is seeking re-election and is unopposed in the Republican Primary. Last week some of her supporters launched a sticker campaign to win her the Democratic nomination as well against former State Rep. Carolyn Stouffer of Hingham. Stouffer, a Democrat, was defeated by Murray in 1978 and is launching a rematch of her own.

The Murray write-in campaign, called "Operation Go," does not apparently have the support of Rep. Murray who is quoted as saying she felt uncomfor-

This governor's race is a classic

By David Mittell, Jr.

Commentary

We are living through a governor's race that historians are likely to cite as a classic in decades to come. Commentators of the future will say: "They don't make 'em like that anymore," just as creatures such as I sometimes yearn for the days of James Michael Curley and Martin Lomasney.

"Greatness" on the part of the present crop of candidates probably eludes the average citizen. Nevertheless, despite the inability of most of them to articulate anything very inspiring so far, these are five remarkable men.

ANDREW CARD

Andrew Card (whom most writers are wont to mention last) is young, bright, earnest, and his knowledge of the issues is encyclopedic. When he first ran for the legislature as a Republican in capital D democratic Holbrook, he caused snickering democratic amusement. He won.

In the legislature, he somehow maneuvered his colleagues into unanimously voting the Ward Commission contrary to both their own instincts and some of the pressures on them. Yet unlike the Backmans and Sisistkys of this world, Card is a reformer who has the admiration of most of his colleagues. He seems to have all the qualities people like about Mike

Cohasset's week...

Booster's first meeting

Everyone is invited to the Booster's Club's first meeting of the school year Wednesday, Sept. 15 at Joni Brown's, 546 Beechwood St. The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m.

On the agenda will be election of new officers and the '82/'83 program.

For more information call the Browns, 383-1625 or Duffy's, 383-0292.

Road repairs

Selectmen approved a list of private ways for the Highway Department to grade, patch and seal. The following private ways are scheduled for repairs: Howe Rd., Hobart Lane, Grassie Lane, Gammons Rd., Black Horse Lane, Lambert Lane, Cedar St., Old Summer St., Bow St., and Marion Way.

State grant on hold

Selectmen received notice last week that a $21,000 state grant for water pipe leak detection has been put on hold until the town agrees to broaden its housing opportunities, particularly for lower income families.

The letter came from the state's Executive Office of Communities and Development (EOCD) stating, "The town appears to be unreasonably restrictive of housing."

Planning Board Chairman Barbara Power said the grant delay would soon be discussed with the other board involved. A copy of the letter from EOCD was also sent to Housing Authority Chairman Lloyd Prescott and state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray.

Joseph Flatley, assistant secretary in the Office of Communities and Development wrote to selectmen suggesting that a formal agreement be made by the planning board, housing authority and selectmen, with a commitment toward seeking more low-income family housing.

Flatley enclosed two model resolutions for consideration by the boards. He said the agreement would strengthen the town's standing in applying for other state discretionary funding. Another $370,999 for a water pipe reconstruction project on Atlantic Ave. and Border St. could also be affected.

Schools open smoothly

The schools' opening went smoothly yesterday (Tuesday), "almost as if we hadn't closed up," said School Supt. Eugene Crowell.

Crowell projectd a 1,414 enrollment for the town's school system which is 60 students less than last year. The school committee's budgeting had been based around the 1,414 enrollment figure which proportions children in the following schools: Osgood, 292; Deer Hill, 297; Junior High, 248; and High School, 777.

Already some 10 to 15 students have registered at the Junior-Senior High School and Crowell thinks that his estimated enrollment projection might be a bit low. The higher enrollment seems to be from new families moving into town, he said. Crowell plans to give a detailed report about the schools' opening to the school committee at their Monday meeting.

Counsel for marina proposal

In the best interest of public safety and navigation of Cohasset harbor, Harry Ritter, the harbormaster, told selectmen that William Figuereido should not be granted a permit, at this time, for his 91-slip proposed marina off Parker Avenue.

Cohasset harbor is already overtaxed with boats, said Ritter. If the Marina were allowed, the harbormaster would have to displace about 30 boats.

"I just can't visualize 91 more boats trying to get up and down the channel," said Ritter. "I would like to see a special counsel appointed to see what can we do to stop this from coming in."

Selectmen voted unanimously last Wednesday to have counsel assigned to represent the town at a hearing held by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for the Bailey Creek Marina proposal.

Ritter cited the proposed Parker Ave. Marina as a potential parking hazard. On weekends he said there is an average of 1½ cars per boat parked in the harbor area.

In another matter selectmen voted to appoint a counsel for Assistant Harbormaster Tom Wigmore to recover costs of a $2,400 portable radio which fell in the water during a recent confrontation with a boater.

Cohasset Motors vacant again

Sekar, Inc., an import-export distributor, was ordered out of the Cohasset Motors building on Route 3A by Building Inspector James Litchfield last week. The company had only begun moving in the week before last from their Pembroke warehouse.

The business was told to remove all equipment and merchandise from the building and the truck trailers parked outside because they are in violation of town zoning laws.

Sekar is leasing the property with an option to buy from owner Howard Schramn.

The variance is needed because the building is in a highway business district which does not allow warehousing and manufacturing operations of an import-export business. In addition to obtaining the variance, Sekar must also comply with sprinkler requirements before moving back into the building.

At selectmen's meeting last Wednesday, Anthony Abromowich, the owner of the Cohasset Craftsmen Auto Body located next to the Cohasset Motors' building complained about the noise and abusive language used by workers moving equipment into the building for Sekar. He installed a fence on Tuesday to keep the trailer trucks from parking so close to his property.

Abromowich asked selectmen to monitor the situation and to inform him of any hearings regarding the variance. He spoke of the situation as being very discouraging.

Sekar is a firm that deals in ski wear, automotive, hardware, home and garden tools.

Meet Geri the prolific parrot

If you're interested in owning a pet parakeet Lynne Molloy can tell you everything and anything you'd want to know about these little creatures.

Since moving from Scituate to 56 Spring Street in Cohasset, Lynne's parakeets, Thomas and Geraldine (Geri for short), have had nine babies. "We can't stop them," said Lynne. "We even tried separating them but she still managed to give birth."

The parakeets are only an inch long when they are born but their growth span is very fast, she said. Lynne has given six baby parakeets away and she recently decided to part with Penelope, who is a month and a half old. Once she finds a home for Penelope, Peepers will be the only baby parakeet remaining with Thomas and Geri.

Penelope is a blue parakeet and Peepers is mostly yellow. Lynne says the babies are well-trained; it's the parents (Tom and Geri) she has to scold. Lynne bought Thomas and Geri at Zayres in Hanover Mall last year.

So if you are interested in having a pet parakeet check in with Lynne because Geri is sitting on eggs this week and more parakeet births are predicted in the near future at the Spring St. residence.

The seafaring village of Cohasset...

Looking back

For the first two centuries of its existence Cohasset was a seafaring village.

Several generations of young Cohasseters went to sea at an early age, sometimes making their first ocean voyage before they had reached the age of ten years, to serve on the numerous family-owned fishing schooners making up the Cohasset fishing fleets. Families with names such as Bates, Tower, Snow,Wilson, and Collier made their living from the sea as shipbuilders, shipowners, fishermen and merchants.

An example of the early family-operated fishing businesses was the one established by Captain Abraham Tower. Descended from John Tower, a first settler of Hingham, Abraham Tower had been a member of the Boston Tea Party, and served in the Revolutionary War. Returning from the War, he built a stone wharf at Cohasset Harbor adjacent to the older wharf built by Samuel Bates.

Both ancient wharves still exist, and Tower's Wharf now is the site of Hugo's Lighthouse Restaurant. Captain Tower maintained a "fleet" of fishing schooners and constructed several large buildings at the wharfsite for the maintenance of his vessels and for the processing of their fish.

For a time, Capt. Tower resided in a small house across the street from the wharf, but later built and lived in a more elegant one facing Cohasset Common. By the 1800's Tower schooners were voyaging north each summer to Canadian Atlantic waters for the catching of mackerel. When the schooners' holds were full, they would return to Cohasset and unload their valuable cargo at the Cove. Here it would be processed and shipped to markets. Founded in about 1790, the Tower family business lasted until 1928. Of the original building at Tower Wharf, not one remains; the wharf having been cleared to make room for a new restaurant building in the early 1930's.

Captain Abraham Tower, the founder, was born in 1752 and died in 1832.

He is listed as having been a "Master Shipbuilder" and fisherman. His son Abraham Hobart Tower, born in 1801, inherited the family business at the Cove, and its name became A.H. Tower Company. Abraham Hobart Tower was known as having engaged in commerce, navigation and farming. By the mid-1800's, Tower's fishing fleet was sizeable, and the business had become one of the largest commercial ventures in Cohasset.

Continually expanding, A.H. Tower Co. added a lumber wharf to its holdings, now the site of the Gulf Mill boatyard. Abraham Hobart Tower Sr. died in 1881, and the family company passed to his two sons Abraham Hobart Jr. and Newcomb Bates Tower.

Following the years of the Civil War, Cohasset's fishing industry faced a slow but steady decline, and in 1894 the last of the family-owned fishing schooners, the Tower family's "Charlotte" left Cohasset for Canadian waters, never to return. "Charlotte' was impounded by Canadian authorities for Customs violations and was sold to a Nova Scotia fisherman the following summer. With the decline of the local fishing industry, Abraham H. and Newcomb B. Tower decided to diversify their business at Cohasset Harbor, and Tower Brothers Company (as it was called at that time) became a general store and hardware company.

The Border Street buildings at Tower's wharf were filled with everything from lumber to molasses, house paint to bamboo fishing poles, and from marine fittings to barrels of sugar. The store and its appurtenant business flourished well into the 20th century, and not until Newcomb Tower's passing in 1928 did its doors shut for the last time.

The Cohasset Historical Society has perpetuated Tower Brothers' General Store in a permanent exhibit at the Society's Maritime Museum. Here, one can see many of the wares and goods once carried in stock at the old "fisherman's store." Centerpiece of the museum exhibit is the early slant-topped counting desk used at the store, and around it are arrayed samples of Tower Brothers' extensive merchandise, as well as some of the store's actual equipment.

To be seen, among other things, are an ancient jar of molasses (long since crystallized), cracker boxes, wicks for oil lamps, samples left by a burlap salesman, an old insecticide sprayer, travelling bags and wooden crates, a price book and samples of marine paints, and some items of hardware.

The store's large old-fashioned counter scales are there, and a "steelyard" scale once used to weight produce. Newcomb and Abraham Tower's branding irons and the Company's mackerel barrel branding iron are on exhibit, along with brass stencils used to label shipping crates. There is a painting of Tower Brothers' buildings as they appeared in circa 1915, and a diiorama model of the wharf property as it. looked in the late 1800's.

These and many other displays of historical interest wil be on view at the Maritime Museum at Cohasset Center each afternoon except Mondays through the end of September.

Rep. Murray on revolving accounts

State Representative Mary Jeanette Murray, (R) Cohasset, this week issued a report on how revolving funds can help cities and towns.

"Prop. 2½ brought about many different ideas to prevent the loss of municipal services," said Murray.

"The revolving fund technique is the most popular method voted at town meetings. Many cities and towns have submitted Revolving Account legislation. The precedent for this type of account was established in 1977, for a revolving account for trips, excursions, etc., but money in this account cannot be used for salaries or the purchase of equipment."

The Committee on Local Affairs, of which Murray is a member, is the committee which hears all revolving accounts bills.

Members of the Local Affairs Committee are opposed to revolving accounts. "The major reason we are in agreement is the fact that the establishment of such an account does not allow the voters to understand the whole picture of the budget in those Departments which set up this particular process," said Representative Murray. "Other factors which concern legislators is that the community could lose control and in the instance of Recreation Commissions could lose the whole object of recreation. The fees allowed under "2½" may be charged only for cost of services and members of the General Court forsee an abuse of this section.

"Twenty-four requests from municipalities for revolving funds have been reported out unfavorably by the Local Affairs Committee," Rep. Murray reported.

The Local Affairs Committee has worked on legislation to assist those municipalities requesting revolving accounts. This is Chapter 339, Acts of 1981. The statute does not preclude voters from the knowledge of monies set aside.

Anyone interested in a copy of Chapter 339, may contact Rep. Murray at 722-2400 or by writing to your legislature at Room 134 State House, Boston, Mass. 02133.

Crowell said the article had some misleading information about the band program. The story was correct in that the school does not have a marching band. However, he said there is a stage band, orchestra and an ensemble group which received state-wide recognition.

Conley said of the magazine article, "I think it's a bestseller headline with no substance." He said the report was nothing to get excited about. "You shouldn't judge a school system by this story because there are too many holes in it," he said.

Nedrow said, "It's a difficult thing to just send out a questionnaire and reach a conclusion."

Langmaid spoke of the magazine article as "simplistic." He added, "I don't know if there really is any way to rate these communities." He said there are differences in ethnic groups, population, people's income, property value and the amount of state aid a community receives.

Langmaid said it seemed as though the story relied on a lot of subjective judgements from active members of the school system. In addition he said strong points of a school system's program were mentioned in some towns but left unmentioned in others.

Langmaid felt the survey was harmless. Though Hingham and Scituate received lower grades than Cohasset Langmaid said, "I think we should look better because I think we're a better school system and we work harder at it."

☐Heather Pietrowski, the daughter of Mrs. Bonnie Pietrowski of Summer St., celebrated her 19th birthday this week with a surprise dinner party at the Medieval Manor in Boston. She didn't mind the no forks, etc.

☐The Police Jelly is being moved to the basement where it is hoped it will begin jelling. Presently it has the consistency of apricot juice. Any and all sage wisdom will be appreciated — i.e., can I take it out of the jars and re-boil it? Should I refrigerate it, freeze it?

☐Before I continue, I would like to thank everybody (so far) who has permitted me to use their news in Around Town. There are still a few of you who do not wish to share your news and who threaten me with all sorts of things when I call. Like Jean Salvador, who won first place for a sweater/coat she knit in competition at the Marshfield Fair. It is public information, Jean, and we're all proud of you. Wish you could have supplied a few more details, however. It's not nice to hang up on the A.T. Columnist. What if no one shared their news? I have nightmares about that.

☐Arlene Fererria, Trish Massa, Rachel White and Joanie Bravo will be taking golf lessons this month at the Cohasset Country Club or maybe Hatherly. Scituate Golf Pro Nina Belson will instruct the group, which has decided to temporarily disband its luncheons for a little exercise. Probably a wise move.

☐Shopping for school seemed to be the main rage Around Town this week. Mothers were either planning to go or just coming back when I called. Pickings were still pretty good last Thursday, but by Saturday colors and sizes were dwindling. My big purchase was socks. During a recent inventory I discovered 16 unmatched socks. No, I do not know where their mates go. No one does.

☐Last Friday night the First Annual Periwinkle Roast and Blue Grass Festival was held at the Smazell home...with these college-bound studdents (Probably gone by now) in attendance: Steven Smazell, Charlie Ford, Mike Ellis, Karlin Isele and other droppers-by. The group sang multiple blues tunes, with Ellis on the banjo and Steven on the harmonica. They also sang old classics such as "Old Susanna" and "This Land is Their Land."

☐Some of the former group appeared at the Celebration Disco in Boston last Saturday where they held their own festival, another first, entitled "Collegiate Funk." It was a last fling kind of thing before they became "nothing" underclassmen at their respective colleges and universities. That Saturday night group consisted of: Nick Berents, Kate Cowan, Andy Pottinger, Don McKinnon, Mary Jo Mahoney, Kristen Moore, Marcy Brown, Charlie Ford, Steve Smazell and the Duxbury contingent of Marke Underhill and Dave Calman.

☐In the meantime, Rob Tis is long gone...has already been oriented at Marquette University. He's thinking about going out for the sailing team and will be going "home" weekends with his roommate who has six beautiful sisters. Wouldn't you just know Tis would fall into a situation like that?

☐Congrats to Bart and Marlene Winn who recently celebrated their 25th Anniversary at a surprise party... their children, Michael, Kevin, Steven, Paul and Cheryl planned the whole event, which was held at the home of Jack and Lorraine Winn on South Main Street. You did a nice job, kids!

☐Desperate plea: since everybody I know (18 and under) has gone off to college, I am in need of some contacts at the high school regarding the A.T. news. Your other news will of course appear regularly in the police log.

☐Bengi, sources say your room has not been cleaned up for a long time. We will check back in a couple of weeks to see if things have improved.

☐Sometimes the news is what did not happen, and that was the case this past weekend when Jane Ellis' sister from New Jersey, who has been visiting Cohasset every Labor Day weekend for the past 10 years, did not come.

☐Navy Builder Constructionman Recruit Thomas G. Hernan, son of Thomas W. Hernan of 558 Beechwood St., Cohasset, has completed the Navy's Builders Course.

During the 13-week course at Gulfport, Miss., trainees studied blueprint reading, building layouts and construction planning. In practical application periods, they learned maintenance and repair of structures, roofing and the techniques for mixing, placing and finishing concrete.

'The joy of kvetching'

By Claire McDonough

I heard on the radio that an enterprising lady from another state — Michigan, I think — has founded a business called "Rent-a-Kvetch," and I'll bet she's got a blockbuster of a success in the making.

"Kvetch" is a Yiddish term that translates loosely as "a chronic complainer." Very loosely, actually, since the word connotes a certain hard to define implacable whining that reaches to the very marrow of the bone. "Where are you? I thought you were dead," "Go ahead. Have a good time. Don't worry about me," and "It wouldn't hurt to call your mother" are all standard weapons in the arsenal of the bona fide "kvetch." All mothers excel in tuning in to someone else's free floating guilt, but the genuine "kvetch" has refined the skill to an art. (One wonders if Sigmund Freud, who originated the term 'free floating guilt' had a relative who was a card-carrying 'kvetch.')

Anyway, here's how the lady's business works. For a pre-arranged fee, a representative of "Rent-a-Kvetch" will complaint to just about anyone about just about anything. Small businesses often employ her agents to hang around overdue accounts whining and piling on the guilt until the recalcitrants pay up.

The "kvetch's" services, however, are by no means limited to business matters. Say the person who shares your seat on the P&B bus every morning has the habit of blowing garlic in your face at an hour when you are simply not up to coping with garlic. Your rented "kvetch" will beat you to the seat on a given morning. At the first whiff of the herb, your "kvetch" will hand her seat partner a roll of breath mints.

"This is for your own good, darling," she will assure him in tones that reach every corner of the bus. "If your mother never told you about halitosis, someone has to." Then she gets off at the next stop. Your message gets across, and you don't have to confront anyone.

I can think of lots of other uses for "kvetches." I don't know how much they charge, but if I ever can afford one, I think I shall employ a full time "kvetch." My kvetch will follow the Dragon around smiling solicitously. If he lights a cigarette she will roll her eyes heavenward in a piteous fashion. "That's all right, darling," she will assure him, coughing. "Enjoy your smoke. You deserve it. Don't give a thought to your widow and your poor little orphans." Her eyes will start to water — whether with tears or from the smoke it will be difficult to tell. "Maybe we should call Ernie Richardson for an estimate." I defy the Dragon to enjoy that cigarette.

When the kids come home from school she'll walk behind them gathering the clothes and books they drop. "Don't give it another thought," she will sigh loudly. "I don't mind picking up after you. You're teenagers. You need your strength. What do I matter? With the lumbago and all, I can't last much longer anyway. I'll use my last ounce of strength cleaning up after your snack. Don't bother coming to the funeral. You'll have something better to do that day."

Rent-a-Kvetch? What on earth am I thinking of? I should pay someone else to do what I do every day? I should miss out on all that fun? And anyway, maybe there's a book in it. How does "The Joy of Kvetching" grab you?

table about interrupting the two-party system.

The congressional race — between Cohasset resident Gerry Studds and Cohasset resident Jack Conway — won't be decided until November. Both Studds, the incumbent Democrat, and Conway, the Republican, are unopposed for their nomination next Tuesday.

The only other contested race in the Primary are on the Democratic side for lieutenant governor, county commissioner and for clerk of courts in Norfolk County (see the specimen ballots on page 9). All other candidates in both parties are unopposed.

Independent voters who wish to retain their independent status and still vote in the primaries can do so by filling out a card after they leave the voting booth. They can vote in only one primary, however, and must choose a Republican or Democratic ballot.

requested the 20th and we should stick by it," said Laugelle.

Ainslie said the board delayed accepting the resignation on Aug. 23 so that the vacationing board member, McArthur, could be present to vote the resignation.

"I don't see why it's that much of a problem. We're just going to delay it that much longer," said Ainslie. McArthur said the resignation could be accepted and that she only requested the effective date to be changed.

Laugelle and Ainslie still favored the Sept. 20 date as requested by DeBassio and a 3-0 vote was taken to accept the resignation.

Editorial

Shallow as a birdbath

It was shallow. It didn't really tell Cohasset residents anything they didn't know or weren't pretty sure of.

Boston Magazine used beauty contestant statistics this month in conjuring up a "pop" magazine piece that was well-illustrated and well-written, despite some very important missing facts.

In "Mariner-Land" every school official and school committeeman and woman had something to say regarding their placements. Boston Magazine placed Cohasset in the Top 10 of the "Highest Mean Combined," so Cohasset school officials could pooh-pooh the results with some secret pleasure. And we're sure those citizens who have not yet seen the September issue of Boston Magazine will hurry out to grab an issue this week to see for themselves. Good marketing campaign, Boston! Some publicity traps are difficult to avoid, i.e. our editorial on the same.

What important "facts" were missing from the Boston article?

The fact that Cohasset is plugged into parental involvement:

1) Strong Booster organization; Grid-Iron Club, newly-formed but active PSO (Parent-Student Organization). Hardly an issue of the Mariner goes by where some group isn't worrying about kids or planning something for them.

2) Youth-oriented Yacht Club and Sailing Club programs. Horse clubs. 4-H. And hundreds of parents willing to be involved.

3) A superb Town Recreation program, an active Community Center with year-long programs. Now it's getting into computers.

4) Much interaction between parents and kids in the churches, the home. Parents continually interacting with kids. No big, modern community center, but all the stuff that's better; a town full of chauffeurs willing to cart kids everywhere.

5) People move to Cohasset because it is a family town. It's also been accused of being a pressure-cooker, but when that is said it is said with some pride.

A year or so ago another popular magazine ran an article on what kind of mother was the best mother to have, if a kid were to have a choice in the matter.

Jewish mothers came out No. 1 in the voting. Children of this type of mother might be quick to disagree on those survey results.

One product of such a mother recently said, "She pushed me into scientific undergraduate work. Then she pushed for my M.A. Then she pushed for my Ph.D. I never had a chance to think about what I wanted to do and I think I'm a little messed up as a result."

We retorted, "Everybody's messed up. You might as well be a messed up Ph.D."

Considering where and with whom Cohasset was ranked in the Boston Magazine mean, the question of the week may well be:

"Is Cohasset acting like a Jewish mother?"

If she is, it would seem she's doing exactly the right thing.

Almost any educator you talk to, in any system, will tell you the most important ingredients of any educational program are:

A caring family.
An involved family.
A loving family.
That's Cohasset.

This governor's race is a classic...

Dukakis, save the experience — and none of the things that people don't like. In short, he knows how to get along with people.

Card is once again causing snickers running for governor. But I believe that in the wake of John Lakian's collapse, it is not impossible that lightning will strike next Tuesday. If not, Card is likely to be a winner for losing, for he is on a lot of people's lists, including President Reagan's, as a "comer."

MIKE DUKAKIS

Mike Dukakis is a man whose intellectual gifts could have taken him to the highest legal, corporate or collegiate reaches as he pleased, but who never seems to have wavered from his commitment to politics.

Dukakis breezed through college, law school and the Boston Marathon. He got elected to the legislature two years out of law school, married a beautiful woman, had nice kids and got elected governor on his first try. Until his defeat by Edward J. King in 1978 he never missed a public step.

But beginning with his promising run for attorney general in 1966, Dukakis acquired a reputation for arrogance. I've spent hundreds of hours with him, and if he is arrogant (I say if), he is never pretentious. His penchant for riding the MBTA, which somehow strikes terror in the heart of the corporate world, is totally in character, it is no posture.

I think Dukakis' reputation for arrogance comes from three things. First, as a lawyer and a pol, he does not come naturally to the "listening skills" of the psychological trade. He tends to say "Yup, yup, yup" when being spoken to in such a way that one feels he misses a lot.

Secondly, he is a short man. Men instinctively defer to a hulk, but they sometimes resent the aggressiveness of a short man.

Thirdly, the fact that he "never missed a step" until 1978, may have made him quicker to believe what he believes and know what he knows than some of us who have stumbled and fallen a few times in life.

He has a way of describing intractable problems as details needing only glancing treatment by his superior staff to clean up. When as governor, he often did 85 percent of what he had said he was going to do, his self assurance seemed to make people focus on the 15 percent he hadn't done.

In any case, I believe the fantasies that have arisen around Dukakis are all out of proportion to the rather unassuming man at the center of them. If he loses a second time to King it will partly be because he will have caused those who ought to be his supporters to behave irrationally.

ED KING

Edward J. King is at the hub of a few irrational fantasies himself. For 15 years or more the reaction to King among the educated elite that tends to admire Dukakis has been: "yuck."

It should not be so. While the Dukakis people were falling all over themselves congratulating themselves for acquiring the world view that was positively the latest thing around 1969, Ed King was learning how to run a railroad. Well, a port authority. But the practical lessons learned, which the idealistic Dukakis people tended not to learn, were those of running a railroad, or any other business.

It seems to me that the powerful hold of Ed King over his adherents — in spite of his "warts," far stronger than Dukakis' hold over his people — is due to the fact that unlike Dukakis, Ed King has empathy for the risk taker in society.

Whereas Dukakis knows what discrimination is and what the poverty of others is, King knows what bankruptcy is and what foreclosure is. Dukakis appointed people who regarded bankruptcy and foreclosure as problems of the relatively well off, and therefore worthy of only the meagerest sort of concern by government.

This was deeply resented and helps explain why King's people dislike Dukakis so and dislike people like Paula Gold and James Stone even more. It explains why they will go to the wall with Ed King come what may in terms of embarrassing allegations.

What even his friends overlook is that King's rise from trained accountant is just as remarkable as Dukakis' rise from Brookline High; Ed King's play with the Buffalo Bills was as fully the morning star of a remarkable career as Dukakis' marathon run.

King's tenure at Massport, like his later tenure as governor, was known for spectacular public relations failures. It was there that the environmentally minded started thinking about him in terms of "Yuk."

But a balanced judgment ought to include that King managed a public agency to astonishing growth without scandal and kept it in the black. In doing so, he made enemies, but also attracted the devoted following that produced his 1978 victory. King's tenure as governor has not been free of scandal, but once again he has presided over growth, and kept his "railroad" in the black. He has also honored more specific campaign pledges in a single term than most politicians do in a lifetime.

JOHN LAKIAN

John Lakian is the remarkable man who is the tragedy of this campaign. Some would say that a man who, in Francis Sargent's description, "shot himself in the foot" is not tragic. If so, they don't understand tragedy.

For Lakian's troubles, like Hamlet's are partly self inflicted and partly the result of circumstances. In other circumstances Lakian has been very successful. Another man in his circumstances a month ago would probably have been the Republican nominee, and might have been governor.

Lakian's tragedy (like Hamlet's) is that the circumstances he is in have been precisely the ones to expose his flaws. Freudians believing that man is the all-controlling architect of his own fate will say this was inevitable, but those of us with flaws know better.

In any case, it seems certain that Lakian is finished for the year. If he were a Democrat he might still have a chance. That is not because Democrats have lower standards, but because as an "endangered species" Republicans think more about the life of their party than Democrats. Republicans who aren't shocked by Lakian's indiscretions, or even admire them, will not vote for him because in their judgment he is no longer a candidate who can advance the Republican cause.

It is a shortcoming of our political civilization that while we "ambulance chase" after peccadillos, we are not big on old fashioned things like the redemption of sin. It would appear that Lakian will go the way of Martin Linsky (Sargent's first running mate for lieutenant governor in 1970). Like Linsky, Lakian is young enough and smart enough to be successful in another field; but as a political candidate he is probably finished.

JOHN SEARS

John Sears is a whole different kettle of traits. He is like Mike Dukakis in that he has passed up sure opportunities in other worlds and has stuck with his politics in good times and bad. Otherwise, John Sears invented himself.

With this article in mind, I went to see him last week at his 1826 carriage house turned town house on Beacon Hill. After an hour or so of highly stimulating conversation about life, history, architecture, and the reason Cohasset is in Norfolk County, not Plymouth County, I bashfully said: "Well, John, you know I have to ask you about this election."

It took my repeated prodding to get him to stop sharing his extraordinarily broad perspective and answer a couple of questions about the 83rd year of the 20th Century.

Sears is as unpretentious and unselfconscious as Dukakis is hanging onto a rattler strap. He is by far the most interesting "study" in the race, and like most Boston Brahmins he is bound to be misunderstood except by those who know history.

There are two things to understand about "true blue" Yankees. First, probably during the American Revolution, they learned how to think in terms of the sweep of history — and to think for themselves. With the long view in mind, they tend to be impervious to criticism. It's virtue and a fault.

Secondly, they come from the soil and the money they have made hasn't changed them much from the "swamp yankees" still doing small business and sitting on boards of selectmen in the greater part of the state.

It always perplexed Mike Dukakis that Frank Sargent ran the governor's office in barnyard English. Dukakis thought it was an affectation or a sign of insecurity. It was in fact nothing more than a "salt yankee" minding his vessel in a business suit. Blacks and liberals tend to have the same blind spot for the suited-up Irish who would have no more difficulty discussing the important things with their ancestors than Sargent or Sears with theirs.

Sears as governor would probably be impractical at times, but he would surely be interesting and innovative. As MDC commissioner under Sargent (a job he loved) he sent his people out to plant trees, and he kept sending them through whatever political and administrative quarrels his tenure produced. Today the quarrels are forgotten, but the trees he planted are reaching maturity.

Sears seems at heart an environmentalist. Not in the regulating Ralph Nader sense, but in the sense of a man with a deep feeling for the historic beauty of the Commonwealth, who is pained more emotionally than intellectually by violations of that beauty. And Sears considers ill-educated children and foul water-

Selectmen briefs

A NEW FIREFIGHTER

Selectmen appointed Paul Bilodeau as an EMT firefighter to the Cohasset department. He was scheduled to begin work this week.

JURORS CHOSEN

Selectmen picked two residents last week to serve jury duty in October. James McGee of Hill Street and David Chittim of Linden Drive were chosen for jury duty.

PAULDING RESIGNS

The resignation of Walter Paulding from the Cohasset Historic District Commission was accepted with regret by selectmen last Wednesday.

Paulding will be moving to California. Selectmen Chairman Henry Ainslie, Jr., said, "We wish him well in his new location." It is required that Paulding be replaced on the Commission by another architect.

CONTRACT FOR SPREADER

Selectmen voted to contract with Dyar Sales for a spreader last week. Though Dyar Sales was not the low bidder, Highway Surveyor Harold Litchfield told selectmen that the department was more familiar with this particular model and could make the necessary repairs.

DUMP CONTRACT SIGNED

Selectmen signed a contract last week for the expansion and eventual closing of the town's Cedar Street landfill.

The board contracted with Sealund Corp. of Marshfield for the $235,000 project. Work was scheduled to begin last week.

Expansion of the dump is expected to boost the life of the dump by six years or more. The old portion of the dump will be closed and capped with clay to comply with state requirements.

Sealund was the low bidder in the third round of bidding. Their's was the only bid below the town meeting appropriation of $240,000.

CIVIL DEFENSE DIRECTOR NEEDED

Selectmen announced last week that they are seeking a civil defense director for the town. The job pays $200 a year.

ways alike a violation of that beauty. Finally, I believe Sears would be good at saying "no" when necessary. Dukakis, who as governor said no too often to his left wing and lost his job, may have made too many commitments to the spenders to say no well this time. King will owe his defeat, if it occurs, largely to his inability to say no to his friends. Lakian, if he arises from the grave is likely to be so grateful for his resurrection he'll be reluctant to offend anyone for awhile. Card, with no executive experience, will have to learn to temper his earnestness with disagreeability. Thus, strictly as gainsayer, Sears is the leading candidate and that should count for something.

RACE IN A NUTSHELL

In a nutshell, the Republican race is between "new money" (Lakian), "old money" (Sears) and the "newpolitics" (Card).

The Democratic race is between those who have a lot to lose — including business people, homeowners and the middle class (King); and those who have nothing to lose or are protected from loss — including the rich, the poor, the educated, and the tenured (Dukakis).

Who will win? On the Republican side my hunch is that with Lakian's failure and Card's failure to reach a critical mass, Sears will win. On the Democratic side, I'd say Dukakis. King has run a superior campaign in terms of identifying his own issues. A low turnout plus Republican crossovers could do it for King.

But I believe voters in the middle — voters who don't care about the personal or idealogical rivalry between King and Dukakis — will vote for Dukakis for his reputation for honesty.

UNDECIDED

Finally, a word about my own vote. I am undecided, which is of no interest to the reader except for this reason: politics is my favorite printable passion, I know the candidates pretty well and I always have an opinion this late in a race. Not this time. This time I'll walk into the polls as into a confessional, and hope the authority of the place will show me my duty.

The significance of my confusion — mental defectiveness aside — is that we have a fascinating, volatile, historic race on our hands.

—Democrat—

Dramatic Club opens 62nd season

By David Wadsworth

The Cohasset Dramatic Club announces the beginning of this, its 62nd consecutive season of performances at the Cohasset Town Hall stage.

The Club's fall production will be playwright A.. Gurney's modern social commentary "Scenes From American Life." Tryouts for roles in the play will be held at the Town Hall, 41 Highland Avenue, Cohasset, Sunday, Sept. 19 and again on Sunday the 26th from 2 to 5 p.m. Anyone interested in taking part in the show is invited to attend and read for a role.

"Scenes From American Life" is a kaleidascope of events and vignettes...some poignant, some humorouse, others bitter, cryptic and prophetic. The play spans the decades from the early part of this century to the present...and a bit beyond. The setting is Buffalo, N.Y. The people are upper (and not so upper) middle class, and reflect the viewpoints and values of the upwardly mobile as well as those of the firmly entrenched segments of contemporary American society.

Each scene will be played as if the writer had flipped the pages of a family album and brought to life each suddenly observed moment.

For the Cohasset production of "Scenes From American Life" numerous roles of different types will be filled. Some representative characters are: A grandmother (of the Dowager Queen Kind), a Minister addressing his congregation, teenagers, young marries and not-so-young marrieds, and many others. Take your pick of character types. For the tryouts, readings may be made from the script or from a prepared (one minute) monologue or scene selection that displays the desired character type. Directing "Scenes From American Life" is Ellen Kelley of Weymouth, recently seen on the Town Hall stage in last year's productions of "A Man For All Seasons" and "Strange Bedfellows." Production Manager will be Jane A. Marshall of Cohasset.

The Cohasset Dramatic Club invites all persons interested in auditioning for roles to attend and read at the Town Hall tryouts. Scripts for "Scenes From American Life" can be obtained at the Cohasset Public Library (Paul Pratt Memorial Library). Dates of performance will be Nov. 11, 12 and 13.

Open house at South Shore Conservatory

An Open House on Sunday, September 12 from 2 to 5 p.m. will herald the beginning of the fall semester at the South Shore Conservatory of Music in Hingham. The reception will give guests the chance to meet the Conservatory faculty and staff and allow those who would like to register for lessons to do so.

Refreshments will be served by members of the Friends of the Conservatory who will also welcome visitors. Barbara Bliss of Cohasset, this year's president, is planning the afternoon with her committee.

No Conservatory function would be complete without music and members of the faculty will perform during the afternoon for the guests. Edith Auner, a new member of the piano faculty, will play classical selections. Kallin Johnson is also new to the faculty. He plays both jazz and classical piano and has chosen to play some jazz at the Open House. For those who enjoy the guitar, Mark Endresen will play during the afternoon.

The first show in the Staircase Gallery will be on exhibit for guests. The drawings and paintings of Cohasset artist, Joan Appel will be featured and the exhibition will continue until the beginning of October.

The Conservatory is located off 19 Fort Hill Street in Hingham and welcomes everyone to the Open House.

Building inspector resigns

Selectmen accepted the resignation of James Litchfield, the town's building inspector and zoning officer, last week.

He plans to leave his job at the end of the month. In a letter to selectmen Litchfield stated his reason for resigning as: "Due to the unprofessional way I have been treated by your board in various situations and now the holding up of travel allowance for the second time by the town accountant."

Jennifer Plante honored for Ride-A-Bike work

Jennifer Mary Plante is presented with her savings bond at the Ride-a-Bike awards banquet by Chairperson Florence Finkel.

Jennifer Mary Plante of Cohasset recently received a $100 U.S. Savings Bond for her success while participating in the 1982 "Ride-a-Bike for Mentally Retarded Citizens."

Jennifer, 8, raised $253 making her one of the top money raisers in the 16 and under age category of all participants in the more than 40 rides held around the state. Hundreds of people rode in the 11th annual fundraiser for the Association for Retarded Citizens/Massachusetts (MARC).

Over $1.8 million has been raised by the Ride-a-Bike through the efforts of the Massachusetts Teachers Association, which organizes students and others in many local rides.

Funds raised are returned directly and indirectly through the services MARC offers: citizen advocacy, public education, information and referral, seminars and workshops, a library and the representation of the interests of mentally retarded citizens at the State House, in Washington, D.C., and to various state, federal and private agencies.

They took a bicycle ride . . . across the country

By Donna Cogliano

Two young men recently peddled across the country on their ten speed bicycles. Ernie Studley and Mark Patrolia, both 22, completed their coast-to-coast in 28 days.

Their bicycling brought them through 12 states including: California, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York and Massachusetts.

The two cyclists, who were both 1977 CHS graduates, left June 16 and returned in mid-July. They flew to San Francisco and boarded their bikes shortly after landing. They assembled their bikes at the airport and traveled east — with no stops.

Patrolia, of Cedar Acres Lane, displayed the maps used and explained that for the most part they drove on old trucking routes. They didn't take time out to visit museums or parks along the way. They stayed on the road peddling some 10 to 12 hours a day.

They did make one must stop in Nebraska because Studley, of Hull St., had a severe tooth problem. The Nebraska dentist began a route canal and rid him of the pain, and because the dentist thought the bike trip was a great idea he only charged Studly $10. Studley appreciated the gesture since he had only brought along enough money to eat.

Each day was centered around three principal activities — eating, bicycling and sleeping. The twosome rode nearly 110 miles each day. They set out early each morning and rode till darkness or until inclement weather forced them to halt. They spent 10 to 12 hours riding each day.

To maintain such a vigorous level of exercise Studley and Patrolia did a lot of eating and drinking during the course of a day. They ate at least four times a day. Even with the increased eating habits Studley lost 17 pounds from the bike trip. Patrolia, who peddled cross-country once before, remained at his same weight.

The two Cohasset cyclists camped in a tent at roadside for most of the trip. They spent two nights at campgrounds and one night in a farmer's backyard. Over the 28-day trip they went for one swim in a lake and took one shower. And they didn't shave until they got back to Cohasset.

Patrolia said the most scenic part of the trip was through the Sierra Nevadas in California. Colorado was beautiful also, both Mark and Ernie agreed. Studley took a liking to some of the small towns in Indiana and Illinois.

The toughest part of the trip was the first two days during which they cycled uphill some 8,700 feet above San Francisco sea level. Studley said those days were painful because he hadn't put in the time in training for the trip.

It was a safe cross-country cruise for the two Cohasset natives. "We had very good luck," said Studley, "No dumps, spills, scratches or injuries." Patrolia had a confrontation with an antelope in Colorado. As he was cruising downhill the antelope ran in front of Patrolia but fortunately he was able to steer around it.

Another near miss occurred early one morning as Patrolia and Studley awoke. They were nearly run over by a herd of cattle.

Besides the corn and wheat fields Studley and Patrolia rode past many dead animals along the roadside. They saw remains of antelope, deer, rabbits, praire dogs and cattle that were struck by vehicles.

The secret to riding cross-country is to travel as light as possible, said Studley. "Our luck was so good. We kept to ourselves, didn't ask for too much help and didn't have any hassles.

"We always camped out at night," added Patrolia.

Both Studley and Patrolia quit their jobs to take the bike trip. Studley was an electrician at General Dynamics and Patrolia worked for carpenter Patrick Plante.

Patrolia said his boss was upset when he left to take the trip. But when he returned, he got his job back and a raise as well. Studley is still seeking work as an electrician.

Studley toured much of Europe by bicycle when he served in the Navy and would like to do some more touring there in the future. Patrolia hopes to make his next expedition, a bike trip from Alaska to the East Coast.

Now that Studley and Patrolia have returned, the days of eating cold beans, cans of spaghetti, fruit cocktail and bananas will not be key parts of their diet until the next trip. They continue to cycle some 25 to 50 miles a day around the South shore.

Dragon party

A Dragon Party in honor of the Cohasset youngsters who participated in Dungeons, Dragons, Castles and Keeps will be held Thursday, Sept. 16 at 3:30 p.m. in the parking lot of St. Anthony's Church.

The person who submits the fiercest, most dragon-like name will win the 12-foot green creature that has spent the summer in the children's room. GHS NEWS

. . . Opening day . . . PSO meeting . . . CHS standing . . .

Tuesday, Sept. 7 was opening day for students and classes began.

Thursday, Sept. 9, 8 p.m. P.S.O. Meeting, Room 107 C.H.S. - all parents are welcome.

Friday, Sept. 10, Girls Soccer at North Quincy. At 6 p.m. there is a Football Jamboree at Middleboro with 10 schools participating from the league, including Cohasset students.

COHASSET HIGH STANDING

The September 1982 issue of the Boston Magazine rated suburban high schools. The administration is pleased that Cohasset rated 9th in the Highest Mean SATs. The article also noted that although Cohasset was the smallest school in its athletic league, our athletes do well in golf, tennis, ice hockey, and gymnastics. However, some of the other statistics cited may be out of date or skewed for various reasons.

The report lists the 1980 per pupil expenditure at $2,256. However, the latest publication of the Mass. Department of Education lists Cohasset's per pupil expenditure for FY 1980-81 at $2,532. Moreover, the salaries and the per pupil costs for some towns may be inflated by high administrative costs. Superintendent Eugene Crowell reports, for example, that the salary of the Superintendent of Schools in Wellesley is $54,000. Their other administrators have historically been highly paid.

In addition, the report which claims that there is no band or orchestra at Cohasset High School is misleading. Although there were only 1½ Music Teachers at the High School last year due to Proposition 2½ cuts, the half-time teacher gave private lessons the additional ½time. There was a marching band for football games. This year there will not be a marching band, but Supt. Crowell persuaded the Cohasset School Committee to fund a "Stage Band," which is new to the High School.

The Cohasset School Committee has funded two full time music teachers for this year. Director of Guidance John Leary, reports that the following music classes are available this year: Senior Chorus, Barbershop Chorus, Guitar, Junior Chorus, General Music, Junior Jazz, Junior Band, Senior Band, Jazz Ensemble, Electronic Music, Junior Electronic Music, 7th-8th Grades General Music, and Music Horizons. The latter offering is for students who wish to take a music class, but can't fit it into their regular schedule, eg. Guitar instruction.

The course also includes some music theory. Classes are generally small, so there are openings, and every attempt is made to personalize instruction in the small classes. If parents are interested in having their youngsters add music courses to their schedules they should inquire of the guidance department.

PSO sets agenda for first meeting

The Cohasset Parent-School Organization will hold its first regularly scheduled open meeting Thursday, Sept. 9 at 8 p.m. in Room 107 of the High School.

Following the regularly scheduled committee reports will be a school representatives' report on meetings with principals to discuss present volunteer activities.

Also reporting will be Sue McNamara, P.S.O. Activities chairperson, who will give an update on the fall orientation meeting planned for Tuesday, Oct. 5 at 7:30 at the High School. Parents new to the school system will be invited individually to this multi-media persentation.

A special committee report by Chairman Ed Atkinson will follow, revealing the progress of a school systemwide activities calendar to be distributed in October.

Old business will include the appointment of a fundraising chairman, discussion of dues, P.S.O. goals, and of grievance procedure guidelines.

Of special interest on this agenda under the heading of new business is the discussion of parental concern regarding school bus problems. Comments from parents are welcome here and administrative observations will be presented as well.

Gridiron Club kicks off the 1982 season

The Cohasset Gridiron Club began the 1982 season with the election of the following officers: Peter Conway, President; Pat McCarthy, Vice President; Bob Donahue, Treasurer; Bob Walls, Secretary.

During the past 12 years the Gridiron Club has given out between $20,000 and $25,000 in scholarships. The funds for the scholarships come from the sale of ads for the club's yearbook. The book is distributed door to door by the members of the football team.

This year the books will be distributed on Sunday, Sept. 26. There will be a sponsor's page and a patron's page and the donation for each is $10 and $5 respectively. A letter has been sent to parents of students in grades 7 through 12, soliciting sponsors and patrons.

Anyone who would like to be either a sponsor or patron may send a check to the Cohasset Gridiron Club Scholarship Fund, P.O. Box 223, Cohasset.

Another fundraiser for the club is their annual dinner dance, which this year will be held at the Cohasset Golf Club on Friday, Nov. 19. Tickets will be available soon through members of the club.

The Gridiron Club urges everyone to come to all the Cohasset football games and cheer the boys on. Cohasset has always been known for their strong support of the football team.

The Gridiron Club would like to thank all those who have been so supportive of the club's work on behalf of the football program.

Strawberry Parfait advances in playoffs

The Strawberry Parfait softball squad captured two wins this weekend over the Hingham Police 'A' team to advance into the Championship series of the South Shore Civic League.

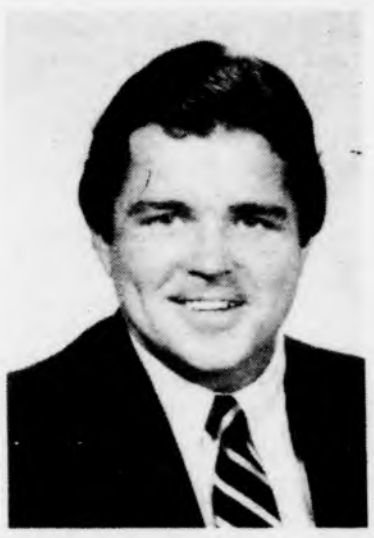
In the finals next weekend Strawberry Parfait will face the Benchwarmers of Marshfield. They will play at 10 a.m. in Marshfield. The Strawberry Parfait team will be shooting for their third championship trophy. Three of five victories are needed to win the finals.

Against Hingham on Saturday the Strawberry Parfait team notched a come from behind, 14-10, victory. On Sunday the Cohasset squad triumphed, 9-7. Robert Swain and J. Fiori were key hitters for Strawberry Parfait during the semi-finals.

Strawberry Parfait finished the season in third place and had lost to Hingham (second place) twice during the regular season. Marshfield was first in the standings. Anything can happen in the playoffs — that's when teams get hungry, said a Strawberry Parfait player.

The purpose of the Cohasset Boosters Club

The Cohasset Boosters Club is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to promote and encourage participation in all sports at Cohasset Junior/Senior High School.



The club is comprised of volunteer parents and membership is open to everyone. There are no dues — only a willingness to work toward the continuation of our high quality sports program. Meetings are held approximately once a month; announcements appear in local papers.

Appreciation dinners for coaches and student-athletes are held at the end of each sport season, with the awarding of "Spirit" trophies which emphasize good sportsmanship. Other support is in the form of a scholarship program, team equipment and donations.

Through our efforts and contributions, $3,800 was given to the school sports program during the 1981-82 school year. Some of our fundraisers were sales of the famous "Cohasset Sweater," food concession stands at basketball and wrestling events, and a most enjoyable mid-winter dance.

Many thanks to all the people within the school system and the community at large whose cooperation and support have contributed to our most successful year. Everyone's efforts and encouragement are very much appreciated.

Three Cohasset softball girls return from New Mexico

By Donna Cogliano

Three Cohasset softball stars recently competed at the Nationals in New Mexico in the 18 year-old and under amateur fast pitch softball tournament.

Cohasset High School senior Gia Barresi, sophomore Carla Lucas and recent graduate Stacy Thompson earned the chance to compete with the best in the nation last month when their team, the Weymouth Pirates won the New England Regionals.

The three Cohasset ladies spent eight days in New Mexico but were eliminated from the tournament during the first day of competition. In the opening round of action the Pirates beat a Michigan team, 6-1.

It was a double elimination tournament. The Weymouth squad then fell to Chicago, 6-0, and Colorado, 8-1. Though Weymouth was bumped off in the opening day of softball they were one of the few New England teams to win a game in a National series. Other New England teams had been eliminated in the opening two games.

The Weymouth Pirates finished 17th in the National Tournament amongst 31 teams. "We had some real tough competition," said Barresi, "especially fromt he western teams." Two California teams f. ed first and second. She said the western teams played like professionals.

Barresi played catcher for the Pirates and Thompson was stationed in right field, while Lucas guarded third base. Lucas was the youngest member of the squad.

Thompson and Barresi were named league all-stars and competed against the Canadian Military All-star team. As an added bonus Thompson, who will attend M.I.T. this fall, was unanimously elected by the league coaches.

Weymouth Coach Marty French noted that Thompson, in right field, threw out three runners at first base during the Championship game of the New England's.

French spoke highly of the three Cohasset ballplayers. "They are three of the nicest kids I've ever met. They're a real credit to the town. We've been very lucky to have those three."

After winning the New England's the Weymouth squad had only 11 days to raise $11,000 to take the New Mexico trip. Thompson single handedly raised $1,000. And at the Mid Summer Stroll festivities the Merchants competed against Strawberry Parfait in a benefit softball game to help the cause.

Wipe that smile off my face

By Lois Martin

Once upon a time I saw a young woman running down the street in Ellsworth, Maine laughing aloud. I looked behind her and saw no one sharing the mirth, no apparent reason for her gleeful race. And a week or so later I heard that lovely girl had been taken to a state hospital where people with mental problems live. She, they said, was a schizophrenic.

I've thought of her off and on, hoping she hasn't spent her life there. And she came to mind recently after I read a Boston Globe story about how people who smile too much cannot expect to succeed.

Of course the woman I referred to is an extreme example. But it's altogether true that society holds suspect people who go around smiling.

The article said women smile more than men and consequently they won't be rising on the corporate ladder. Also we tilt our heads, said the writer, and we lean back in chairs.

Add all that to a distracting smile and you've got yourself a woman, they implied, who won't go far.

Well, I'm sensitive to that kind of commentary because I'm guilty of grinning. And I know from past experience that makes me a suspicious character.

Take your classroom, for example, a teacher knows darn well that someone sitting there with a broad smile has to have been up to something. Actually in that situation I got indicted because I used the opposite tactics. If I'd been responsible for disrupting a classroom, I'd put on what I considered my most studious expression. Trouble was that meant I was the only one in the room who wasn't laughing uproariously. Therefore I was found out.

By the time I got to college one might have hoped I'd apply a more serious demeanor to my course of study. Well I tried. And I took a radio speaking course to get ready probably for the "Voice of America" with a Maine accent.

Our finals were in the spring. Part of the test was to deliver a commercial from within that little glass enclosed radio room.

I drew Welch's Grape Juice as my sponsor. Seated with aplomb, I began to read the copy. Suddenly I thought it was the funniest material I'd ever seen. Bob Hope, Jack Benny, Joan Rivers had never come across anything so funny.

And I started laughing, all the while burbling about Welch's Grape Juice. My classmates rewarded me with uncontrolled laughter outside my little glass room. The advertisement was completed between my gasps for air as my instructor shut off my microphone.

I got a "C." When I went to talk with him about it, he wasn't there. They said he'd had a nervous breakdown. There's still this smidgen of guilt about my part in that.

But you watch Kathleen Sullivan giving the ABC news on "Good Morning, America." She's serious about it. And it's only when she starts to give her name that she released her lips to form a grin. Frank Reynolds does that too. No matter how dispairing the news, Frank wishes you well at 7:30 and shows his teeth.

When I 'cover' meetings I restrain my smile. It would look odd to see someone chuckling to herself at a liquor license hearing or one for the Advisory Board's budget recommendations or even for a door to door sale of decals.

If you notice men on commercials don't smile when they talk about "Tide."Women are more inclined to grin over the deoderant ads or the 'flush bowl' commercials. Frankly, I'd never get through one of those without having my face light up like I was facing Jonathan Winters.

People fishing or playing golf don't smile. I wouldn't either if someone made me do those things. And playing the horses isn't a reason for grinning.

Trouble is some of us have inverted behaviour. Sometimes we don't smile like sometimes other people do. More often than not we're cheerful.

And that makes us look foolish. No one in her right mind, society suggests, goes around with a smile on unless... she's crazy or stupid.

Well, there you have it. If I want to get ahead in this world I've got to wipe this silly smile off my face. And if I ever get a shot at television reporting you'll see one sober cookie telling you about the traffic jam on the Expressway. With my luck a truck filled with Welch's Grape Juice will have overturned.

CHS Drama Workshop rehearsals for Sept. debut

While other Cohasset young people have spent their summer evenings aiding PacMan in his escape from monsters, watching television reruns, or lounging at the beach or in front of Curtis, a dedicated group of aspiring actors and actresses have spent many of their hours in the hot, stuffy confines of the Cohasset High School Auditorium preparing the Drama Workshop's first production of the 1982-1983 season, Paul Sills' "More from Story Theatre."

The play, which will be presented Sept. 18 and 19 at the High School, is a sequel to the production which won the state drama festival in 1979. It blends comedy, fairy tales, mime and music to form a concoction that will entertain audiences of all ages.

Under the direction of Ron Emmons, the cast of 15 has improvised around the basic script, blending characterizations suggested by such diverse elements as "E.T.", "Hogan's Heroes," and "dragnet" with mimed excerpts from '50's rock, musical comedy, and blues and classics to create a unique production.

Heading the cast are seniors Maureen Buckley and Andrew Long along with juniors Nancy Walls and Kurt Hochkeppel. Also featured are freshman Jacqueline Fahy, sophomores Lisa Perotti and Sarah Muir, juniors Jenny Mitman, Michael Laitta and John Replogle, as well as seniors Susan Douglas and Samantha Barrett. Appearing also are sophomore Jeanine Buckley and juniors Tammy Karcher and Suzie Barrett. Serving as stage manager is senior Sean O'Connor.

The Sept. 17 and 18 performances will mark the beginning of a busy year for members of the Drama Workshop. In October they will present a one-act play competition among plays directed and acted by students in the various grades. In December they will assist the Music Department in their first school-wide musical comedy production, "Grease."

In February they begin competition in the state drama festival with an original contemporary adaptation of Shakespear's "Twelfth Night," prepared especially for the group by their director Ron Emmons.

☐Village Tours and Travels has relocated to a new and larger set of offices, at 4 Stagecoach Way, beside The Greenhouse.

They are having a registration for a free mystery trip and anyone may stop by to register and see the new office.

☐Six residents of Cohasset have begun work on Associate in Science degrees in health care at Laboure Junior College in Boston:

Nancy Fernalld of Forest Avenue, a 1949 graduate of Onondaga Central High School, enrolled in Radiation Therapy Technology;

Janet Jordan of Atlantic Avenue, enrolled in Respiratory Therapy;

Enrolled in Laboure's Nursing (R.N.) program are Anne Lalli of Doane Street, a graduate of Montgomery (W. Va.; High School;

Ann Parziale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Parziale of Bayberry Lane, a 1980 graduate of Cohasset High School;

Therese Rossignol of Atlantic Avenue; and Anne Donovan of King Street, a graduate of Notre Dame Academy, Hingham.

Laboure Junior College is a private, co-educational college conducted by the Daughters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul.

It is the only two-year college in New England, and one of only two nationwide offering degree programs exclusively in health care.

☐Everett "Evie" Dorr, former teacher, coach and athletic director of Cohasset High School, has joined the Florida Sales Office of Punta Gorda Isles, Inc. located at 950 North Main St., Randolph.

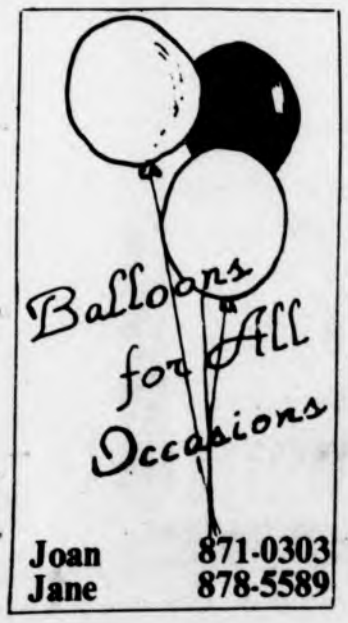
Evie is a former member of Boston University's Hall of Fame and the Massachusetts Football Coaches Hall of Fame.

Call Evie, if you plan to visit Florida this winter or for your future retirement in the Sunshine State. Home: 545-1087 or 986-4100 office.

☐Lots of new kids in town. Jane Goedecke, who in the past year or so has put a new punch into the ASF Program, reports there are two new seniors at Cohasset High School: Anne Koehrer from France and Jaime (Jim) Stallard from Paraguay. When we talked to Jane last week they were practicing field hocky techniques and soccer skills, respectively, hoping to make the Cohasset squads. Jim is residing at the home of the Karcher's on South Main Street. Jane said both students will be formerly introduced to the student body at an assembly to be held in the near future.

☐By this publication Judy Perry of High Strain Road has introduced her "new" six year-old Columbian daughter to the entire neighborhood, which has been waiting with as much anticipation as Judy for Marsol Perry to "come home." Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Perry are the new grandparents, and according to the neighbors, Marsol has lots of relatives in Provincetown who are wild to get a look at their new relative.

Marsol has a built-in neighborhood friend, Candice Buckley, who will help her through the paces at Osgood School where Marsol and Candice will both be in the first grade.



Marsol's mother, Judy, teaches at a Hingham elementary school. Her class last year showered her with toys, puzzles, jump ropes and every conceivable toy that a six year-old could possibly need.

☐How embarrassing for A.J. Antoine. A.J. unsuspectingly spent a quiet vacation on Bassing Beach last week, only to arrive home and discover just about every other car in town with a bumper sticker yelling; A.J. Antoine will be 50 on 9-5-82. I think it was nasty of Tom Healy to do that, A.J., I really do.

☐On the other hand, Merle Brown's family had a little more consideration. Merle, a member of the conservation commission and Scout Master of Troop 28, turned 50 last Friday. His family held a quiet celebration, in due respect to his advanced age. Good luck good health in the second half of your century, Merle!

☐Rose and John Maloney celebrated their 26th wedding anniversary recently. They were unable to celebrate it on the day it happened as John was interviewing candidates for pupil/personnel services at Sharon High School. Such is life, John and Rose.

☐The Maloney's daughter, Diane, recently touched base in Cohasset in between interning at Memorial Hospital in Hollywood, Florida, for the summer and returning to school at Northeastern where she is a junior in physical therapy. Rose and John Maloney are rightfully proud of Diane, who has been on the Dean's list from Day 1!

☐Mr. and Mrs. Chet Magee recently returned from a vacation at Wiers' Beach in New Hampshire where they visited with friends from nearby towns. "You know what they say," Chet said. "Make it in Mass., spend it in New Hampshire."

☐Connie Parker celebrated a birthday last Thursday. It started out kind of wild. There was an early deadline this week so we'll have to catch up later.

☐Jack Conway supporters will meet at Hugo's on September 15 from 7-9. Rita Strong has tickets. Call for more information.

☐Pat Saef has teamed up with Arlene Ferreria at the Country House on 3A (behind the Bound Brook Artisians). Both women have an outstanding array of good collectibles, wickers and fine quality used furniture. Look for the wicker carriage on the street!

Program on nuclear war

South Shore residents concerned about nuclear war are invited to a meeting Wednesday, Sept. 15 at the Rockland Trust Company's Cushing Room at Cushing Plaza.

A group of parents and educators will sponsor the 7:30 program.

A speaker from the national chapter of Educators for Social Responsibility will familiarize the gathering with its aims and structure.

There will be an opportunity to discuss the national "Day of Dialogue" which is planned for this October as an event to take place in all high schools. Informational packets for this event will be made available to participants.

An open forum, focusing on the subject of nuclear war and responsible and effective methods of incorporating this subject into the curriculum will be presented.

People who want to assist in forming local chapters of Educators for Social Responsibility on the South Shore are encouraged to attend.

Search clause holds up CHS drug & alcohol policy

By Tanna Kasperowicz

Attorney Jack Slater of Town Counsel's office, has thoroughly researched the proposed CHS drug and alcohol policy, recommending that the "search and seizure" portion of the document may have to be dropped unless supportive court decisions can be found to justify its inclusion.

Several weeks ago that portion of the proposed document caught the attention of the American Civil Liberties Union which questioned the legality of its inclusion in the CHS proposed policy.

School Committeemen and women discussed the proposed document and counsel's recommendations at some length Monday, saying they could not release the document to the press until final legal revisions were made in several areas. They referred the document to Town Counsel's office, further suggesting that in the future the press should direct all questions to Attorney Slater.

When asked if the search and seizure portion of the document would make the entire policy moot, School Supt. Eugene Crowell said that the powers of the school committee are different than the powers of the police and that this question would be explained by Town Counsel.

"Reasonableness (as it refers to search and seizure) is defined by statute," Crowell said, adding, "The criteria for reasonableness would also be identified."

According to Crowell, Atty. Slater's opinion is that the school committee has the perogative to develop policy. "Slater's role is to help us to make our position safe, and to in turn safeguard the rights of the student."

Committeeman Jack Langmaid questioned whether students have search and seizure rights in the home and whether they had constitutional rights.

"The constitutional rights of children are much the same as adults," Crowell said. "And there is a trend for children's rights at both the Federal and state levels.

"Town Counsel is saying we had best investigate carefully the rule of reasonableness regarding search and seizure proceedings."

Crowell said the 1893 Federal statute for constitutional rights is also being more commonly used by youngsters in the courts. "Although the Massachusetts statute does not speak to search and seizure, the Federal constitution does. And the courts are leaning toward the support of the Federal Constitution."

School Committee Chairman Diana Kornet noted that the present proposed policy would not be legal until filed with the state. "Due process requires that individuals have fair warning."

Crowell also said that the committee's present policy of allowing only certain school administrators to dispense prescription drugs to students was presumed to be an illegal measure. "We cannot take drugs from a child and then distribute them to the

Clark to leave exec. secretary job

By Donna Cogliano

That familiar face around town hall won't be working in the selectmen's office for long.

The town's executive secretary, Arthur Clark, has decided to retire as soon as a successor is named.

Clark is planning to hand in his resignation to selectmen at their Thursday meeting this week. At age 74, Clark said, "I think the time has come for me to move along. I didn't intend to hold the job forever. I have a lot of things I want to do...some visiting here and there. I think the time has come to turn it over to someone else."

This summer Clark was unable to take a vacation because of the heavy work load at the selectmen's office. "This year has been the busiest. I've never seen a summer like this. It's been so busy, I haven't felt that I could take a vacation," said Clark.

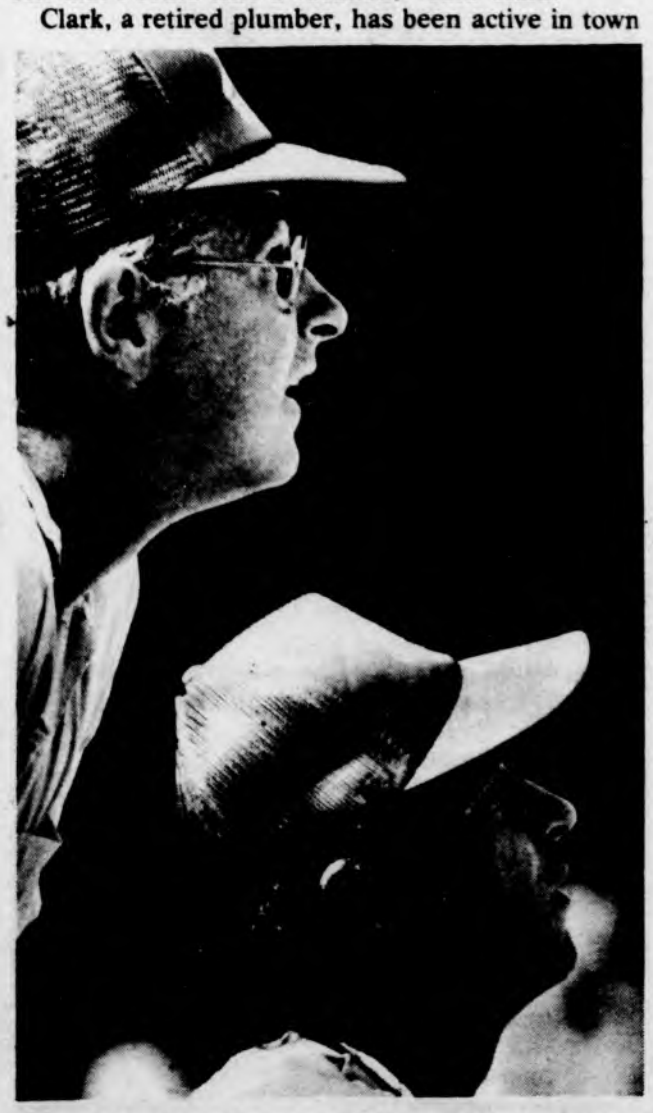
Clark, a retired plumber, has been active in town government for more than a half century. Since age 21 he had attended every town meeting and has voted in all town elections.

He has held numerous positions on town boards. He served on the board of selectmen from 1967 to 1981 and was chairman of the board for 12 years. He was a member of the school committee for 12 years and was chairman his last two years.

Clark served on the school committee during the Depression when teachers were required to leave the school once they married. With those rules Clark said the budget was kept at a minimum since few teachers climbed the ladder of seniority in regard to pay raises because they married.

He was a water commissioner for three years and an advisory board member for six.

Selectmen Chairman Henry Ainslie said Clark has contributed a tremendous amount of service to the town both as selectman and executive secretary. He's been instrumental in many town programs and he'll be missed, said Ainslie.



"He has devoted a good part of his lifetime to the town," said Ainslie, "I'm sure that in resigning he will still be interested in town affairs. We're sorry to see him go but we knew he wasn't interested in staying on too long."

In appointing Clark as executive secretary more than a year ago, Ainslie said selectmen felt it would allow for a smooth transition when Clark retired as

Wanted: building inspector & 2 chiefs

Selectmen will be working simultaneously during the next few weeks in naming a building inspector, fire chief and police chief.

The board advertised in a local newspaper this week to fill the vacancy of Building Inspector Jim Litchfield whose resignation becomes effective at the end of the month. The deadline for applications is September 24. Selectmen plan to interview candidates for the job during the week of September 27.

Police Chief John DeBassio's resignation becomes effective Monday and selectmen are uncertain as to whether an acting chief will be named at Thursday's meeting. If a decision is not reached Thursday, selectmen chairman Henry Ainslie, Jr. said the meeting would probably be recessed so that an acting chief could be named before DeBassio leaves.

At the close of last Wednesday's selectmen's meeting the board went into executive session to discuss police personnel and did not return to open session.

Selectmen will interview the eight fire chief finalists during the next two weeks. Last Wednesday the board met with Roy Fitzsimmons of the fire chief selection committee to discuss the interviewing procedures which were used by the committee.

Fitzsimmons suggested that selectmen use the same criteria in the committee's June 18 report when interviewing candidates. He warned that only the highest educational degree and current employers had been verified of the three finalists.

Fitzsimmons said committee members would be willing to assist selectmen with the selection process. Ainslie said, he thought both boards were on the same wave length in regard to interview questioning. "I don't think it would be appropriate to have the committee active in this phase of the (selection)," said Ainslie.

"We would like to act as independently as possible...and not be directly influenced by what has been done before," he said.

Selectman Mary Jane McArthur said, "Thank you for your offer, I'm sure we'll be in touch with you. We have to plan what our approach will be."

Ainslie concluded, "We appreciate your offer to help and we'll take you up on it."

The eight fire chief finalists are: Victor Cail of Reading, a deputy fire chief in the Reading

Cohasset's week...

Advisory Board meeting

The advisory board met last night (Tuesday) with selectmen to discuss transfers for EMT training and for special counsel regarding the proposed 91-slip Marina of William Figueiredo.

New Health Board fees

The board of health unanimously approved a new fee schedule for review of subsurface and/or miscellaneous disposal plans.

The following rates were approved by the health board 2-0 with Marilyn Sweeney absent. Percolation and water table tests will be supervised for $40 which includes an average of three hours or a half day. A disposal works construction permit costs $20 per lot.

A proposed disposal system which requires outside engineering consultation will require a $1,000 deposit. The developer must maintain a minimum balance in the account of $500. The unused portion of the deposit will be returned to the applicant.

Subdivision reviews cost $100 per lot and the developer must maintain a minimum balance of half the subdivision review cost. The unused portion of the deposit will be returned to the applicant.

The new fee schedule became effective this week. In other action, the board approved rules and regulations for the town dump which will be puclished in the Mariner next week.

Surplus cheese program

Cohasset will take part in a federal program for the distribution of surplus cheese to eligible families and individuals Thursday, Sept. 23.

Dale Langford, president of the Social Service League of Cohasset, has announced that Cohasset's application to the Massachusetts Department of Education, which is handling the program, was approved early this summer, and that the cheese is now ready for distribution, in five-pound packages. Families of four or fewer members will be allowed one package; larger families will be eligible for two packages.

The cheese will be distributed at two sites: at the Cohasset Town Hall, 9 a.m.-3 p.m., Thursday, Sept.23; and the Recreation Hall, 60 Elm St., from 3-5 p.m. on the same day.

Anyone who is eligible but unable to pick up the cheese at the designated times, may call the office of the Cohasset Social Service League at 383-0771 during office hours before Sept. 23 to make arrangements for pick-up or delivery.

Proof of eligibility must be presented at the time of pick-up. Those eligible include residents receiving federal aid in the form of food stamps, AFDC, SSI, Medicaid, WIC, State Home Care — Title 20 and the Veterans' Aid.

Arlene Orr retires

Assitant Town Treasurer Arlene Orr retired Friday after serving 10½ years in the treasurer's office at Town Hall.

Orr, of 8 Sankey Rd., was honored by friends and fellow town employees at a luncheon at Hugo's Lighhouse Restaurant. "I love my work," said Orr, "I really like it and that's why I hate to leave." Orr will be replaced by Elizabeth Ripley.

CATV Committee meeting

The next meeting of the CATV Advisory Committee will be held on Thursday, Sept. 16 at 7:30 at the Town Hall.

As of Tuesday afternoon the selectmen's office had received two preliminary bid proposals. The bids were due at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Selectmen meeting change

Selectmen will not meet tonight (Wednesday); instead they will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. The meeting was changed so that Selectmen Rocco Laugelle and Henry Ainslie could attend the Norfolk County Advisory Committee's budget meeting on Wednesday evening.

Digging graves for funerals and the dust problem at Wheelwright Park from horseback riders are scheduled topics on the selectmen's agenda for Thursday.

child." There is a potential liability if the drug is not properly administered, Crowell said. "Prescribed drugs must be considered legal drugs."

Kornet suggested that students and parents might waive this measure, agreeing to register prescription drugs through the school nurse, using the staff as a clearing house.

Other committeemen asked about very young students, i.e., 1st Graders, who could not be capable of administering their own prescriptions.

When Nancy Clapp asked about the policy of other schools with regard to this legality, Crowell responded:

"We seem to be pioneers in this matter. What goes on in X, Y, and Z schools might still be illegal."

Langmaid suggested that after Atty. Slater reconsiders the policy the committee consider going to the legislature with some type of immunity legislation should voluntary waivers ultimately be discovered to be illegal.

"Camps have these kinds of waivers," Mrs. Clapp said.

Crowell said he didn't know the immediate answers to these questions, but it was felt by counsel that an individual cannot legally sign away his constitutional rights. He referred again to the 1893 case and due process of the individual.

Selectmen sent a letter to all eight finalists last week asking them for a response — to find out if they are still interested in the Cohasset fire chief vacancy.

Body of Norwell girl found in Little Harbor

Seventeen year-old Lynne Adler was scheduled to begin her junior year at Norwell High School last week.

Tuesday she was reported missing by her family, and the next morning her body was found in Cohasset's Little Harbor.

Edward Long of 31 Nichols Road found the Norwell teenager at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday while he was rowing his boat in the harbor. She carried no identification and was wearing the same clothes she had on Monday evening when her parents last saw her.

An autopsy performed by medical examiner, Dr. Roger Pompeo, and state pathologist, George Katsas, showed the girl had drowned with no visible sign of injury. First tests also showed no traces of liquor or drugs.

Sgt. Dick Barrow is investigating the drowning with state police detectives. Cohasset Police Chief John DeBassio said Monday, "As far as we know everything seems to be consistent with accidental drowning. We don't have all of the information that we need to terminate the investigation."

He said, neighbors, friends and relatives of the girl, including her Monday night date, had spoken with police. Police have traced her activities to 9:30 p.m. Monday when she was reportedly brought home from her date.

DeBassio said police are puzzled as to what she was doing in Cohasset and why she was there.

Norwell High School Principal Dr. Anthony Bahros described Lynne as "a good school citizen. She had never gotten into any kind of difficulties at school."

A memorial scholarship fund drive is being set up by a close friend of the Adler family. The scholarship would be awarded to a graduate of the 1984 senior class, which was Lynne's scheduled year of graduation.

Lynne lived with her parents, Ronald and Sandra Adler, at 164 Bowker St. in Norwell.

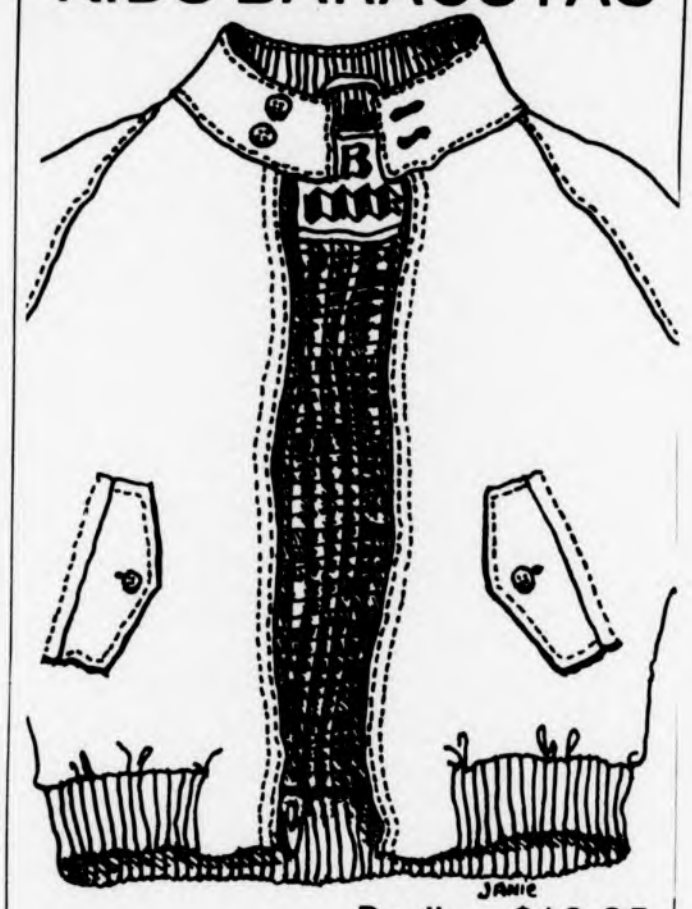
selectmen chairman.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle said a person can't say enough about the years of dedication Clark has given to Cohasset. "He's given the town so much of his free time. I for one certainly appreciate it and I'm sure the town appreciates it."



Laugelle said Clark is a great person and a dedicated American to the town of Cohasset.

Selectman Mary Jane McArthur said, "Arthur has given a lot of service to the town. He worked hard over the years and I think he deserves a vote of thanks from the community. He's earned a well-deserved rest."

School Board tackles the 7th grade & football issue

There's been a long-standing and written policy at CHS that football is for boys in grades 8-12.

Nevertheless, three 7th Graders inadvertently bypassed that policy for a short three-day period recently, when communications between coaches and school administration briefly broke down.

Clark Chatterton, CHS Athletic Director said of the incident: "We have never allowed a 7th Grader to play football except when we had a junior high team." He added: "Every boy in the lower grades knows 7th Graders can't play football from our assembly programs on the same."

When Committeeman Richard Conley noted that 7th Graders are involved in other contact sports such as ice hockey and wrestling, Chatterton said that was "another issue."

Conley, who brought the matter to the attention of the committee, said one of the 7th Graders had been actively involved in Pop Warner football and was very enthused about playing football for CHS.

"His parents feel because 7th Graders can play hockey the rule is not fair in this case. We need to make that information available to parents" (rules regarding weight requirements, etc.), Conley said, adding that some clear-cut school committee policy was needed in this particular area.

Based on a recent discussion with Dr. Robert Sceery, CHS physician, School Supt. Crowell said his recommendation would be negative. "One of the boys in question weighs 101 pounds and is not yet 12 years old."

According to Supt. Crowell, Dr. Robert Sceery, CHS physician, is against 7th Graders playing football for a variety of medical reasons, namely the delicacy of bone structure in a youth this age and muscular development which could increase the chance of life-long injury for such a youth.

Supt. Crowell added that several years ago Dr. Sceery placed a proper football playing weight at approximately 115 pounds, a weight the Pediatric Academy advises as being a safer weight for this particular contact sport. But even more recently, Crowell said, Sceery said that weight was far less important than muscular considerations.

MIAA regulations do state 7th Graders can compete, CHS Principal Streeter said.

Supt. Crowell added that the school's insurance policy had no grading on the issue.

Other issuses muddying the waters were the fact that one of the 7th Grade boys' personal physician had said the child was able to play football. The present school committee policy is vague to the extent that it appears to allow either the school or personal physician to make this determination.

School Committee Chairman Diana Kornet agreed the present policy was ambiguous and urged the committee to refer to Dr. Sceery several questions about contact sports in general and the role of the school versus the personal physician.

In general, the committee appeared to agree that Dr. Sceery would have the last word on the matter and that football would stay in the realm of Grades 8-12.

But Committeeman Nedrow said he felt the issue shouldn't be tied to a grade. "The policy shouldn't be so tight that it can't allow for exceptions."

Jennifer Pool of Cohasset modeled a spirited look for Fall '82 in the annual Back-to-School Fashion Show at Lord & Taylor, South Shore Plaza.

Bicyclist Ernie Studley placed 11th in the Quincy bike race this past weekend. Mark Patrolia won the race but did not arrive in time to get in this photo. He was riding his bike home from Fitchburg State College. He had the best time in the citizens' race on Sunday.

Cyclists fare well in Quincy race

Two Cohasset bicyclists had superior finishes in the City of Presidents Cup bike race in Quincy on Sunday.

Mark Patrolia of Cedar Acres Lane won the citizens race and Ernie Studley of Hull Street placed 11th.

Studley was in the leading group with Patrolia which finished the 26.2-mile marathon course in one hour and two minutes.

For a warm-up Studley and Patrolia cycled across the country last month in 28 days. The two 1977 CHS graduates bicycled through 12 states during their coast-to-coast tour of the country.

With a quarter of a mile left in Sunday's race, Patrolia broke away from the leaders for the victory. Studley who was in the lead for most of the race, said he was disappointed in not catching Patrolia.

A pothole caused wheel damage to both Patrolia's and Studley's bikes. They think that they both hit the same pothole during the latter part of the race. Patrolia had a broken spoke in his rear wheel while Studley's front wheel was bent. Fortunately they were able to finish the race.

Besides the cross country trip both Cohasset men trained extensively for the race. Patrolia is commuting to Fitchburg State College on his bike and Studley averages some 50 miles of riding each day.

Norfolk County gets $

Gov. Edward J. King and Secretary of Energy Margaret N. St. Clair recently announced the awarding of $1.764 million in Alternative Energy Property Program (AEPP) Grants.

"The grants being awarded to some 40 towns, cities, municipalities, regional and State agencies will not only help to save valuable fuel but also will save taxpayers thousands of dollars in energy operating costs throughout the lifetime of these facilities," said Gov. King.

Norfolk County Commissioners received $21,500.

around town

☐It's been a fun summer. All of you worked very hard, strained your brains, to provide me with news of you and your loved ones. I hope you will give Sally Ann Chatterton (383-0560), your new Around Town Columnist starting with next week's column, that same cooperation.

☐A few years ago Sally Ann wrote a food column for The Mirror Newspaper and did some lecturing on good nutrition. She is a gourmet cook and a strong and serious supporter of many community organizations, as is her hu band, Clark, who is also Athletic Director of Cohasset High School.

☐I will be keeping in touch with the Mariner through some features now and then an have some other plans which I'll fill you in on later this month, through Sally Ann.

☐Hope many of you gave blood last week. There's a very good feeling about doing that kind of thing, especially if you've ever been on the receiving end. The local Red Cross group which organized the blood-giving did a fine job. They called to make appointments before hand this time, so it was difficult to forget to go.

☐Here's an important date: girls in the 4th, 5th or 6th Grades who would like to register to become members of Junior Girl Scout Troop 4339 should do so, with a parent accompany them, Thursday, Sept. 16 (tomorrow night) at the Second Congregational Church from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. If it's impossible to make that registration, call Laurie Mullen at 383-1237. Registration fee is $3.

☐Sorry, several weeks ago we inadvertently left out the names of Joseph and Pat Laugelle who were also in attendance at the Eric and Evelyn Pearson party for the law enforcement officer in the Virgin Islands.

☐Town Hall employees held a luncheon at Hugo's for Arlene Orr, who recently retired as Assistant Town Treasurer. According to friends, Arlene received a lovely gold bracelet and Town Treasurer Gordon Flint gave quite a tribute. Approximately 23 persons were in attendance, as well as Selectman Chairman Henry Ainslie and Selectmen's Executive Secretary, Arthur Clark. Arlene retired after 10 years of dedicated service.

☐Mrs. Robert (Betty) Ripley replaces Arlene as Assistant Town Treasurer. We talked to Betty briefly last week who says she really loves her new job. Formerly Betty worked for the school department as a bookkeeper.

☐A note from the offices of Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray: bids will be opened Sept. 18 for the repair of the lights at Ripley Road and Sohier Street, an important school intersection. The cost of the project, $30,000.

☐There's a rumor circulating on the Common that Carol Martin has changed her mind about the color. When most women change their mind, it does not require a public hearing.

☐Carolyn and Dick Horn had guests last weekend...old college chums from New York, Tom Holland and Maryanie. Tom was in the same fraternity with Pete Chapman and Dick Horn at Bowdoin College in Brunswick, Maine. Tom picked 50 pounds of grapes from the Horn's grape arbor for Carolyn to jar.

☐The Cohasset Riding Club wound up its summer season in the pouring rain with their Junior Horse Show last week.

☐Yes, Courtney Shultz, we saw you with your cute little Dealy Bopper at Chapman's tack party last week.

☐Regina Shultz was in charge of the annual awards night for the Flying Scots last week. She really did herself in this time, film, music, the whole works! Awards were as follows :

☐Bob Smith was recognized for having spent 20 years at the tiller of the Skylark and received a platinum-coated tiller.

☐Roger Porter received a paper towel tube in which to store his new pennant and fabric softener for his new sails.

☐Pete Chapman received liquid stock in cardboard containers for next year's races (he's allergic to aluminum).

☐Terry Young got a Hallmark Datebook for 1983 — to keep his crew in line.

☐Ray Kasperowicz received a cassette entitled "Sailing to Win." The tape was made by Karin Bartow...and subtitled "Thirty Minutes' Trip to the Finish Line." It will be donated to Paul Pratt Library as part of his estate.

☐Pete Goedecke got a spare centerboard and rainbow reminder to secure same.

☐Steve Bartow, a personal liability insurance policy, along with bandaids.

☐Jerry Shultz, Pete Conway and Dick Horn got bubblegum, string and scotch tape to help keep their boat together, and matched pairs of red and green socks.

☐Chet Ellis, winner of the Captain's Cup, received a sanitary-wrapped self-bailer.

☐And Rob Henry received a lovely embroidered towel labeled DNF (Did Not Finish). Ironically, he was not there to accept his award.

☐Want to get rid of your rabbit, your dog, a cat? See the Chapman's on Forest Ave. Just tell them the animal in question will be put to sleep the very next day if they do not adopt it. More on that next week.

☐John and Nancy Kinchla are in charge of finding a super place for a haunted house for the Cohasset Community Center which would love to do that project this year. John said the house needn't have ghosts — "The Community Center will supply the ghosts."

☐Selling stamps at the post office might appear to be one of the easiest jobs in the world, but post office people reportedly had a difficult time trying to please the artistic tastes of one customer last week who rejected a stamp with the historical Jewish Temple in R.I., and a stamp with Jackie Robinson on it, opting for 800 American flags, finally, but not happily.

☐Remember! Call Sally Ann with your news this week!

A new kind of communication at CHS

In just a few short weeks, approximately 12 juniors and seniors will be learning how to communicate, listen and relate in a caring way to junior high school students through a program which is being developed by the CHS guidance department.

If you've ever had a big sister or big brother at college who helped you to puzzle out the maize of questions which confronted you as a frosh, then you'll understand the intent of the program.

Ms. Mary Babaian and Mrs. Ann Porter, career counselors in the Guidance Department, told the school committee about their recent intensive one-week course in peer counseling at Monday's meeting, saying the Visiting New England Accredidation Committee started them thinking about this program last year.

Ms. Babaian noted that a similar, successful program has been in existence at the Dover-Sherborne School for the past 10 years and both women have interviewed staff involved in the program.

According to the counselors, students will be trained to help other students, particularly transfer students, new 7th Grade students and other students who might need a good listener.

Ms. Babaian said students have always provided younger students and peers with information about courses and teachers. "Now we're going to get a handle on it. But they'll do it with a little more finesse."

She noted that many younger students feel the guidance department counselors are only program changers. "Some of them do have problems in their families."

The training program will be on-going, and participating peer counselors will be asked to devote quite a few hours to the program.

"Confidence is important and the need for it will be pounded into them (peer counselors)," Ms. Babaian said.

Training of the students will begin in two weeks.

At first, peer counselors will meet with their "clients" in the new guidance department conference room and in other free rooms throughout the school. But eventually, they will also meet their "clients" outside the school and after school when it is felt a more comfortable relationship can be established.

Commuters irate over poll hours

Several Cohasset citizens were annoyed this week when they learned that the primary polls did not open until 10 a.m. Tuesday at town hall. According to Assistant Town Clerk Frances Marks the 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. hours has been the past schedule for the primary voting only. Other town elections begin at 8 a.m.

She said state law requires that polls be kept open for a minimum of 10 hours. It is also mandatory that the polls stay open until 8 p.m. which is why Cohasset opens later rather than earlier.

Town Clerk Charles Marks recommended the 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. voting hours to selectmen. The board approved those hours. Town officials report that voting hours are kept to minimum for the state primary because of budgetary limitations.

Some 700 resident citizens had voted in Cohasset as of Mariner deadline, 1:50 p.m. Tuesday and Marks expected that figure to double before evening.

Color can be a most effective decorating tool when it comes to creating the illusion of expanded space. One way to visually enlarge a small room is through the use of a monochromatic color scheme. This technique is based on the repetition of one color throughout a room in its various color graduations from pale to deep. In this way, a smooth harmonious feeling is created. There are no sharp color or pattern contrasts to impede the eye's flow through the room's elements. Obviously, it is necessary to choose a single color that will not become boring or overpowering.

It has been noted that the reason American women are such poor home decorators yet so well dressed is that they change clothes several times a day while their homes look the same year after year. Whether you have a modest or unlimited budget, BOUND BROOK PAINT & HARDWARE, can offer you some new and exciting decorating ideas. We're easy to fine in N. Scituate at 763 Country Way and our phone is 545-3642. We're here Mon-Wed, 8-6, Thurs & Fri 8-8:30, Sat. 8-5 and honor Master Card and Visa.

DeBassio's departure

Fall 1980: When the community discovered him a party was held in his honor. He shared the honors of that particular day with the then new School Superintendent, Eugene Crowell.

Residents formed long lines to meet the two men and their families...two professional men, who, it was hoped, could provide Cohasset with firm leadership and guidance.

After that cocktail party two years ago any and all similarities between those two men ceased.

Supt. Crowell fitted neatly into the school administration, working with a school committee accustomed to dealing with professionals. He had the customary honeymoon and then settled down to work. His committee was prepared to take his advice. It was also prepared to deal with him financially, as time would tell.

On the other hand, Police Chief John DeBassio had a honeymoon with residents that never really ended. The honeymoon with Selectmen was shorted-lived. No one is sure of the exact date it was over...but it was over somewhat before the infamous "Ainslie issue." Was he too popular with residents ...were his new ideas too new?

Was there a turf problem? Will there always be a question of turf between Selectmen and any Cohasset Police Chief? Will Selectmen be able to establish turf rules before a new chief takes over?

Political insiders say maybe some of the above was involved. They put it more bluntly: "Selectmen hired a professional cop and they didn't know how to deal with a professional cop. They didn't tell him just to go buy stamps. They told him the denomination, the color, where they should go on the envelope, and what side of the street to walk on while going to the post office."

Why did we lose him?

Certainly, we lost DeBassio for financial considerations. He came from Brockton at a $15,000 cut in pay. In that second year (last January) Selectmen offered him a $1,000 increase. He had asked for $2,000, but might have been willing to negotiate for $1,500.

In the meantime, "the other" professional in town, School Supt. Crowell, received a $3,000 increase. And Crowell got yet another $3,000 this month. Did DeBassio notice?

And then of course there were the "chain-pullings," after the "Ainslie issue." The meetings between DeBassio and the Selectmen for which there was no other rationale other than for Selectmen to ask, "Did you learn your lesson?"

Residents were embarrassed when the conversations of those meetings were published, in three local newspapers. Residents reacted. Through petitions. Verbally. In print through letters to the editor. And finally, through an article on the Aug. 30 Special Town Meeting Warrant which will substantially change the membership of the Board of Selectmen at 1983 Annual Town Elections. That last action was a message.

Be it resolved that Police Chief John DeBassio has been an outstanding professional police chief in the Town of Cohasset for the past two years and that the town of Cohasset and its residents will miss his leadership.

A resident had the above resolution ready for the Aug. 30 Special Town Meeting but missed the opportunity to present it. We think it pretty well sums up Cohasset's feelings about its outgoing police chief, who leaves his post Sunday.

The dark roots, light ends set

By Claire McDonough

Some time ago Erma Bombeck hypothesized that children must think when women hit 40 they turn blonde. Well, I'm not about to mention any numbers, but I've joined the dark roots/light ends set.

I didn't do it all at once. I bought a product that's supposed to act on your hair like the sun, gradually turning it lighter. It took me three weeks to work up the courage to use it, then I sprayed approximately three and one-half drops on my dampened hair, used a blow dryer, and went forth expecting people to gasp.

"Good heavens, Claire! Whatever have you done to you hair?"

No one noticed.

I returned to the bosom of my family and waited for a shower of compliments.

Three weeks and 12 applications later I asked, "Does anyone like my hair this way?"

The Dragon reluctantly tore his gaze from "WKRP in Cincinnatti."

"It needs to be cut," he mumbled.

No one else even looked.

I gazed at the mirror and sighed. It was probably just as well that there wasn't a dramatic change. People might mistake me for Loni Anderson and keep asking for autographs. Could get to be a drag.

I dumped the rest of the bottle on my head and turned the blow dryer to its highest setting.

The following morning the Dragon, Breida, Skipper and I were out (at 6 a.m.!) campaigning for the candidate of our choice.

The sun rose a little after we did, and when the first rays hit my head the Dragon looked at me suspiciously.

"Have you done something to your hair? The color looks different."

"I think it looks nice," Breida said loyally.

"I don't," Skipper muttered darkly. "She doesn't look like Mom any more."

"Who do I look like?" I asked eagerly. "Are her initials L.A.?"

We paused to wave and smile at some early commuters.

"They're H.M.," he replied. "Harpo Marx. When you're older, will it turn purple?"

I continued to wave and smile, snarling through my clenched teeth.

"I know someone who's not going to get older if he doesn't watch his mouth."

The Dragon kept staring at my head.

"This is probably the only opportunity I'll have to ask," he said. "Is it true blondes have more fun?"

I shrugged. "I don't know. You're the first to bring it up. And you asked if I do. You didn't ask if I will."

He nodded. "Maybe I'll write to Loni Anderson."

Social Service League

To the Editor:

The Social Service League of Cohasset provides a service of which many residents may be unaware: Meals on Wheels.

Every day, except Sunday, a hot meal prepared by the Red Lion Inn, is brought to people who are ill or shut-in or who need a nutritious meal at least once a day but are unable to prepare it for themselves.

The cost to the individual over 60 years of age is $1.55, the balance being paid by the Council on Aging. For those under 60, the charge is $2.

Anyone, of any age, who needs this service, either temporarily or on a long-term basis, should call the League at 383-0821. The meals are delivered between 11:30 and 12:30. People on special diets are not eligible.

Chairman,
Meals on Wheels

Parent School Organization

To the Editor:

PSO stands for Parent School Organization — no hyphen, and while students are the reason we exist, they are not mentioned in the name. Thanks!

Selectmen briefs...

STREETLIGHT REQUEST

Frederick Thayer sent a written request asking selectmen for additional streetlighting near his proposed 100 Pond Street condominium development.

The board said it would consider adding a streetlight at the new Pond St. intersection, once it is created.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle said light companies have come out with a new brighter, yet less expensive streetlight. He said there is a sample light on Highland Court. Scituate is installing some 300 new non-glare lights while Norwell is having the entire town renovated.

Laugelle said the lights would be installed free of charge. He suggested that with the new, less expensive, lights some of the lights which were shut off last year could be turned back on. Selectmen agreed to discuss the lighting situation at an upcoming meeting.

MILITARY UNIT TO FORM

Selectmen took under advisement a request from Bruce Collins, of 36 Ash St., to organize a British Regiment for parades and various ceremonies.

Collins needs permission from selectmen to form the military unit which would be based in Cohasset. Selectmen favored the project but wanted more information before granting permission for the group to organize.

PARKING FINES COLLECTION

Selectmen have signed a contract with DP&W Inc., of Boston, for collection of the town's parking fines. The Boston company is expected to begin work for the town this month.

CABLE TV TRANSFER

A $1,500 transfer request from the Cable TV committee has been approved by selectmen. The transfer would pay the costs of a final hearing, stenographer and other administrative costs. The request will go before the advisory committee.

JUNK LICENSE REQUESTED

Selectmen have tabled a request from Ross Rosano for a junk license. Rosano, of 325 North Main St., wants permission to store scrap metal on Rosano Lane.

HANDICAPPED PARKING

A request for additional parking for the handicapped in Cohasset Village is being considered by selectmen. Dr. Daniel Bonetzky of Stagecoach Way has requested that two additional parking spaces be reserved for the handicapped — one on North Main St. and one on Stagecoach Way.

CIVIL DEFENSE DIRECTOR

The position of Civil Defense Director for the town is vacant. Selectmen hope to appoint a director soon. The selectmen's office has one applicant for the job.

Assessors worry over default of appraiser

Chairman of the assessors Brian Wilkin updated selectmen last week on the town's 100 percent revaluation status. There's a possibility that Thomas Mahony might default on his contract to reappraise all property in town to the full market value, he reported.

Mahony said Monday he had no comment on the matter but that he would have some information at the end of this week. Meanwhile town officials are awaiting a response from Mahony to a letter which assessors sent to him Friday.

If Mahony decides not to complete the town's reassessment work the matter will be turned over to Town Counsel J. Blake Thaxter for a recommendation.

Wilkin said Mahony had completed reappraisal of the residential properties which were undergoing adjustments on the computer. It would probably take another month to complete work on the commercial properties, he said.

The town's reassessment process began in August 1980 and was supposed to have been completed in July 1981. When Mahony finished his work earlier this year it was rejected by the state Department of Revenue. The state wanted further documentation on how the appraiser had calculated property values.

Wilkin said, "We don't relish the idea of announcing to the town that the contractor has defaulted. But if we sit here and do nothing we'd be criticized just as much."

The board of assessors voted last Wednesday to to ask the state for permission to allow the town to send out estimated tax bills as soon as possible.

Assessor Warren Pratt said reports about the possibility of the contractor defaulting were premature.

Anti-casino legislators to meet in Hartford

L.A.N.C.E. "Legislators Against New Casino Establishments" formed and initiated by State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray and Senator Steven Casey of Connecticut, will hold their third meeting Sept. 16, at the State House in Hartford, Conn.

L.A.N.C.E. is predominantly a New England group of legislators but also includes representatives of Florida, Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey.

New York Assemblyman Passannante works closely with the "No Dice" anti-casino group in New York and recently halted the rush for Casinos in his state. Rep. Murry has been helping CACG, (Citizens Against Casino Gambling) the Massachusetts Anti-Casino Committee. Senator O'Connell of Pennsylvania is extremely concerned because the casino industry has targeted the Pokonos resort area and he has successfully combatted it there.

"The casino industry," said Murray, "continues to push and has a big budget to bring the facilities into Massachusetts.

"All Legislators and state officials are invited to join in combatting this insidious type of gambling in Massachusetts.

"I also urge that all citizens of the Commonwealth who are willing to work to keep casino gambling out of this state to please contact me at the State House."

The anti-casino group monitors what they term the cancer of legalized casino gambling and co-ordinates strategies in opposing the casino gambling industry in the region. Their purose is to contain the cancer where it lies and keep it from spreading.

The last meeting was hosted by Murray of the Third Plymouth District (Cohasset, Hingham and Hull) at the State House in Boston. One of the top speakers was New Jersey's Assemblyman Chuck Hardwick, Assistant Whip who spoke on the deplorable effects Casino Gambling has had on Atlantic City, the City and State officials and the people. The assemblymen's eloquence stunned the audience coming from a New Jerseyite considering the casino industries contradictory claims regarding Atlantic City.

Mary Jeanette went on to say, "Casino interests, as other special interest groups have done in the past, parlay the states against each other. Proponets have consistently stated that Massachusetts should have casino gambling now because New Hampshire will have it and we will lose out on revenues. This reasoning is used in every state as a scare tactic.

Chatterton seeks Booster money for soccer

Clark Chatterton, CHS Athletic Director, asked the school committee this week to transfer money from the Booster Club fundraising account to subsidize two [illegible] soccer programs for boys and girls at the junior high level, if necessary.

Chatterton said 86 girls and 82 boys went out for the soccer programs this year, with approximately 40 students being cut from each program.

Both Chatterton and the committee agreed that the enthusiasm was there, particularly from the girls, and that an intermural program might best be able to harness it.

On a motion by Committeeman Joseph Nedrow, it was voted to allot a maximum of $1,200 to be used by the Junior High Fall Sports Program, the final amount to be spent and the type of program to be determined by the school administration.

Chatterton also reported that 39 students went out for football this year; 27 students play on the sub varsity squad. No cuts were made.

Neither were any cuts made in field hockey, or in cross country, where 19 students made the squad. Chatterton did say a girls' cross country team (five girls are needed to complete the team) might not be possible this year. But girls presently participating will still run with the boys.

Soccer league action begins Sept. 25

League play for both divisions will begin on Saturday, Sept. 25. Team rosters and schedules will be given out that day. However, a team coach will call to tell you where and when to meet on the 25th.

Weather permitting, there is a five game schedule plus two weeks of playoffs. Call the recreation office any Saturday morning after 8 a.m., at 383-6791, if in doubt whether a game will be played.

In the event of a canceled game, please follow the schedule as indicated for the following week; make-up games will be played at the end of the regular schedule if time permits.

Grades K through 2 will not be a part of the regular league. They will meet separately for instructional soccer and scrimmages on Saturday mornings beginning Sept. 25.

Kindergarten participants and first grade will meet from 8:30 - 9:30 p.m.; second graders from 9:30 ; 10:30 a.m. (Osgood School Field.)

All players, except grades K to two, will be required to purchase a team shirt. The cost will be $2.70, payable to 'Goodwin Graphic.' Purchases will be made through the team coaches. Only sneakers or rubber cleats may be worn; shin guards are advised. Players should dress as weather dictates.

PROGRAM COORDINATOR

James Gallagher will be the Recreation Department program coordinator this year. Jim is a member of the recreation commission, and has been involved with a variety of sports programs for children and adults.

Team coaches and assistant coaches are always in demand. If interested in helping out, please call the Recreation Office at 383-6791, between 7 and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. T-shirt checks should be brought to team coaches on Sept. 25.

Strawberry Parfait downed in finals

In the finals of the South Shore Civic League softball playoffs, the Marshfield Benchwarmers defeated Strawberry Parfait twice. The Benchwarmers need only one more win to capture the title and trophy.

In any case the Strawberry Parfait team must bring their defending trophy to this Saturday's 10 a.m. game at the Beechwood ballpark — just in case they lose. If the Cohasset team wins three in a row they would earn their third title, giving them ownership of the league trophy.

On Saturday the Benchwarmers crept past the Strawberry Parfait squad with a 10-9 victory. On Sunday the Benchwarmers triumphed 9-7.

Player-coach David Pomarico said his team made several fielding and mental errors. The squad hasn't been hitting lately, either, he said.

Even though the Cohasset squad is down two games and in danger of losing the championship, most of the players are confident that they will turn things around this weekend. Strawberry Parfait player Bob Sylvia, who is superstitious, has threatened to take back the diamond ring he gave his fiancee last Friday. Since the engagement became official, the team hasn't won a game, he said.

Jay Fiori, Robert Swain, Paul Laugelle and Joseph Pomarico have turned in steady performances for Cohasset.

Fall season offerings at the Art Center

The South Shore Art Center will open its Fall season with two exciting events — a watercolor demonstration by Virginia Avery at the Fall Open House and reception to meet sculptor Walter Horak — both taking place on Sunday, Sept. 19 from 5 to 7 p.m.

The demonstration will begin at 5 p.m. in the Center studios at 103 Ripley Road, Cohasset.

Walter Horak will be present in the Invitational Gallery to discuss his sculpture which was featured this month on the cover of "Folio."

The Fall Open House will also feature a student exhibit in the studios with refreshments being served both in the studios and the Gallery. Teachers for the Fall term of classes will be available to discuss their classes and registrations will be taken during Open House.

Classes that will be taking enrollments are: "Drawing on the Right Side of the Brain" with Syma; Pastel Portraits with Pratt; Drawing with Moore; Calligraphy with Bell; Portrait with Micarelli; Printmaking with Abany; Watercolor with Patrick; Using the figure in a Painting, Farbush; Introductory Painting, Tandy; Experimental Workshop, Burbank; Seeing Selectively, Weirs; Creative Drawing & Painting, Kalish.

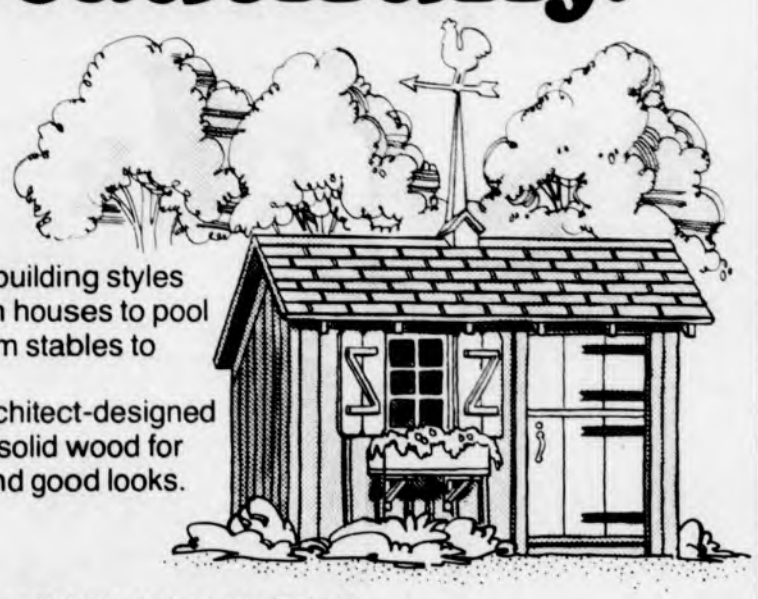
After school workshops at the Art Center

"Art as an exciting part of every-day" could well be the theme of the complete art program that the South Shore Art Center has planned for young people from first grade through High School age. Classes and workshops for after-school will begin the week of Sept. 27 but enrollments must be made in advance.

For the younger set, ages 7 to 12, there will be a class with Syma in Children's Clay on Mondays from 3:30 to 5:30 and a class in drawing and painting at the Children's Art Workshop on Wednesdays from 3:30 to 5:30 with Susan Rodgerson.



Basic skills are taught in a fun-filled format that encourages children to use their imagination and native creativity. All supplies are furnished in the class fee and classes are kept small for individual attention.

The Young Artists program is again being sponsored by the South Shore Playhouse Associates. For a detailed schedule and registration forms telephone 383-9548 or drop by the South Shore Art Center at 103 Ripley Rd., Cohasset between 12 and 4, Monday through Friday.

The Junior High age group has its own workshop that is a combination of learning drawing and painting while using a variety of materials to create original work. Serena Brundige will be the instructor for this workshop to be held on Tuesday afternoons from 3:30 to 5:30. Students will be asked to furnish some of their supplies.

Well-known artist Rosalind Farbush will instruct the High School Workshop that will meet on Thursday afternoons from 3:30 to 5:30.

Level II: for those with some prior experience, depending on the ability of the class, attempts will be made to study the styles of contemporary artists such as Simon and Garfunkel, Neil Young and James Taylor.

Required material: Pitchpipe and instruction book of teacher's choice. Rentals: guitars will be available for rental for the course, $15.

Roger Shaffer has studied performance guitar at Berklee College of music. He presently performs classical and fiamenco guitar at private functions, art festivals and religious services, either solo or with flute accompaniment. He also is owner of Roger's Music Co. in Cohasset Village.

Drama Club tryouts

A friendly reminder: The Cohasset Dramatic Club begins its 62nd season with its fall production of playwright A.R. Gurney's modern American social commentary "Scenes From American Life," to be presented on the Town Hall stage Nov. 11 to 13.

Tryouts will be held at the Town Hall this coming Sunday, Sept. 19 and the following Sunday the 26th from 2 to 5 p.m.

The fall production will be directed by Ellen Kelly and Production Manager is Jane A. Marshall.

The Dramatic Club invites all interested to audition; first-timers as well as experienced theatrical performers will be welcome, and everyone will have an opportunity to be chosen as a member of the cast of the Club's fall play.

If you have an interest in community theater be sure to attend the tryouts.

Actors, actresses and production workers will be needed for "Scenes From American Life," and in the next few weeks the Cohasset Dramatic Club's activities for this season will be getting into full swing.

Chamber Orchestra auditions

The South Shore Chamber Orchestra will hold auditions for its 1982-83 season Sept. 22 and 23 from 7 to 10 p.m. at the South Shore Conservatory of Music, off 19 Fort Hill Street in Hingham. There are openings in all sections at this time.

The South Shore Chamber Orchestra is composed of amateur and professional musicians from the South Shore/Boston area, chosen by audition, who perform music written for the smaller orchestral ensemble.

During the 1981-82 season the orchestra performed works such as Stravinsky's Pulcinella Suite, Elgar's Serenade for Strings, Haydn's Concerto in D Major, Schubert's Symphony No. 5, Haydn's Symphony #98 and various other chamber works for wind and string ensembles. Three performances are scheduled for this year with the first one to be presented in early December.

For information about auditions and for an appointment, call Nancy DeKorte at 479-1864.

This is the first of 10 montly tours which will take place on the 3rd Thursday through June. Registration for the series must be made at the Art Center in advance.

The morning tours will focus on contemporary art and often include visits to artists' studios in the Boston area.

"Exploring Visual Arts" is an individual program led by Beverly Stanley who received her Masters in Art History at Tufts University.

It's too early for 'senioritis'

By Lois Martin

There he was, dressed for his first day of school. His new Snoopy pencil case hung from his belt. His Dukes of Hazard lunch box sat on the kitchen table. His freshly cut hair breezed by his forehead as it dried from the morning shampoo.

The thing was, though, he's an MHS senior, 17 years old.

And he was my son.

In ungilded tones I asked him what in heaven's name he was doing, with a little lunch box and pencil case. I limited myself to those items, ignoring the neon colored disco rock notebook.

He said, "Aren't they excellent?" His grand peer group had plans, it seems, for starting off school, their 12th year, with swell lunch boxes and crayons. One friend, Alison, had been beating the bushes all week for an E.T. lunch box. Mike had a nifty little one for Pac Man, a prize from a party.

And Terrence, well his, he gloated, had an unbreakable thermos with a flip up lid. Nothing was packed in it, a relief.

He answered my question about his outfit, that consisted of Saturday morning quality jeans and a tee shirt (originally a gift to me) that claimed windsurfing championship on the back and an imported beverage on the front.

He said he'd started school 11 years in a row dressed like Poindexter. This year was different. As for his red socks, there was no special meaning. They were the only ones left in his drawer, he said.

I'd found a handsome green sweater and plaid shirt for the little fellow on a mannequin in preparation for his first day at school. But he said he'd wear new clothes next week.

As for his disco rock notebook, he said, "Isn't that stupid, disgusting? I hate disco." I wondered, that being the case, why he had the book. I concluded the goal for the day was to find something they wouldn't be caught dead with and use it.

He unloaded his little Snoopy pencil case, a birthday gift from a friend, and put a wee blue ruler on the table, his "physics ruler." There were assorted crayons and a built in pencil sharpener.

He was heady with the success of his costume.

What's more, his friends had garnered a two toned green van on which they draped crepe paper of spirited colors and a sign: Seniors Bus.

When the girls called for him, they all seemed to be girls, I went out to check the dress. There were on one seat, jeans, shorts and knickers.

That morning everyone at work had a first day of school story about how fussy their kids were getting ready for school. One woman's 13 year old son had his new outfit picked for days. Once at the kitchen table though, he toppled his glass of orange juice on the new jeans. Next he unruffled his coiff by running back home for forgotten lunch money.

I listened with nostalgia about how the child wanted to look magnificent in new duds...how he wouldn't be caught dead with any kind of lunch box, let alone the Dukes of Hazard, whose theme song Terry hummed while he chuckled.

The kicker, perhaps, was the autographed signature the 17 year-old forged inside his disco rock notebook, which will probably be left inside an innocent person's locker. It said, "Have a good year. We'll miss you at the Metro. Your Dude, John Travolta" (in lavish script).

That final touch on, he nearly collapsed with the exercise of his own sense of humor. The seniors bus arrived and he piled in with that gladsome flock of senior women.

It's too early for senioritis. I can't begin to treat that disease until April or at least January. And I tell you, if I had this morning to do over again, that young man would have had a big glass of orange juice on the edge of the table near his chair.

On the other hand, if I had my senior year to do over again, I'd still choose the Wonder Woman lunch box.

from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

It's nice for all concerned when someone in their midst takes on cooking as a hobby. Happily they nibble at the latest experiment in cookie baking, serve willingly as guinea pigs and devour the newest casserole and, if they're smart, sing praises to the cook who has determined to master the art of making bread. Margaret Ward spends many a happy hour in the kitchen, preparing meals for her daughter and son-in-law with whom she makes her home, whipping up luncheons for her friends, preparing goodies for the Marshfield Fair where she has won many a blue ribbon. Fortunately, she also reads this column and shares many of her favorite recipes. Here is her

HAM AND CHICKEN LUNCHEON DISH

1/4 c. butter
1/4 c. flour
1¼ c. milk
1/2 c. chicken broth
1/4 c. white wine, or pale dry sherry
1/2 tsp. curry powder
Salt and pepper to taste
1 c. diced cooked chicken and 1 of ham
1/4 lb. sliced mushrooms, or a 4 oz. can drained mushrooms
2 T diced pimento

Melt butter and blend in flour. Add milk and broth gradually, stirring constantly. Bring to a boil, still stirring and cook until thickened. Lower heat and stir in remaining ingredients, one at a time. Simmer 10 min. stirring occasionally until thoroughly heated. Serve in patty shells, or toast cups or over rice. Serves six.

Many a clever woman has won laurels for a hobby that began as an outlet when the children were young and a night out at class was a welcome diversion. Cake decorating, art lessons, quilt making, flower arranging, sewing; all these hobbies have sometimes led to productive careers and so it was that Margaret Ward turned her talents to entering contests. She writes: "I came in as one of the top 10 in Massachusetts in the Pillsbury contest. I won four other prizes with it. It can be eaten at any meal and serves 12." This is what she is referring to:

CRANBERRY SWIRL COFFEE CAKE

1 stick butter or margarine
1 c. sugar
2 eggs
2 c. all purpose flour
1/2 pt. sour cream
1/2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. almond flavoring
1 8 oz. can whole cranberry sauce
1/2 c. crushed nuts.

Cream margarine, add sugar gradually. Add unbeaten eggs, one at a time, using mixer at medium speed. Reduce speed and add dry ingredients that have been sifted together. Alternate with sour cream, ending with dry ingredients. Add flavoring. Grease 9" tube pan. Put a layer of batter in bottom of pan, then a layer of whole cranberry sauce. Repeat twice more with cranberries on top. Sprinkle with crushed nuts. Bake in 350 oven for 50 min. Remove from pan after 25 min. Drizzle with

GLAZE FROSTING

3/4 c. confectioner's sugar
1 T warm water, more if necessary
1/2 tsp. almond flavoring

* * *

A kitchen drawer bulging with recipes waiting to be tried is par for the course when you like to cook. Here's one from mine:

RUM FUDGE BROWNIES

1/2 c. butter or oleo
4 oz. unsweetened chocolate
4 eggs
1/2 tsp. salt
2 c. sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
1 c. sifted all-purpose flour
1 c. chopped walnuts
2 T light rum
1/4 c. confectioner's sugar

Melt butter and chocolate in double boiler. Cool. Beat eggs with salt til light and foamy. Add sugar, 1 T at a time and vanilla while beating. Fold chocolate mixture gently into the eggs, then fold in flour and nuts. Bake in 9x9" well-greased pan at 350 degrees for 25 min. Cool for 15 min., then pour rum over warm brownies. When cool, sift confectioner's sugar over top.

SPELLING WORDS

The CHS English Department has established a spelling-word-a-day to be learned by students. Parents might want to check their youngster's spelling this week of the words: height, humorous, hungry, immediately and independent.

BOOSTERS' INSIGNIA SPORTS CLOTHING

Rosee Duffee, Boosters Chairman, reports that available from the Boosters this year are acrylic navy V-neck Cohasset sweaters at $15; three-season navy jackets at $25; hooded grey sweatshirts at $10; and grey sweatpants at $8.

INDEPENDENT ART CLASSES

According to Principal Richard Streeter, and Guidance Director John Leary, a new Art I class, meeting Period 7 alternate even days, under the direction of Mr. Lucas, has been established for independent art work.

FOOTBALL

Athletic Director Clark Chatterton notes that 39 students are on the Varsity football roster from Grades 10-12, and that the Sub Varsity has over 20 8th and 9th Grade students.

CHEERLEADERS

Varsity Football Cheerleading fans this year should welcome two new cheerleaders, Ingrid Anderson and Jill Ryan, to the 12-member squad. Co-captains are Ellen Ciciotte and Joy Ditmar. Coaching again this year, is enthusiastic Janet Ditmar. The Sub Varsity Cheerleading squad has eight members.

AFS

Parent Officers this year are Mr. Alexander Spooner, president; Mrs. Alexander Spooner, vice president; and James Urmson, treasurer. Student Selection Coordinator, Jane Geodecke, announces that any Junior or Senior Class students interested in living abroad next year, either for the summer for for the school year, should come to the meeting with their parents in the CHS Band Room in the Junior High wing at 8 p.m. Thursday, this week.

Limited scholarship funds are available from the Cohasset Chapter due to the successful auction held last year. Loan and scholarship funds are also available from the national AFS organization.

SCHOOL BUSES

In response to parent anxieties, this year, as a result of the pre-school conference between the administrators and bus drivers, Superintendent Crowell has spelled out the following procedures regarding student behavior:

1. Bus drivers are to notify the school principal as soon as a student exhibits inappropriate behavior and not wait until late in the year. On the first occasion, the principal will discipline the offending student by talking to the youngster or by requiring the child to remain after school, depending on the severity of the situation.

On the second offense, the student will be off the bus for the next day. Subsequently, the student may not be allowed to ride the bus for at least a week and parents will be responsible for transportation.

2. Neither students nor bus drivers are permitted to smoke on the buses. The school department has nine drivers, six of whom have multi-years experience in Cohasset or in other towns.

COMMUNICATION CHAIN

At the PSO meeting Thursday night, Sept. 9, Cohasset Teacher Association President, Latin teacher Thomas O'Neil, urged parents who have a personal problem regarding their child should go through the "chain of command."

First and foremost, he stressed, they should request a conference with the child's teacher to try to resolve the situation. Only after this should they approach the principal, and if the situation is not resolved at that level, then the Superintendent should be consulted, and finally, a letter may be written to the School Committee.

ENROLLMENT

As of Sept. 13, 1982 there were 1,398 students attending Cohasset Public Schools. Supt. Eugene Crowell said an "official" enrollment figure will be taken Oct. 1, from which all future budget considerations for next year will be made.

HIRING

To be placed on a future agenda: a policy on hiring procedures and a policy on warnings and notices; also a goals work session.

REPORT ON RIPLEY

School Committeeman Richard Conley noted that William Ripley, former superintendent of CHS is progressing nicely from recent injuries, and may soon be moved closer to home.

REAGAN RESIGNATION

School Committeeman Joseph Nedrow moved that the resignation of Garrett Reagan, assistant ice hockey coach, be accepted with regret and that he be wished the best of luck, since he has accepted a position as Head Coach at Hingham High School, and "They're in the Old Colony League," Nedrow noted with a smile.

In his letter of resignation Reagan said: "Cohasset Hockey is first rate in every way, on and off the ice."

TUITION STUDENTS

Supt. Crowell will refer to Town Counsel the question of a proper charge to assess the parents of three out of town students who wish to study at CHS. None of the three students is asking for transportation or special services, committee members noted. It was voted unanimously to accept the students at a tuition of no more than $2,275 pending discussion with Town Counsel. Per pupil cost is presently approximately $2,600.

APPOINTMENTS

Patricia Hagerty was appointed as instructional aide at Deer Hill School at Step II; Mark Barry was appointed assistant boys' soccer coach at Step III.

AFS choosing students

Local members of AFS, the international youth exchange program, are about to begin the annual process of choosing students to live and study abroad during the coming year.

An assembly for sophomores, juniors and seniors was held at Cohasset High School on Tuesday to describe the programs available. Cohasset's two foreign AFS students, Anne Koehrer from France and Jaime Stallard from Paraguay, were introduced. Justine Hoffman, who just returned from her summer in Spain, also spoke.

A meeting for all interested students and their parents will be held on Thursday, Sept. 16 at 8 p.m. in the band room of the High School.

Families will be given the opportunity to learn about AFS in detail and to discuss financial, academic and other matters.

For further information students can contact Lois Cessarini, an AFS faculty advisor at the High School, or call Jane Goerdecke at 383-6935.

A special Cohasset police log

On the day John DeBassio said goodbye

By Tanna Kasperowicz

FRIDAY, SEPT. 16

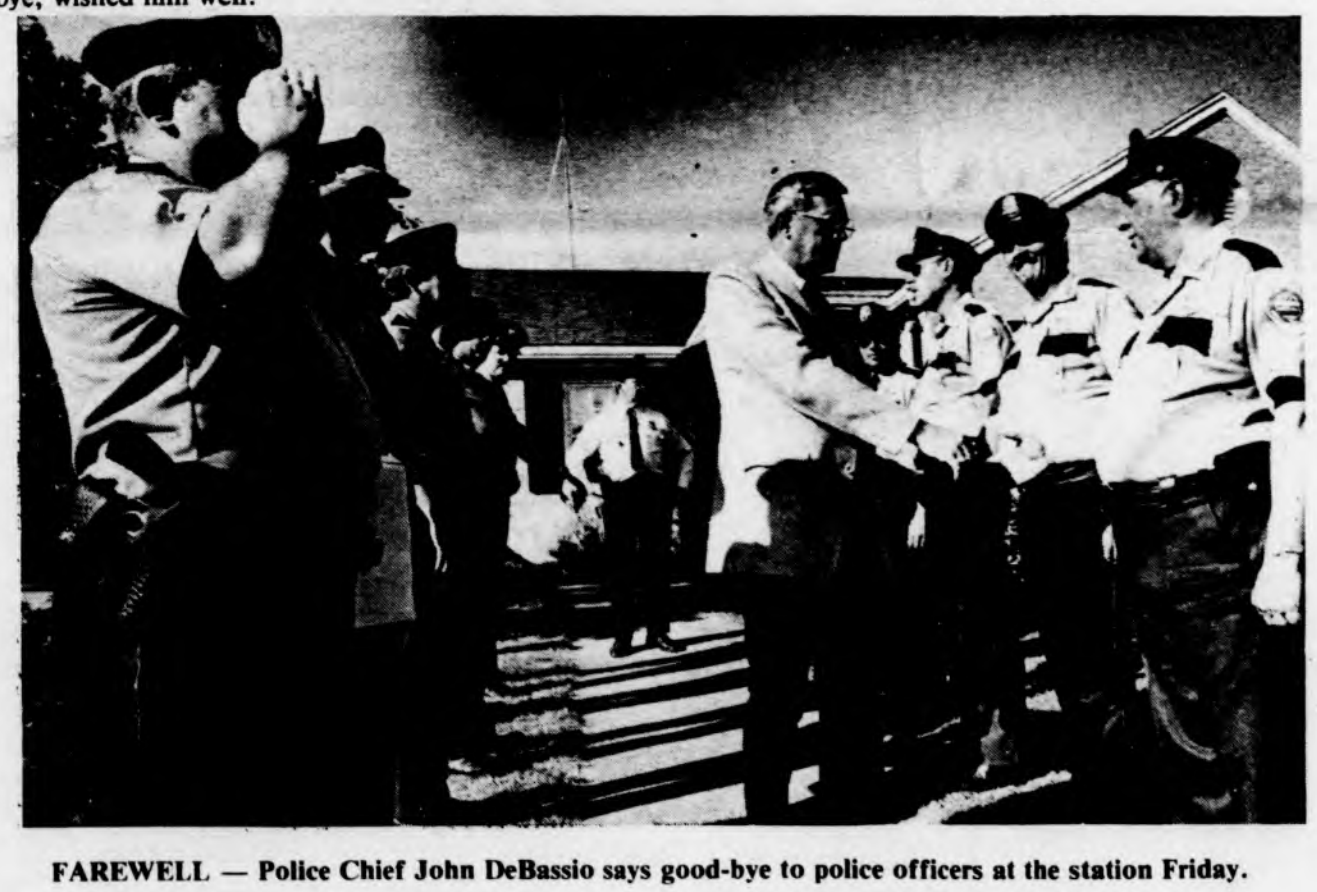
3:45 p.m., the Police Department's crabapple tree is as ripe as it is ever going to be for picking, with smashed crabapples lying all over the walk leading up to the station.

3:48 p.m., entered station, where the day shift was about to go off and the night shift was ready to take over...only there were an amazing number of police officers standing around in unusually well-pressed uniforms. Not that the Cohasset police officers don't always look presentable. They just looked super presentable today.

3:50 p.m., entered Police Chief John DeBassio's office where he was busy typing up some last minute correspondence. When asked what was happening on Straits Pond drowning he said there was still some loose ends to tie up.

3:52 p.m., presented chief with some "Police Syrup," it will never be jelly. Might as well stop calling it that. He smiled. We chatted briefly. Said goodbye, wished him well.

3:56 p.m., entered outer offices where there was now quite a congregation, with Greg Derr and John Thompson of the Ledger having just shown up. (So far it was still a surprise).



3:58 p.m., Lieut. Charles Stockbridge gave the press a private viewing of the clock wall plaque with its beautiful inscription. Left office to go outside. It was almost time.

4:00 p.m., Ginny DeBassio, Arlene Stockbridge and Ginny Abbadessa arrive. Police officers start lining up on both sides of the sidewalk. "I think he knows something's up, now," Lieut. Stockbridge said.

4:00 p.m., 65 degrees, dry, sunny. Visibility good.

4:01 p.m., weather turns misty. Visibility not so good. Chief DeBassio stands in front of his men, who salute their chief for the last time. Chief proceeds down the walkway, shaking hands with each officer and saying private words to each man. It's difficult to hear what he's saying even from several feet away.

FAREWELL — Police Chief John DeBassio says good-bye to police officers at the station Friday.

Kealey named acting police chief

Life is a lot different for Police Officer Joseph Kealey this week. He's the town's new Acting Police Chief and was named to that position for an indefinite period of time by selectmen last Friday.

Kealey no longer drives around town in a police cruiser. He replaces former Police Chief John DeBassio whose resignation became effective Monday. Now Kealey cruises the town in the chief's black patrol car.

Kealey has put aside his patrolman's blue uniform which he has worn for the past 17 years and now goes to work dressed in a suit and tie.

Selectmen named Kealey acting police chief last Friday afternoon at a meeting which was recessed from Thursday evening.

Kealey has served as patrolman on the Cohasset force for 17 years. Selectman Rocco Laugelle said Kealey was often left in charge of the day shift whenever the chief was not available.

Both Kealey and Lt. Charles Stockbridge were interviewed by selectmen last week in closed sessions.

Selectman Mary Jane McArthur confirmed that Stockbridge was not named because he wanted the job at the same rate of pay which DeBassio received, $29,500. Though Kealey's contract will be negotiated with selectmen this week, his salary is scheduled to be $21,004.

The board's vote to appoint Kealey was 2-0 with Selectmen Chairman Henry Ainslie, Jr. voting "present." Ainslie had nominated Stockbridge for the position but neither McArthur nor Laugelle would second the motion. Ainslie said he wanted Stockbridge for the job because, "I believe in the chain of command."

Ainslie also wanted the acting chief to be paid the same salary as DeBassio. "I feel the position of acting chief is just as difficult and just as much responsibility as a full chief and should receive the same salary," he said.

Laugelle nominated Kealey for acting chief and McArthur seconded the motion.

Overtime balloons in the fire department

The fire department is spending nearly $3,000 a week in overtime. The department has four vacancies and is short-staffed with EMT's.

Last week Acting Fire Chief Roger Lincoln requested $4,429 to train 3 Cohasset firefighters as emergency medical technicians but the advisory committee only approved $1,600 to train one firefighter.

Earlier this year the Cohasset Department was warned by the state officials that they were operating the ambulance in violation of the law. Two EMT-firefighters are required to ride the ambulance on every shift and Cohasset was using one man on occasions.

The advisory committee reasoned that the department would be gaining additional EMT's when the vacancies were filled. Selectmen adopted a policy months ago which requires that all newly hired firefighters be certified EMT's also. The board voted then to encourage the current staff to become EMT's.

Unfortunately it will probably take several months until a civil service list is sent to selectmen from which they may choose firefighters-EMT's to fill the vacancies. Meanwhile Lincoln must assign overtime help for the ambulance and when firefighters are sick or on vacation.

It takes about seven to eight months to become a certified EMT.

On patrol in Cohasset Harbor

By Donna Coglíano

Eighteen year-old Tom Wigmore was assigned to night patrol of Cohasset Harbor this summer. His presence was to discourage vandalism and thefts in the harbor.

Harbormaster Harry Ritter said that since the night patrol coverage increased from five nights to seven nearly three years ago, vandalism and thefts have decreased substantially. He described the 8 p.m. to 4 p.m. shift as a security watch and deterrent for anyone that's thinking of breaking into a boat.

Besides Wigmore, Jim Curley and Danny Bowen have been assigned to night patrols also. Wigmore, who is a senior at Cohasset High School, averaged 5 to 6 days of work a week.

Wigmore patrolled the harbor in his Boston Whaler from 8 p.m. until 4 in the morning. He had use of a police portable radio in case he needed police backup.

Ritter said you can't be everywhere in the harbor at once so the idea is to keep moving in the harbor similar to police squad cars that cruise the town to keep a high visibility.

Usually Ritter finds college students to work the night patrol but this year he couldn't find anyone interested in the overnight hours at $4.25 an hour. Wigmore was named an assistant harbormaster by selectmen this summer. Ritter said Wigmore is a knowledgable boater who did a good job for the town.

According to Ritter only the July 4th weekend was wild along the harbor. He said in anticipation of trouble patrols were beefed up for the Labor Day weekend but were not necessary.

Wigmore said he enjoyed his summer job and would like to do it again next year. He liked meeting new people and working with the police department. "I learned a lot about the law," he said.

Wigmore is scheduled to graduate from CHS in the spring. He plans to enter the Coast Guard and

Cohasset's week...

Flag donated to library

At last week's meeting of the Library Trustees the board accepted a flag which was donated by board member George Haley. The American flag donated by Haley will be displayed on a stand inside the Paul Pratt Memorial Library.

Cable committee to meet

The cable television advisory committee will meet Thursday at town hall and divide into subcommittees to study four preliminary proposals from companies which want to win the town's cable license.

The subcommittees will study each section of the lengthy proposals. After reviewing the proposals the committee will write a proposal for final specifications and the firms would be given 40 days to amend their proposals to comply with the town's specifications.

The committee plans to finish its report by Feburary. The town has until June to award the license. Selectmen have been given copies of the preliminary proposals and have the final say in awarding the town's cable license.

The four companies submitting preliminary proposals to the committee last week were: Campbell CATV Systems Associates of Plymouth, American Cable Systems Corp. of Boston, Greater South Shore Cablevision, Inc. of Marshfield and United Video Management Inc. of Greenwich, Conn.

Overdue fines forgiven

The Paul Pratt Memorial Library will forgive overdue fines on library books, magazines and records now through Oct. 12.

The library trustees approved this action this week with the proviso that there "will not be another amnesty for a decade."

Hundreds of books and other materials are overdue, according to library staff, despite several notices and suspension of services to everyone who has failed to respond to a second notice.

The library trustees noted that citizens should be reminded that the library's budget has been cut as a result of Proposition 2½, and that the failure to return library property is a kind of waste of tax dollars that citizens can easily correct.

Homeowners are urged to search their property for library materials, including those borrowed by their children and return them fine-free, no questions asked.

The library's new outdoor book return box is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Library open hours are: Sunday from 2 to 5; Monday and Tuesday from 9 to 9; closed Wednesday; Thursday and Friday from 9 to 6, and Saturday from 9 to 5.

The Cohasset police log...

4:02 through 4:05 p.m., the photographers are clicking away...Police Officer Cliff Jones presents the lovely, engraved plaque, which is a clock on one side and an engraved, sentimental message on the other: To John A. DeBassio, Chief of Police. Good luck in Your Future Endeavors, It Has Been a Pleasure and a Privilige (sic) Working With You.

The press privately notes that Chief DeBassio has praised his men continually over the past two years, admitting only to their one, collective fault in private moments, that being that they are rotten spellers.

Privilege is spelled wrong on the plaque. In future years, when Chief DeBassio looks at that plaque, he will smile often at his memory of that Cohasset Police Department, full of beautiful, caring men who are rotten spellers.

4:06 p.m., Officer Jones says, "Something from the guys. It's been a pleasure working with you, sir."

4:07 p.m., "7:00 at the Legion, everyone be there," Lieut. Stockbridge says, as the group disperses from this simple, brief but eloquent ceremony.

4:08 p.m., All clear.

Later that evening the Cohasset Police Association along with wives treated Chief DeBassio and his wife, Ginny, to a dinner at the Legion on Elm Street. Presumably they shared good memories, wished each other well, and cemented friendships they will share for a lifetime.

League asked to sponsor Studds-Conway debate

Congressman Gerry Studds this week wrote to the 10 chapters of the League of Women Voters in the 10th Congressional District to ask that they sponsor a series of debates between himself and Jack Conway, his Republican opponent for reelection to the U.S. House of Representatives.

In a statement released by his reelection campaign committee, Studds, a Cohasset resident who is seeking his sixth term in the Congress, described the League of Women Voters as "traditionally the most impartial organization in the state and the perfect choice to host debates "between himself and his challenger."

Conway has said he will debate Studds anyplace, anytime.

Studds' Sept. 13 letter read as follows:

"As you know, it has been traditional for Congressional candidates from this district to debate the issues in a non-partisan setting immediately prior to the general election.

"I am therefore, writing to see if the League of Women Voters would be interested in helping organize such debates. Obviously, time limitations preclude us from participating in debates in each of the 45 towns in the 10th district. Thus, it would be particularly helpful if regional debates, perhaps under the combined auspices of several different Leagues, could be arranged.

"I hope very much that it will be possible for you to participate in organizing such an event."

Those Leagues contacted by the Congressman included the Cohasset, Hingham, Scituate, Plymouth-Kingston, Marshfield-Duxbury, New Bedford-Fall River, Marion-Mattapoisett, Martha's Vineyard, Falmouth and Lower Cape Cod chapters.

Studds, who has debated his opponent prior to each general election in which he has participated, said that he looked forward to working with the Leagues to set up a series of debates to occur after the House of Representatives adjourns on Oct. 8.

"Although it will be impossible for me to campaign as much as I would like prior to that date because the schedule of the Congress will keep me in Washington, I will be making campaign appearances each weekend until the House does adjourn," he said. "In the meantime, however, our grass roots organization will continue its campaign activities on a full-time basis."

Women's group supports Studds

The Studds for Congress Committee reports that Congressman Gerry Studds has received the strong support of the South Shore Chapter of the National Organization for Women, (NOW).

In addition, the Studds Campaign Committee announced that the Congressman had received the endorsement of the Massachusetts Women's Political Caucus.

In a statement released by his reelection campaign committee, Studds, a Cohasset resident seeking his sixth term in the U.S. House of Representatives, thanked all three organizations for their support of his bid for reelection and pledged to continue his efforts in behalf of women's issues.

In particular, he said he would continue to work for the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment, which he recently joined in reintroducing in the U.S. House of Representatives.

study law enforcement.

Besides providing a security watch Wigmore assisted in several boating related incidents. For instance, one night Wigmore spotted a boat heading toward the sandbar. He sped to the boat and directed him away. Wigmore said the Gloucester man was lost and surely would have gone aground.

Wigmore also assisted the Coast Guard in bringing in a sinking boat. He often reunited families with overdue boaters.

"I enjoyed the job and I had a good time, plus people felt secure seeing me there," he said. Despite the evening hours Wigmore said, you'd be surprised at how much activity there is around the harbor overnight.

Wigmore completed his night patrolling job with the town this past weekend and now it's back to school and his studies.

Pratt Library installs microfilm index

This week, a new microfilm magazine index was installed in the Paul Pratt Memorial Library.

The service is called "Magazine Index" and is published by Information Access Corporation. The service consists of a microfilm containing indexing for 370 magazines since January 1977. A new film is sent every two months bringing the index up to date.

This service is similar to the familiar "Readers Guide to Periodical Literature," in that it indexes magazine articles by author, subject and title. The advantages of the new index are having five years of information in one alphabetical order; the greater number of magazines; greater indexing of consumer products by brand name and by subject; and the indexing of reviews of movies, books and plays.

Supplementary services that come with "Magazine Index" include a monthly printed list of "product evaluations," which provides a quick index to recent reviews of new products and services. Another monthly list called "hot topics" gives a list of current magazine articles on current topics in the news.

☐Tanna Kasperowicz sure gave me a great "build-up" introduction last week. For that I thank you, Tanna. I would like to add it will be hard to fill your shoes — your witty remarks, your ability to "dig" the news out of people, and your way with words will be missed by all of us.

I hope that I get the same co-operation with everyone contributing news that you did! Keep those letters and phone calls full of your news coming, please.

☐It's official — fall has arrived in Cohasset. The South Shore Music Circus tent is packed away for the winter — time to take the winter clothes out of mothballs.

With fall comes the Football Season. CHS played its first game Saturday at Norton and won 14-0. Everyone contributed, it was a real "team effort" and it was enjoyed by all.

One very special Skipper Fan, Bill Ripley, was missed by all. Mr. Ripley is reported to be doing much better and I've heard that Superintendent Crowell and Clark Chatterton have a surprise planned for him. More details later.

☐Anita, David and Phil Bernstein recently returned from Greece. Their only complaint was their stay wasn't long enough (is it ever?). Anita tells me it's one of the best places to buy fur coats — if you can stand trying them on in 90 degree, humid weather. She passed the opportunity by, but, had it been cooler...

☐Danny Pompeo took an awful spill last week — the bike he was riding misbehaved and he had 25 stitches in his head. That didn't stop him from the Seahawks Hockey team tryouts on Tuesday! He made the A team! Good work, Danny.

☐Friday night is football night at Boston University. Nicknamed the Cohasset Bowl, B.U. will be playing University of Maine. Five local boys will be playing — Barry and Paul Buckley and Chris Keating are playing for Maine, Timmy Libby and Paul Farren for B.U. Should be an exciting game.

☐Larry (Pop) Fone arrived home last week. He is doing nicely after his recent surgery at South Shore Hospital. His doctor says he'll be stronger than ever and feel like a new man. With all of the energy that he always has, is that possible? I'm sure it is, best wishes, Pop.

☐Have heard a few reports from the college freshman...Annie Abbruzzese loves Providence College...missed her Dad's wake-up calls at first though. Jack McNeill thinks Boston College is great, David Lahive is doing well at the University of Maine. I'd love to hear from more of you.

☐When our daughter left for college a very wise friend gave me a card with a little saying in it that I thought I'd share with you. She didn't know who wrote it, here it is: "There are only two lasting bequests we can give our children. One is roots, the other, wings."

☐Congratulations to Joe Kealey, who has been named acting chief of our police department.

The Cohasset Police Association really surprised departing Police Chief John DeBassio last Friday, presenting him with a plaque at the station and a dinner in his honor that night. It was a great success and we wish the chief well.

☐Anne Koehrer, CHS's AFS student from France, is spending her year with Jane and Chet Ellis and family.

☐Friends and neighbors are still celebrating A.J. Antone's birthday which finally arrived today! It will be interesting to watch the paybacks on this one.

☐Former "Looking Back" columnist for the Mariner, Pete Barnicle, is doing some traveling these days. He and his wife, May, recently went to Maine with the 60 Plus Club and had a most enjoyable time.

☐Brenda Kinchla will celebrate her sixth birthday on Sept. 24. Some big festivities are planned. Brenda's in kindergarten this year.

☐John Ayer of Cohasset achieved distinction during the second semester of the 1981-82 academic year and is on the Dean's List of Colby College in Waterville, Maine.

A junior majoring in government: public policy, Ayer is a gradaute of Cohasset High School. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander P. Ayer of Bayberry Lane.

Kids who participated in the Library's summer reading program celebrated with a five-foot long delicious dragon cake last week. See story on page 21. (Greg Derr photo)

☐John Howley, Jr. of Cohasset achieved distinction during the second semester of the 1981-82 academic year and is on the Dean's List of Colby College (Waterville, Maine).

A senior majoring in economics, Howley, Jr. is a graduate of Cohasset High School. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Howley, Sr. of Windy Hill Road.

☐Jim and Larry Ash of Cohasset placed third and fifth respectively in the "Thomas M. Chisholm Appreciation" Sweepstakes awards to dairy exhibitors at the Marshfield Fair last month. Jim Ash also was awarded a Reserve Champion ribbon for "Best of Show Dairy Goat."

☐I tried Joan Pinkham's method for cooking "Pink Roast Beef." It really worked and was loved by all, especially the cook (who "didn't peek" for two hours).

☐A friend from Hingham called last week after she heard I'd be writing this column. She asked that I please find out if anyone knew the name of the pink flowers that bloom in the fall on the wall of the Roy home on Jerusalem Road. Does anyone know?

☐Question: Who is the only boy from Cohasset who went to college last week wearing his birthday present — a Hawaiian lei?

Would like to hear your news. Please write or call me.

Stouffer receives labor endorsements

Major labor endorsements have been given to the Democratic candidate for State Representative Caroline Stouffer.

The Massachusetts State Labor Council, AFL-CIO and locals 285 and 509 of the Service Employees International Union, announced their endorsements of Stouffer. These endorsements reflect her continued support of working men and women and a willingness to resolve labor problems.

The labor issues she sees as priorities for the coming legislative session are a complete review of the Massachusetts' workmen's compensation law, specifically in regard to awards and the rehabilitation of injured workers; establishment of a state secretary of labor; and representation of labor on the 16-person Board of Regents. Stouffer contends that workmen's compensation awards "are too low and way out of line with what the courts award."

She also firmly maintains that much more should be done to rehabilitate an injured worker, whether for the same type of job or a different one. Returning a person to work where she/he once again earns a wage is far better for the person and for the state than continuing to send workmen's comp checks.

The labor endorsements join a growing list of organizational endorsements being given to Stouffer. She has also been endorsed by Citizens for Participation in Political Action; Americans for Democratic Action, Massachusetts Chapter; the Campaign for Families and Children; Massachusetts Women's Political Caucus; and the Massachusetts Tenants Political Action Committee.

An insult

More and more we at the Mariner are feeling like those of you who didn't vote for the five-member board of selectmen at the special town meeting last month, but who now feel the proposal was visionary.

The latest case in point is the appointment of an acting police chief to replace John DeBassio. The appointment went to Patrolman Joseph Kealey who, with 15 years in the department, is known as a decent man and a good cop. It is not our intent to malign him here.

Nevertheless, the appointment is another example of how selectmen can botch the process of good government. In naming Kealey, the board bypassed — insulted is the better term — the obvious choice for the job: Lt. Charles Stockbridge. The vote was 2-0 with Selectman Henry Ainslie abstaining.

Lt. Stockbridge has 27 years on the department. He passed the chief's civil service exam years ago. He has served as acting chief many times. He was acting chief before the appointment went to John DeBassio. He is the senior man in the department. He was, as we say, the obvious choice, and when in a quasi-military organization such as the police, the "next-in-line" is passed over for promotion, the result is often unneeded, unnecessary confusion.

Selectmen may have tendered Lt. Stockbridge a formal offer of the actin chief's position. But our information is that if an offer was made it was at a considerably smaller salary than former Chief DeBassio received, and too small as well to make up for the salary Stockbridge would have lost in giving up his part-time second job — something he would have had to do to become acting chief. Thus it seems clear that the selectmen made an offer that they knew Stockbridge could not accept.

What it comes down to is more monkey business by the incumbent board of selectmen, something we've grown very used to and very tired of. We're also tired of criticizing the selectmen week after week; we don't especially like the role of "town scold." But it seems that week after week at least two of the selectmen come up with a new wrinkle of funny business.

However, as we noted above, Chairman Henry Ainslie abstained from the vote in question because he fully understood the mistake his colleagues were making by passing Lt. Stockbridge. Townspeople who tend to blame Ainslie for everything that is wrong with the board and its actions ought to give the man credit for acquiring a little wisdom somewhere along the way.

We naturally wish Acting Chief Kealey success during his interim appointment. As we said at the top, our comments do not pertain to his qualifications, but rather to those of the selectmen. We hope his tenure works out for the fest...and that the selectmen wise up.

CLARK RESIGNATION

Selectmen accepted the resignation of the town's first Executive Secretary Arthur Clark last week and at the same time extended his contract until Dec. 31.

Clark handed in his resignation last week saying that the time has come for him to move along.

In his letter of resignation Clark stated, "If the board so desires, I will serve until my successor has been appointed. I will do all in my power to make the transition as smooth as possible."

ASSISTANT TOWN COUNSELS

After a 45-minute closed session with Town Counsel J. Blake Thaxter, selectmen appointed two assistant town counsels from Thaxter's office to help with the heavy work load. Deidre Kulevich and John Slater were named assistants by the board.

Thaxter had met with the board Thursday in closed session to discuss pending litigation.

JUNK LICENSE

Selectmen voted unanimously last week to issue a junk license to Ross Rosano of North Main St.

NOVEMBER 2 ELECTION

For the November 2 election, polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. at town hall. Selectmen approved the voting time with a unanimous, 3-0 vote.

PLANNING BOARD REQUEST

Daniel Cotton of the Planning Board wrote to selectmen last week asking that both boards meet to discuss the criteria for choosing a new Building Inspector and Zoning Officer. Jim Litchfield's resignation becomes effective at the end of the month.

Selectmen will ask the Planning Board to put their ideas in writing.

PATROLMAN TO TRANSFER

Police Officer Richard Fairbairn submitted a request, to selectmen last week, to be transferred to the Weymouth Police Department. Fairbairn is scheduled to meet with the board at their meeting tonight (Wednesday).

NORTH COHASSET FIRE STATION

Leasing of the North Cohasset Fire Station was scheduled under new business on the selectmen's agenda last week. However, the board decided not to act on the matter.

COX ESTATE

Robert Booth, Jr. of Joy Place asked selectmen last week to appoint a committee to study the possibility of purchasing the Cox Estate on Cohasset Harbor.

The idea might sound a little far-fetched, said Booth who doesn't want the town to miss out on an opportunity to own more of its harbor. "There's a whole area in there that could be very advantageous for the town to own," he said.

While the town is willing to spend millions of dollars on a sewer system, Booth told selectmen that $1 million has been reported as the price for the property. On the negative side Booth said the estate would be removed from the tax roll if the town were to own it.

Selectmen Rocco Laugelle said he would like to see the idea put to the community — perhaps a poll could be conducted in a local newspaper. "Where else could you get the feeling from the town," he said.

Selectmen Chairman Henry Ainslie questioned how the town could finance such a deal within the constraints of Prop. 2½.

Selectmen asked Arthur Clark, the executive secretary to check with the lawyers handling Mrs. Cox's estate to find out the status of the current bid reportedly made by the Roy family of Jerusalem Road.

DOG HEARINGS

Selectmen ordered two dogs restrained last week and hearings on the matter will be held at tonight's selectmen meeting concerning both dogs.

Robert Gunnville's dog of 76 Pleasant St. was ordered restrained on charges that the dog attacked 10 year-old Nora McCarthy of Old Pasture Road. The girl was thrown from her bicycle and suffered a fractured skull and multiple bruises on Sept. 9. She was hospitalized for eight days.

Mrs. Marie McCarthy asked that the dog be banished from town, "before a near tragedy becomes a real tragedy."

Selectmen also ordered that William Figueiredo's dog be restrained based on a complaint from Frederick Parker of 36 Parker Avenue. Parker charged that Figueiredo threatened to order his dog to attack Parker's children if they approached Figueiredo's property.

Polling hours

To the Editor:

Since the Board of Selectmen has the ultimate responsibility for approval of the warrant which sets voting hours, they must be held accountable for the considerable inconvenience caused voters by the 10 a.m. opening of polls on Primary Day. Many Cohasset voters, who arrived at Town Hall before 10 a.m. on Sept. 14, were denied their right to vote because of their inability to return before the 8 p.m. closing.

Town officials should realize that this is a modern town with a large commuter population which

Mariner survey

Last week Rocco Laugelle suggested that a local paper (that would be the Mariner) survey residents on the question of buying the Cox Estate.

That question may be moot with the property so close to acquisition, but it prompted us to think that some kind of survey on local issues is in order. So, this week we present the Mariner Survey on timely issues of local import.

Readers are asked to answer the following questions and send their responses to the Cohasset Mariner, Box 71, Cohasset, 02025, or drop them at the Cohasset Colonial Pharmacy in the Village.

We will publish the results at a future date.

1. Should the town buy the Cox Estate? _____Yes _____No _____No opinion

2. Should Cohasset have a leash law? _____Yes _____No _____No opinion depends on voting early because of after-work commitments. Officials should also be sensitive to the need for polling hours to be correctly announced in local newspapers. During normal working hours, many citizens are not able to visit various town buildings where the warrant is posted by law.

Polling hours...

In setting polling hours for future elections, I hope the buck will stop with our Board of Selectmen. Can we count on an 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. opening of the polls for the November election?

Rec Dept., Historical Society sponsor museum tour

The Cohasset Recreation Department, in conjunction with the Cohasset Historical Society, will accept registrations for a guided tour on Friday, Oct. 8 at 11 a.m.

Residents should meet at the Maritime Museum on Elm Street.

Residents and non-residents may register, for a $1 fee, for the guided tour of the following Historical Society Museums at Cohasset Center:

1. The Maritime Museum, constructed circa 1790, is unique among museums in this area. Formerly a "ships" chandlery or marine supplies building, it originally belonged to fishing vessel owner Samuel Bates whose family maintained a maritime-related business in Cohasset for four generations.

The first floor is devoted to Cohasset's "Age of Sail" (1750-1895). Here can be found relics of the schooner fishing days, materials salvaged from old shipwrecks, unusual items brought back from the Orient by Cohasset's "deep water" sailors, shipwrights and whaler's equipment, as well as paintings, prints and photographs of Cohasset's maritime era.

The story of the first Minot's Ledge Lighthouse tragedy and the engineering triumph of the second lighthouse are portrayed in artifacts, pictures and models. Beautifully detailed ship models of square rigged vessels are on display, notably models of the ship "Tecumseh" (over five feet long) and the clipper ship "Stag Hound," carved and built by Cohasset seafarers.

The second floor of the Maritime Museum contains collections of a general historical nature; old carpenter's tools, cordwainer's (shoemaker's) equipment, Indian relics, a display of early apothecary's equipment, old Cohasset school desks and books, a part of the town's first Post Office, and military relics from America's several wars.

An old home-made piano is on display, as are a series of dioramas depicting various historical scenes of the town. Photographs and prints of local interest can be seen.

2. The Capt. John Wilson House, dating from 1810, was given to the Society in 1936 and became its first museum. This old dwelling belonged to Captain Wilson, a seafarer, then to his descendants for more than a century.

In it one finds antique furniture and furnishings to recreate an early Cohasset home. Chairs, Tables, spinning wheels, old cooking utensils, even a collection of children's toys are featured. Old paintings of Cohasset buildings and scenes can be viewed. The atmosphere is late 18th and early 19th century New England.

3. The "Independence" museum, formerly the town's first fire station, now houses the Society's gown collection. Here are displayed some of the extensive collection of fine gowns, costumes and accessoried given to the Society by townspeople, representing American Clothing styles from the early 19th to the early 20th centuries.

Featured at the "Independence" are a Bridal Room and a Children's Room. The actual uniform of an American Ambassador as worn during his presentation to the English Monarch is on display. This collection is viewed annually by designers and students of fine fabrics. Mr. David H. Wadsworth, Curator, and volunteer tour guides will be on hand to lead groups and answer questions.

To register for the tour, call the Recreation Department office at 383-6791, as soon as possible.

Fall membership drive at Art Center

The annual Fall membership drive is underway at the South Shore Art Center at 103 Ripley Road.

President Ubaldo di Benedetto describes the upcoming year as one of "decision" as the Art Center continues its efforts to find a new and better home and a year of "excitement" with the wide variety of art classes, special programs for children, outstanding Gallery exhibits both at the Center and in other facilities, art talks and seminars, social events, and a return to the Annual Art Auction which will be run to help meet the $500,000 building goal.

Membership in the Center is open to all in a variety of categories. Senior Citizen and children's memberships are only $5 while active memberships are $10 for individuals and $20 for families; associate donor memberships range from $15 for individuals to $350 for patrons and are tax deductible.

As a non-profit organization dedicated to the Arts and Community Service, the South Shore Art Center depends on memberships and donations for its financial base.

Members receive special discounts on classes, events, and supplies and receive pre-enrollment privileges, mailings and preview invitations in addition to being able to exhibit at twice-yearly Members Shows.

The South Shore Art Center is affiliated with the Massachusetts College of Art Continuing Education program and is a member of the Massachusetts Cultural Alliance and a participant in the Culture Connection program of the New England Educational Cultural Collaborative.

Over the last 27 years the Center has grown from a small group of artists to an area-wide organization that attracts students, artists and audience from Quincy to the Cape.

The annual summer Art Festival held on Cohasset Common is the oldest continuous Festival in Massachusetts while the mid-winter New England exhibit attracts artists from all New England states. In the course of one year over 3,000 will participate in various Center activities.

Center membership opens the door to a variety of events that are sometimes purely social or that may be pursued on a more serious level.

Membership in the Center can also bring a matching donation from the following businesses if the member is in their employ. Either 1:1 or 2:1 match for the membership amount will be made by: The Boston Globe, The Boston Herald American, Boston Edison Co., Boston Safe Deposit & Trust, Abcor, Inc., Bird & Son, Inc., The Boston Company, Deloitte Haskins & Sells, Digital Equipment Corp., Fiduciary Trust Co., Index Systems, Inc., Ingalls Associates, Instron Corp., Laventhol & Horwath, Mutual Bank for Savings, Neworld Bank for Savings, Polaroid Corp., Shawmut Bank, and Wm. Underwood Co.

Information on the Center and membership forms are available by telephoning 383-9548.

Conway raps porn on cable TV

Government and environmental forces in America have spent billions in protecting us all from pollution on land, sea and air.

Yet, stated Congressional candidate Jack Conway, pollution of the mind is allowed to rage unchecked as if the minds of men were of little consequence when compared to PCB's in New Bedford harbor, toxic waste dumps in South Plymouth or nuclear waste heaps in Massachusetts Bay.

It's about time that the people show their fierce indignation at the rot being dropped upon them by others who defend their positions as "being consistent with the First Amendment" when in fact the only motive is profit for themselves," said Conway. He faces Gerry Studds in November for the seat in the 10th Congressional District.

Conway made reference to the unbridled cable TV industry which according to United Press and other sources, is jetpumping soft and hard core pornography into 12 million American homes.

"If the cable television industry cannot rid itself of the filth that is shown in many areas we should work to bring cable systems under the Federal Communications Commission and require that these operators maintain their same standards as other broadcasters.

"As we prattle on with our placard campaign about dirty air, dirty rivers and dirty landfills, the porn-sellers foulest of creatures, pump the black ooze of filth and decay into the sanctity of our homes.

"Porn comes in all sizes and packages," he added. "U.S. Representative Barney Frank was the proposer of Boston's vile combat zone. The Hugh Hefner's of the world invented the "men's magazine" industry which has now expanded into "porn magazines for women, homosexuals and kiddie porn addicts."

"Porn probes are currently underway when the principal characters are film stars, Congressmen, military figures and sports heroes but still the porn proliferates," Conway added.

Some people are doing something about it like the people from Stoughton, Mass. who are protesting a filthy porn bookstore.

Conway used as a local example the tragic situation of Pembroke, when a local school official was afraid to rule against youngsters wearing four-worded and suggestive "T" shirts to school "because it might interfere with their civil rights."

Conway asked, "What about the rights and sensibilities of the others in the school?"

SPELLING WORDS

Spelling words to be learned this week are: INTERESTED, INTERESTING, INTERFERE, IT'S, and ITS.

CONGRATULATIONS

In the football game Cohasset vs. Norton at Norton, Saturday, Sept. 18, the score was Cohasset 14, Norton 0. Special appreciation is due Mark Gunville #29, who scored six points in the second quarter, and six points in the third quarter, both runs after rushes failed, and to Harry Silvia #31, who scored two points safety in the fourth quarter.

HIGH SCHOOL PSO PARENTS

Joan Shockman has announced that on Oct. 12, a meeting has been scheduled with Principal, Mr. Streeter, at 10 a.m. in Room 107 of Cohasset High School. The primary reason for the meeting is to plan for the Open House for parents, which will be held Oct. 19. However, if there are any additional items that any Jr./Sr. High parents want on the Agenda, they may call any of the following Jr./Sr. High representatives: Mary Hartwell 383-6676, Joan Shockman 383-6366, Milie Mitman 383-9766, or Jim Leonard 383-6563. (Numerologists may be fascinated by the coincidence that these representatives, who were all nominated because of their sincere interests in education, all have two or three "6's" in their telephone numbers.)

DEBATING

A meeting for members of the Debate Team was held Tuesday, Sept. 21. If there are any students interested in debating who missed that meeting, they should contact Coach Edward Sheehan, Chairman of the Social Studies Department.

AFS

Barbara Spooner reports that the High School AFS Club is holding a "Make Your Own Sundae" party, Friday evening, Sept. 24, 7-9 p.m. at St. Anthony's Church Parish Hall (upstairs). The purppose of the party is to build AFS Club membership and to disseminate information about their program, rather than fundraising.

Therefore the sundaes will be sold at cost ($1). Among those present will be AFS exchange students: Anne Roehrer from Dijon, France; Jim Stallard from Ascencion, Paraguay; and Justine Hoffman, returnee from the summer program in Spain. AFS Club student officers include: President, Michael Latta, Jennie Packard and Pip Gilmour. All high school students, Grades 9-12, as well as their families, are encouraged to attend.

SPORTS PARTICIPATION

At the meeting of the Cohasset School Committee Sept. 13, Mr. Chatterton reported the following sports participation:

Football (grades 10-12), there were 41 candidates, two dropped out and there are now 39 on the roster.

In grades 8-9, 27 candidates, three dropped out, and a roster of 24.

Girls Soccer had 86 candidates, 22 dropped out, 22 were cut and 42 remain on the roster (22 Varsity and 20 JV).

In Field Hockey there were 47 candidates and 47 on the roster.

Boys Soccer had 82 candidates, 10 dropped out, 24 were cut and 48 remain on the roster.

And in Cross Country, there were 19 candidates and 19 on the roster.

Due to the great interest shown in Soccer, Mr. Chatterton and Superintendent Crowell then successfully lobbied the School Committee to create a Boys-Girls Intermural Program to be funded from an athletic revolving fund for Soccer.

PSO in process of identifying new families

By Regina Schultz

"Our Committee has identified over 70 new families in the Cohasset School System since Sept., 1981," said Sue McNamara, Parent School Organization Chairperson of the Activities Committee.

"Additionally, many of our present kindergarteners are 'first-timers' in the Cohasset schools. And what about families seeing their children advance to Deer Hill or the Senior High School without a family forerunner? Not only are the children apprehensive, the parents are too. The Cohasset PSO feels the need for an informative and comprehensive view of the many features of our fine school system. We plan this orientation program for the PSO General Membership Meeting on Oct. 5."

Implementing this endeavor, along with McNamara, are School Supt. Eugene Crowell, audio-visual specialist Dr. John Packard, the principals of the respective schools, guidance director John Leary, Director of Special Services, Steve Hart, School Committee Representative Diana Kornet and the PSO Executive Board. A slide presentation and introductions are on the agenda.

"The PSO Activiites Committee will personally call all the families new to the area," said McNamara.

"Fliers to parents of kindergarteners and fourth graders should encourage them to come and find out about the many resources this school community provides. Parents of seventh graders will want to learn first-hand about our fine High School environment. In fact, this meeting is designed to increase parental awareness of the entire school system. We plan to distribute a handout with information on parent support groups, key names of organization leaders, and a directive for such school-related activities as Boosters, Brownies, Scouts, AFS, the Community Center and the like."

PSO President Nancy Sandell adds that "The program promises to be a lively one with high interest content. It is the highlight of the PSO's first General Membership Meeting. The idea has generated much entusiasm in the organization, and we hope for a good response on the fifth."

The Orientation Program will be presented Tuesday, Oct. 5, at Cohasset High School in the new study hall adjacent to the cafeteria. Coffee and refreshments will be served at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will begin promptly at 8 p.m.

Parfait stays alive in softball finals

Cohasset's Strawberry Parfait team stayed alive in the championship finals of the South Shore Civic Softball League by defeating the Marshfield Benchwarmers twice this weekend.

On Saturday Strawberry Parfait registered a 17-6 victory which was their first win of the final series. Marshfield has two wins and three are required to take home the championship trophy.

On Sunday, it looked like Strawberry Parfait would win easily as they led 11-1 in the eighth inning but the Benchwarmers rallied to tie the score. The game went into overtime lasting 12 innings with Strawberry Parfait triumphing, 13-12.

The Strawberry Parfait squad will play the Benchwarmers Saturday in Marshfield at 10 a.m. Because Strawberry Parfait has won the title championship for the past two years, they will be entitled to keep the championship trophy if they win on Saturday. The final playoff series is decided in the best of five games. The series is tied 2-2 going into Saturday's matchup.

CHS football team blanks Norton, 14-0

In a non-league contest Saturday the Cohasset varsity football team marched past Norton, 14-0.

Junior Peter Caruso, a lineman, recovered a fumble in the end zone late in the second quarter to mark Cohasset's first score. The rush failed.

In the third quarter senior Mark Gunnville darted in from eight yards out for the touchdown. Senior quarterback Rich Evans completed a pass to senior Bob Meers for an extra two points.

Neither team scored in the final quarter and the score stood at 14-0.

This year the Skipper squad will be led by senior co-captains Rich Evans and Bill Cuff.

Returning starters for Cohasset are Cuff, senior Paul Riley and ends Meers and Tom O'Brien.

Last year Cohasset finished with a 3-7 record. Head Coach John Leone said he is pleased with the development of the team's offensive line. "They are growing as a unit," he said.

Soccer boys roll over Middleboro

The Cohasset boys' soccer team rolled past the Middleboro Sachems last week with an 11-0 victory. In this season's opening game every member of the Cohasset squad racked up some playing time enroute to shutting out a weak Middleboro squad.

The Skippers led 6-0 at halftime and added five more goals in the second half for the league win.

Freshman Chris Kirkendale started things off for Cohasset with a unassisted goal. Captain Danny Bowen scored the second goal on a penalty kick.

Senior goalkeeper Chris Mahoney earned the shutout for Cohasset. John Drago kicked in two goals with his second score being unassisted near the end of the game.

Bobby Schultz scored two goals for the day on passes from Mike Mahoney and John Reidy. He also assisted on David MacDonald's goal in the first half which put cohasset ahead, 3-0.

Scott Duncombe scored an unassisted goal and set up the very next goal for Jim Stallard who put it past the Sachem goalkeeper. Stallard scored the seventh and eighth goals for Cohasset. His second goal stemmed off a pass from sophomore midfielder Mike DeSantis.

Kevin Leary scored the final goal of the game with Jim Rooney assisting.

This year's team is under the direction of second-year Coach Jon Anderson. Last season the Skippers finished with 3-10-1 record. They have four returning veterans on the squad.

Field hockey needs to score goals

The field hockey team has failed to score a goal this season in three games. Cohasset Coach Gino DiGirolamo hopes to break the ice this week in games versus Abington and East Bridgewater.

Last week the Skippers were shut out by the defending league champions of Hanover, 3-0 and Duxbury, 2-0. On Monday the Middleboro Sachems defeated Cohasset, 2-0.

The Skippers finished with a .500 record last year and lost eight starters to graduation. Tri captains for the Skipper squad are seniors Gia Barresi, Ann Marie Lagrotteria and Justine Hoffman.

Barresi plays at the inner position as does senior Mia Graham. Hoffman is a fullback and Lagrotteria plays on the forward line as well as in goal.

Other members of the squad are: junior forward Nancy Walls, halfback Jennie Mitman, goalie Emily Glasfeld, senior fullback Jill Grant and forward wings Rachelle Sargent and Jeannie Bailey.

The Cohasset squad has a record of 0-3 in the South Shore League and plays East Bridgewater at home Friday, 3:15 p.m.

Soccer girls win their opener, 3-0

In their South Shore League opener last week the girls' varsity soccer team defeated Hanover, 3-0.

Tri-captain Amy Duncombe kicked in the first goal on a pass from sophomore Jill Nedrow. Kris Pompeo scored the Skipper's second goal with the assist going to forward Janet DiGirolamo.

DiGirolamo scored the final goal versus Hanover on a pass from Sarah Seavey. Cohasset goalkeeper Tracy Fitzpatrick registered her first shutout of the season.

In other games the Skippers were defeated 5-2 by East Bridgewater and twice by Scituate. The Sailors defeated Cohasset 2-1 last week and 3-0 on Monday.

Cohasset has a 1-1 record in the SSL and 1-3 overall.

In the East Bridgewater contest forward Carla Lucas scored for Cohasset on a pass from Seavey. DiGirolamo kicked in the second goal for the Skippers and Nedrow assisted.

Last year the soccer squad finished the season with 4-8-4 record. According to Cohasset Coach Bill Fallon the Skippers lost six players to graduation. However, there are 14 players returning. The squad is sophomore dominated with 12 in all.

Last year's leading scorers Duncombe and Seavey are back for more action. This year's tri-captains are: Duncombe, a sophomore halfback; Ginger Ralff, a junior fullback and Tara Pompeo, a senior halfback.

Young library readers honored at a Dragon Party

A Dragon Party in honor of the 127 participants in dungeons, dragons, castles and keeps ended the successful summer reading program at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library.

The program involved students for kindergarten through tenth grade with 92 youngsters reading 20 or more books and several reading 100 books.

Erin McAllister, a second grader at the Osgood School, was announced the winner of the "Name the Dragon Contest." Erin submitted "Kraken" which was chosen the most dragon-like name from the many suggested by Cohasset children.

Erin said she selected the name from possibilities offered in "Roget's Thesaurus," a reference book in the children's room. Her prize was the 12-foot fiercely friendly green dragon that has been a summer resident at the library. The dragon and reading castle was designed and constructed by Liz Glasfeld, library volunteer.

As part of the Dragon Party festivities each child made a personalized dragon pin under the direction of Lisbeth Koopman-Wyman. Mrs. Koopman-Wyman is well known to Cohasset youngsters as a former art teacher in the schools.

The highlight of the party was a life-sized dragon cake decorated by Jill Crafts of the Friends of the Library, and her mother, Mrs. Hope Seeley.

The summer reading program which began in June ended Sept. 10. Children who read 20 or more books were given a paperback book of their choice from a special collection purchased by the Friends of the Library.

Paul Pratt Memorial Library reading certificates of accomplishment will be awarded in the elementary schools in the coming weeks to the following participants:

Painting the Indian pipal leaf

When Dhama Mansukhani returns to India after visiting his brother, Roy Manns and his family, he will leave behind a delightful reminder — the very delicate and different art which he and the members of his company, Ultrarts of Bombay, hand paint on the pipal tree leaf.

Mr. Mansukhani was especially popular with his niece Julie and her friends who were intrigued with the idea of being able to paint on a leaf. His patience in helping the children with their creations was very much appreciated.

In Bombay, the green leaves of the Pipal Tree are treated to remove their chlorophyl and then they are put under pressure for 15 days in case any part of the leaf is bent. The paintings which are done in oil are transparent and must be seen on a black background. Any picture of any color, design — even a photograph can be reproduced. They are now being sold at Kit and Kaboodle in Cohasset as well as at the Harvard Coop in Cambridge.

The 'Deep Sea Captains' of Cohasset...

By David Wadsworth

Looking back

Cohasset has a long and interesting history as having been an important seafaring community. Sailors from the town served in the Revolutionary War Navy.

Later, extensive family-owned fishing fleets operated from our harbor's docks and wharves. Throughout the 19th century Cohasset's home-grown fishing industry was an important part of the community's economic base.

Perhaps not so well known, however, is the story of the "Deep Sea Captains" of Cohasset. These were the hardiest type of sailors, challenging the dangers of the world's great oceans to journey all over the globe aboard large merchant sailing vessels. Some "Deep Sea Captains" were Cohasset-born and learned their profession while sailing on local fishing schooners.

Others of that unique group came to Cohasset from elsewhere, lived here and called the town their home. One of these was Captain Philip Fox. Born in Lincolnshire, England in the year 1795, Philip Fox made his way here, purchased a house on North Main Street owned by John Pratt, Jr., and on April 9, 1815 married Anna Willcutt, daughter of prominent Cohasseters Joel and Tamar Willcutt.

Having arrived in Cohasset, Philip Fox sailed from Boston to Charleston, S.C. as a mate aboard the vessel "Herald" under a Captain Bronson. The Captain had the misfortune to be washed overboard on the outward voyage and First Mate Fox took command of the vessel. On his first full voyage as Captain, Fox commanded "Herald" from Boston to Liverpool, England and arrived back in Boston after a return trip of 36 days.

A second trans-Atlantic voyage to Liverpool and back saw a return trip taking 45 days; not an illustrious voyage in terms of the elapsed time between ports. But the third passage of "Herald" was record-shattering.

Captain Fox, by now an experienced "Deep Sea Captain" drove "Herald" from Liverpool to Boston in the unheard of time of 17 days. The westward passage lasted from December 6 to December 23, 1819, and was the fastest crossing recorded to that time. At age 24, Philip Fox had set a record that was to last until he himself broke it several years later on a newer vessel. After the record breaking trip of 1819, Captain Fox spent the next three years on voyages to various ports along the Atlantic coastline, often taking his family along for the trip on "Herald." Then in 1822, Fox took command of the new Boston owned 359 ton packet ship "Emerald" and began a series of trans-Atlantic voyages which would produce another record-breaking crossing from Liverpool to Boston. (Both "Herald" and "Emerald" were packet ships, the smaller and slower forerunners of the later and more famous Clipper ships.)

After several comparatively slow voyages during 1822 and 1823, "Emerald" crossed from Liverpool to Boston in 16 days dating from February 21st to March 8, 1824, bettering "Herald's" record by one day. By this time, Capt. Fox had gained the reputation as being a hard driver of his ships and crews, but never losing a spar or a man during his voyages. Thus it was that "Emerald" drove westward from Liverpool in a constant gale to set its record. Legend says that during the trip, the ship's lee rail remained under water for much of the time, and upon its re-emergance as the ship entered Massachusetts Bay, Capt. Fox was heard to exclaim, "Why, here's a Stranger!" To verify the short duration of his Atlantic crossing, the Captain carried with him copies of a Liverpool newspaper which he tossed to the amazed ship's owners on the dock at Boston.

Captain Philip Fox continued as a Cohasset "Deep Sea Captain" until his death while on a Mediterranean voyage in 1832. His record of 16 days from Liverpool to Boston stood until broken many years later by the famous Clipper Ship "Stag Hound," a vessel having ten times the tonnage of "Emerald."

Capt. Fox's children and grandchildren continued to reside in Cohasset and were well-known members of the town's populace. "Emerald's" historic crossing still appears to hold the all-time record for vessels of the pre-Clipper days.

Loosening hair calls for new perspective

By Lois Martin

He was the picture of a morose man, sitting there, eyes squinted toward a sunless future, a person who's hair was falling out.

The man is featured in a Boston Globe ad, insensitively, on the sports page. And if you didn't read the words beneath the photo, you'd swear he has three family members in the intensive care unit waiting for brain cell transplants, one '62 Ford that was stolen and returned right after the insurance company paid off, and a female St. Bernard who seems to have sent out invitations.

PATCHES

But no, the man's hair is loosing its hold on his head. And the ad implores him to treat his hair follicles before they atrophy entirely.

Come on now, fella, buck up. Pick up that firm clefted chin in your right hand. So you didn't want to spend your shaving time placing remaining strands over the open spaces. You say you never counted on going bald.

Well, who looked forward to stretch marks? Who among us stood on tile floors to hasten varicose veins? There are thousands with upper arms that flap, others with rippled inner thighs, more with appendix scar incisions that seem fashioned from queen-size machetes.

The good news is that millions of dollars are founded on our tireless efforts not to look like we really do. We never give up. And baldness spearheads (forgive me) sound economy. There are those transplants like Burt Reynolds is rumored to have had, slippery toupees, and there are very large hats.

We Americans keep working on physical conditions that are alterable. This does not, you'll notice, address the manipulations some have seen fit to create on shapes of bodies.

Most of us, though, toy with our beings and if we can spruce up portions without major surgery or expense, we'll have at it.

Remember the spell of wigs? Well I had one when it was all the rage. The color was perfect. But I've never had mechanical ability and there weren't enough bobby pins to hold the thing in place. Consequently I was shopping one day when a close relative informed me that my wig was "bubbling up." Now, if one wears a wig or anything, it ought to be an improvement, not a disadvantage. Mine got hurled.

And though I favor one's own hair coloring, I wouldn't be opposed to having a few laughs with it. I did that one summer. I've always admired brunettes, those sultry devils who wear more contest winner banners than any other hair-colored person. So I dosed my head with a dark shade that looked wonderful on that gorgeous woman on the box.

Trouble was, it was summer, a time with loads of gleaming sunshine and pools laced with chlorine. These robust elements served to alter my new brunette topping to a shade that was reminiscent of the hue on a brass spittoon. That uplifting beauty treatment was abandoned along with other aspirations, like low cut blouses, purple jump suits, pieces of bikinies, and ankle bracelets. I even had a brief skirmish with false eyelashes (a gift) until a woman, speaking in hushed tones, told me it was glued perpendicular to my eye.

But it's fun to dabble in silly beauty gimmickry now and then. Few of us are above it. We slather on the scents till our eyes water. Some people use underpinnings that control sequenced stomachs.

Yet as self conscious as we are, we compromise. The beaches are a marvel of bodies featuring more imagination in shapes and sizes than are found in flowers. In spite of millions spent on alterations, everyone has unalterable characteristics.

And nothing keeps people out of jeans, those housings for the hitherto unconquerable portions of the populace.

So to that poor soul whose comb has more hair than his head, take heart. We always contrive one fetish to make up for another. And there's this rumor that bald men are virile, good dancers and gifted commuters.

As for heartless clods who poke fun at shiny pates and glistening foreheads that go from the front to the rear of the head, watch it. Everyone has physical imperfections and until someone develops discardable body parts, we're stuck with what we have and are.

That's a possible new perspective for balding people...you got yourself a discardable part. Replace it with something inventive, but watch those brunette toupees.

Audubon to sponsor bird seed sale

If you're planning to feed the birds through the winter, now is a good time to buy seed.

Mass Audubon is now sponsoring a bird seed sale in the Cape Cod/Southeastern Mass. area at the following wildlife sanctuaries: Stony Brook (Norfolk; 528-3140), Moose Hill (Sharon; 784-5691), Ashumet Holly Reservation (East Falmouth; 563-6390), and Wellfleet Bay Wildlife Sanctuary (South Wellfleet; 349-2615). The proceeds will be used to help support these sanctuaries.

To buy the Mass. Audubon bird seed, orders can be placed and paid for anytime until Oct. 9. (Seed pick-up will be Oct. 23 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.). You can order your bird seed by contacting the nearest sanctuary or Mass. Audubon headquarters in Lincoln (259-9500) for order forms.

Many commercial bird mixes are designed to appeal more to humans than to birds. The Mass. Audubon mixes have been prepared to attract a wide variety of birds and to give them a sound diet.

By Joan Pinkham

Growing up in Wellesley, it was as certain as the arrival of spring and fall that Mike, our mailman, would make his appointed rounds twice daily, (once on Saturday) and so it came as quite a shock to find when we moved to Marshfield that a trip to the post office was the only means of keeping in touch via the mails. For most of us now, the day wouldn't be complete without a stop at the post office, the local meeting place. My day always seems a little pleasanter when I find a letter from someone such as Marguerite Morris, one of our readers. She writes: "There's always a limit on how much relish one can make in an attempt to use all tomatoes before a killing frost. Last year, Joe MacDonald of Rexhame, director of food services at Santa Maria Hospital, gave me the following recipe and judging from all the raves at Christmas, the following is a delightful surprise jelly called:

MOCK RASPBERRY JAM

Green tomatoes, about 5 lbs., ground up
(I use a hand grinder with a small-size cut)
Measure out 2 cups and drain slightly
1½ c. sugar
1 3 oz. raspberry jello mix
Boil 20 min., put in sterilized jars, add wax, etc.

Marguerite adds: "If time does not permit preparing the jelly now, I have found that tomatoes can be ground, sugar added and frozen until you are ready to make the jelly."

* * *

For the last few years our post office box has played host to more and more catalogues chock full of gifty items for Christmas. It used to be that a seed catalogue or two would make a lonely appearance in the spring, but now! Labor Day was yet to come when the deluge began. Someone out there must know I can't resist little items such as the home robot for $7995, a brass duck press for $795 used to make the French dish "cannetone rouennaise a la press," or the Cave du Vin, designed by French ecologists to duplicate the temperature, humidity and darkness for the famous wine caves of France. That goes for a mere $2595. More my speed is the Williams-Sonoma Catalog for Cooks which had recipes such as this:

CHOCOLATE CHEESECAKE

Line outside of 9" springform pan with aluminum foil, shiny side out. Butter inside of pan. Mix:
1¼ c. graham crumbs with
2 T sugar and
2 oz. melted butter and press into pan evenly.
Refrigerate.
Melt 6 oz. bittersweet baking chocolate with 1/4 c. rum over low heat (1 min.) and set aside.
In electric mixer beat:
1 lb. cream cheese until fluffy. Beat in gradually:
3/4 c. sugar
1/2 c. sour cream
1 T vanilla extract
4 extra-large eggs, one at a time.

Mix well. Put bowl over hot water and stir until smooth. Pour 10 oz. of batter into another bowl and set aside. Mix remaining batter with chocolate using a whisk, then smooth over hot water. Take springform pan from refrigerator and fill with chocolate batter. Gently pour plain batter over the top and make swirls in batter with a fork. Bake at 325 degrees for 50 min. Cool to room temperature, remove rim and refrigerate overnight.

That old philosopher, Thoreau, writes: "For my part I could easily do without the post office. To speak critically, I never received more than one or two letters in my life...that were worth the postage." Well, I'm glad everyone doesn't feel that way, for Maggie Manley would never have sent me this recipe for:

HAMBURGER PICKLES

Slice enough unpeeled large green cucumbers to give you 20 cups (5 qts.). Pack into a gallon container NOT METAL and add 2 sweet red peppers cut into 1" pieces, or use 2 (3/4 oz. each) cans dry minced sweet red pepper. Meanwhile, mix together in large container: 2 c. dark vinegar, 4 c. sugar, 3 T kosher salt, 1 T each, celery seed, mustard seed, dill seed, 2 large onions sliced thin. Add to cukes; coat well. Cover tightly and refrigerate at least 1 week before serving. Makes one gallon. Keeps up to a year in the refrigerator (but they won't last that long).

Photography for beginners at Art Center

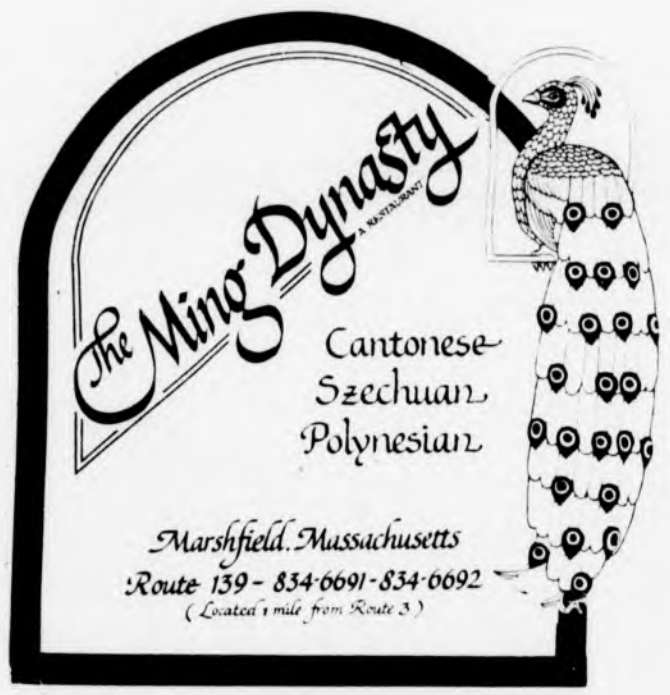
Photography for beginners can be just the class you need whether you want to learn how to improve those holiday snapshots or want to become more informed on how to make your exhibition-worthy photographs even better.

This class will be taught by Paul Fortin at the South Shore Art Center in Cohasset starting Monday evening, Sept. 27 at 7:30.

Mr. Fortin will use a lecture format beginning with the workings of the camera and covering such topics as good composition, lighting, how to use depth of field and different exposure techniques.

Both color and black and white will be included and class members may use the center darkroom when they learn developing and printing skills. The last part of the eight-session class will be a demonstration of developing and printing black and white film. The instructor will use slides to illustrate his lectures and will discuss the photographs that the group has made.

Starting in October, there will be a photography class for both beginners and intermediates that will concentrate on learning beginning and advanced darkroom skills.



Registration must be made in advance by mail or in person. Telephone 383-9548 for further information or come by the Center office at 103 Ripley Road, Cohasset.

The sleeper of November . . . aid to private schools

By Tanna Kasperowicz

If you thought Question 1 on the Nov. 2 Ballot was a simple question of whether public schools should be mandated to loan textbooks to private school students (K-12) you were wrong.

What appears to be a $2 million minimum textbook loan question could well be the multi-million dollar question of the century in Massachusetts as it pertains not only to textbook loans but also to partial tuition reimbursement to private school students.

The most frightening aspect of the question is that even opponents of this legislation appear to be operating in the dark on what this binding legislation means: i.e. Civil Liberties Union, League of Women Voters, Mass. Association of School Committees and Citizens of Public Schools.

State Reps. Mary Jeanette Murray and Thomas Brownell of Quincy along with the Secretary of State's office say the aspect of tuition reimbursement is part and partial of the proposed legislation.

Whether tuition-reimbursement would require any additional referendums is unclear. Rep. Murray said she thought not.

A lobbiest for the Civil Liberties Union said she thought it would have to travel the Supreme Court route because of Massachusetts' strong anti-aid law already on the books. Others say the limitations of Proposition 2½ would pill any plans for tuition-reimbursement. But there is still confusion in this area.

In a Constitutional Convention held June 1, 1982 the legislation passed 144-44. In a Constitutional Convention in July, 1980 the same legislation passed 171-04.

Should Massachusetts voters vote affirmatively on Nov. 2, the Massachusetts Constitution will be immediately altered to extend additional aid to private school students upon request by private school students.

The following is an excerpt of the proposed article of amendment as it pertains to private school students K-12:

"This amendment shall not be construed to prevent the Commonwealth or any of its political

School Supt. Crowell worries about staff cuts

By Patricia Anne Walsh

School Supt. Eugene Crowell warned the school committee Monday that he may have to reduce staff by seven to eight people unless the town's valuation is increased so that school spending can increase beyond the contraints of Prop. 2½.

The cuts would not necessarily be all teachers.

Without an increase in real estate value through revaluation, the allowed increase in the school budget of $3.69 million will be less than half of what is needed to maintain the status quo, said Crowell.

The superintendent reported an enrollment of 1399 pupils as of Sept. 27 (a decrease of 41 over last year), and he predicted a drop of 60 students next year — nine in Grades 7-12, 50 at the Deer Hill School and one at the Osgood School.

Projected enrollment decreases would predicate the loss of two or three teachers if enrollment were the only factor to be considered.

However, Supt. Crowell noted he is facing staff salary increases of 7.5 percent. Moreover, he believes there is little chance that more money can be squeezed from the school operating budget.

People may say that Prop. 2½ didn't affect the school system, but that may change next year, warned Crowell, unless the schools can get more money through increased revenue resulting from revaluation.

Selectmen to interview five candidates for fire chief

Selectmen are scheduled to interview five candidates this week for the fire chief's position, three are local men.

Three out-of-town applicants have withdrawn from the list finalists.

A special Town Meeting in August directed selectmen to choose a chief from eight finalists rather than from the three chosen by the fire chief selection committee.

The three local finalists are acting Fire Chief Roger Lincoln, Captain James Gurry, and Hull firefighter Arthur Bilodeau.

Victor Cail of Reading, Robert Winston of Duxbury and Lousi Bennett, Jr. of Beverly are the three cnadidates no longer interested in applying for the chief's job. The chief's job became vacant in March when former Fire Chief Charles Piepenbrink retired. Both Winston and Cail were chosen finalists by the selection committee.

Under the plan adopted by town meeting, selectmen were to choose the new chief from the three finalists named by the selection committee. However, Special Town Meeting amended the article to expand the list of finalists to eight. The only original finalist remaining is Martin Dooley of Hartford.

Winston, who is a lieutenant in the Boston Fire Department, sent selectmen a letter listing certain conditions to be met before he would meet with the board for an interview. Selectmen Chairman Henry Ainslie, Jr., described the conditions as impossible to meet. Winston requested absolute control over the fire department, backing from selectmen, and a salary range, which is higher than what is being considered by the board.

In addition to the local applicants and Dooley, selectmen will also interview Frank Sylvester of Pawtucket, Rhode Island.

At last week's meeting, Selectmen adopted a detailed job description for the fire chief's position. They planned to interview the five finalists on Tuesday and Thursday this week.

Cohasset's week...

LWV candidates' night

The League of Women Voters of Hingham, Cohasset and Scituate will co-sponsor a regional candidates' night Oct. 6 at 7:30 p.m. in the Scituate High School Auditorium.

Candidates for state senator, state representative and U.S. Congress will be represented.

By this week the following candidates will participate: Allan McKinnon and Thomas Barry, state senator; Mary Jeanette Murray and Caroline Stouffer, and Christopher Bowker and Philip Johnston, representatives; and Jack Conway, Congress. Due to Congressional activity, Rep. Gerry Studds, as yet, has not been able to make a definite commitment.

Each represented office will share a half-hour format, beginning with two-minute opening statements from each candidate, followed by 20 minutes of questions from the audience and ending with three-minute closing statements. A moderator and timer will direct questions to the candidates.

There will be a maximum time limit of two minutes for each answer and rebuttal. Following the presentation, there will be a coffee hour and opportunity to meet the candidates.

The League of Women Voters has presented and hosted local candidates nights in the past. It is one of the best opportunities for concerned citizens to hear the candidates prior to election. All citizens are urged to attend Oct. 6. If you require further information call Janine Broadhurst at 383-6127.

Leak detection begins

The town is scheduled to begin it's water leak detection program next week. Last week the state's Executive Office of Communities and Development (EOCD) lifted the hold on a $10,500 matching grant which had been awarded to Cohasset for leak detection.

Water Supt. Ben Curley said sub-contractor Heath Consultants of Stoughton would locate the leaks in water mains throughout the town using an aqua-scope. He said the leaks would be marked on the surface so that department workers could repair the leaks. The entire town, which includes 36 miles of pipes, will be checked. The detection part of the program should take between 10 days to two weeks.

The water leak detection program was slated to begin last week but was held up because of the EOCD's concerns regarding Cohasset's low income housing policies.

Assistant Secretary Joseph Flately of EOCD wrote last week, "EOCD hereby removes restrictions placed on the town's leak detection grant...However, we are recommending that the town's...water system rehabilitation grant continue to be withheld until our concerns regarding Cohasset's housing policies are resolved."

The town's Housing Authority was scheduled to meet Monday this week to discuss the matter.

Those $20 tickets may be too high

By Donna Cogliano

If you were tagged by police recently for parking illegally at Sandy Beach or Wadleigh park you might have been fined too much. Violators parking in these two areas are fined $20.

Executive Secretary Arthur Clark has sent the parking fine fee schedule to Town Counsel J. Blake Thaxter for review. He said there's a possibility that the town is fining violators too much for parking illegally at Sandy Beach or Wadleigh Park.

The town may be faced with returning some of the fines already collected. The new parking fine fee schedule was adopted by selectmen earlier this year.

Most restricted parking violations in town have set fines of $10. For instance, overtime parking, blocking a fire hydrant, obstructing a driveway, hindering snow removal and government island parking call for a $10 fine.

Other $10 violations are: parking in a restricted area; wheel more than a foot from a curb; right wheels not along curside; obstructing sidewalks or crosswalk; all night parking where restricted; parking within 20 feet of an intersection; double parking and parking in a handicapped reserved area.

Bridge parking violations are listed as $20 fines. Clark is expecting an opinion from Thaxter today in time for tonight's (Wednesday) selectmen's meeting.

Clark explained that the town could be overcharging for parking in violations in two areas. He said there is no problem with surcharging which the city of Quincy has done. He said Cohasset Town Meeting voted last year to approve a five dollar surcharge on violators who were late with payments.

The $5 sur-charge was approved when parking clerk duties were turned over from the courts to the towns last year. If a parking fine is not paid within 21 days the town has the authority to charge a violator an additional five dollars.

After dog hearing

Family agrees to remove their dog

Rather than risk the chance that another child might be injured on Pleasant St., Robert Gunville told selectmen last week that he would voluntarily get rid of his family dog, Ginger.

Gunville made the statement at a dog hearing on an incident involving Ginger and a 10 year-old girl who was hospitalized for eight days earlier this month.

Ginger had lived with the Gunvilles for the past eight years and during that time Gunville received only one complaint from a neighbor regarding a barking incident where the dog got loose one winter, he said. Dog Officer Richard Yocum said he found no record of complaints on Ginger for the past three years.

The hearing was held last Wednesday by selectmen after the parents of Nora McCarthy of 45 Old Pasture Road requested that the board restrain the dog following a Sept. 9 incident when the girl was thrown from her bike. She sustained a fractured skull and multiple bruises. Terry and Marie McCarthy wanted the dog removed from town.

Terry McCarthy said he didn't want the dog destroyed but had requested that the dog be removed from Cohasset. "I don't want this to happen to anyone in this town...I want to make it very clear - we want the dog removed from town," he said.

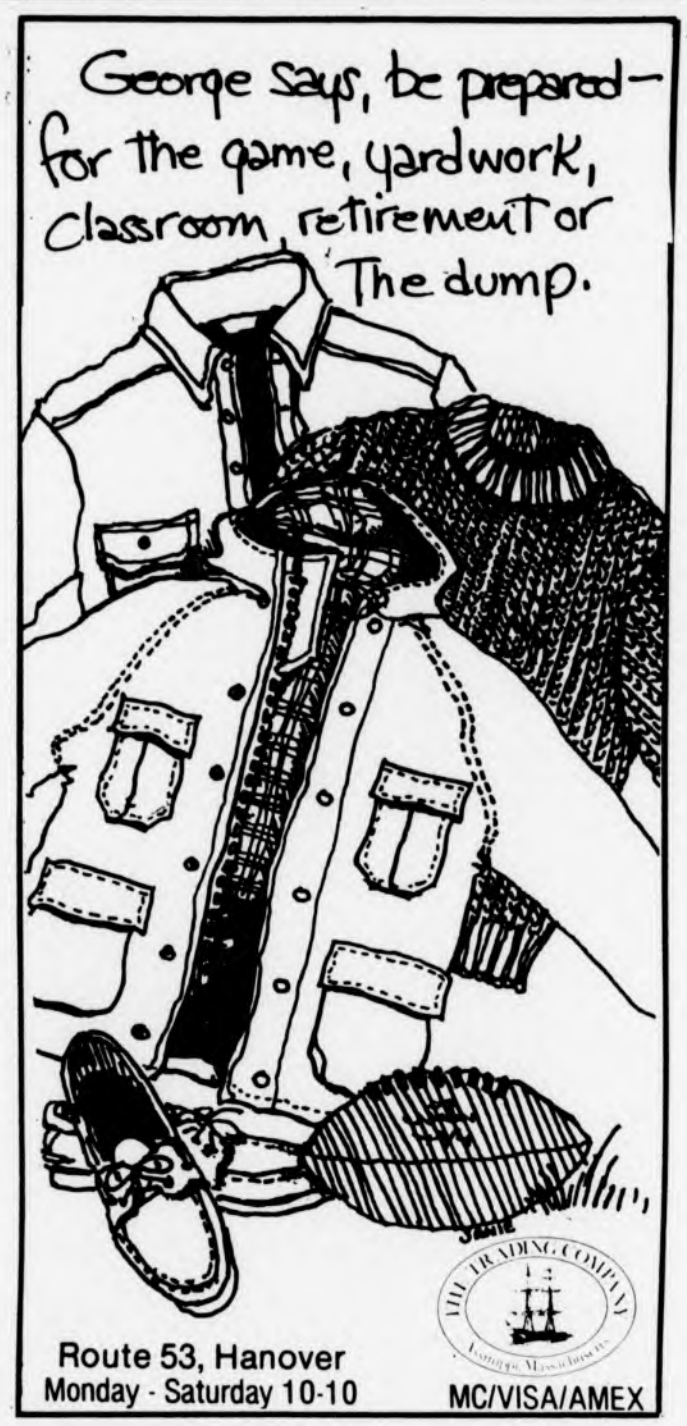
Marie McCarthy said she was not convinced that permanent restrainment was possible. "If it happens again, you (Mr. Gunville) would feel absolutely terrible. It's the possibility of another tragedy that we don't want to see again. Our kid happened to bounce back but the next one might not," she said.

The three members of the Gunville family would not guarantee proper restrainment of Ginger. At the close of the 45-minute hearing session, Mr. Gunville said he would ask the dog officer help him find another home for the dog since he promised his daughter that he would not put the dog to sleep.

During the hearing a few residents told of repeated incidents where Ginger had chased their vehicles along Pleasant St. One woman said the dog had bothered her children while delivering newspapers in the neighborhood. The woman said she felt bad for not telling Mr. Gunville of the problem earlier.

Another woman said she had to slam on her car brakes to avoid the dog and just look at the skid marks on Pleasant St., she said. The dog chases cars and is a general nuisance, she said.

One resident told of a similar incident to Nora McCarthy's where a little boy was knocked from his bike in front of the Gunville home on Pleasant St. The woman said the dog leaped from the driveway onto the boy.



Mr. Gunville's son, Bobby, said the incident occured Sept. 9 when the girl rode downhill at a fairly fast speed on her bicycle. He said there was nothing she could do. Mr. Gunville said the dog got in the path of the bicycle. Others said the dog ran toward Nora causing her to crash into the bushes and tree.

Mr. Gunville said that vehicles are known for speeding along Pleasant St. "Please drive slow on Pleasant St.," he said. "Every house has children." If there are skid marks there it's because people are driving too fast.

"I love that dog, said Gunville, "but it's not worth a child's life."

Normally a hearing is closed and taken under advisement by the board. However, since Gunville voluntarily resolved the situation — the matter is closed. Selectmen put a time limit on removing the dog.

The Gunvilles will have a month to find a new owner for Ginger. Mr. Gunville said he would give the dog away as soon as possible.

subdivisions from providing aid, materials, or services to a pupil in a private school, which does not discriminate in its entrance requirements on this basis or race or color, to the full extent permissible under the first amendment to the constitution of the United States; provided, that the individual pupil requests the same; and provided, further, that the general court shall have full power to impose conditions or restrictions upon the furnishings of such aid, materials, or services."

WHAT PEOPLE ARE SAYING

Cohasset School Supt. Eugene Crowell said in a phone interview Monday that the Cohasset School Committee plans to discuss the Nov. 2 question on a futute school committee agenda. There is almost no chance the school committee will not oppose the legislation.

"The legislation appears to be all inclusive," Crowell said. "It could well include tuition payments and other things people haven't got a handle on at this time."

Crowell reaffirmed the hardships Proposition 2½ have placed upon all school systems, noting further the limited state funding of education which continues to be a sore point among public school administrators.

In Massachusetts, private schools already receive a substantial amount of public funding for transportation, health services, school lunch, special education screening and evaluation, special educational services and federal programs including Title 1. These private school services cost the taxpayers of Massachusetts more than $11.5 million.

Should Question 1 be passed in November, Crowell said the immediate impact to the Cohasset system could be to provide textbook loans to approximately 196 students in Cohasset who attend private schools.

Crowell thought the town would not be required to provide "funds" to those students not using public school textbooks.

However, Rep. Brownell said he felt public school systems would be required to supply either textbooks or funds to buy textbooks should students attending private schools not be utilizing the same textbook.

In any case, Crowell said the legislation could cost Cohasset taxpayers "substantial" dollars.

Crowell said his experience in Danvers was that small private schools tended to line up with public schools curriculum in order to benefit by textbook loan situation.

In addition, Crowell said the whole philosophy of public school education could well be at stake. "We have only to look at the Boston School system," Crowell said. "Free public schools allow for social mobility, they provide a strong sociability ladder to all people."

When the state starts providing funding for private schools it could well mean that the public schools could be left with "the tired, poor and the handicapped," Crowell said, further pointing out that the proposed amendment says that private schools can not discriminate with regard to race or color, but makes no mention of handicapped students.

Caroline Stouffer, the Democratic candidate for state representative, and Republican Rep. Murray are at loggerheads over the issue. Murray voted affirmatively on the proposed legislation in 1980 and 1982.

Mrs. Stouffer agreed with Supt. Crowell that the question is too open-ended and further questions the state's commitment to public education. "The costs are unknown," she said.

Frank England, former Cohasset school committee chairman said, "The Federal government is already subsidizing private schools through the back door. If we now subsidize at the secondary level we will destroy the public school system."

Marie Caristi, Co-President of the Cohasset League of Women Voters called the legislation very broad. "The State League of Women Voters is against the legislation; it's opposing it on financial issues alone."

Diana Kornet, chairman of the Cohasset school committee said her board hasn't yet discussed the issue. "Personally, I'm a little concerned about the fine print. I'm also worried about deleting the effectiveness of public money when it's spread too thin."

If you were to look anywhere but in the United States, you might come to the conclusion that the closet is an American invention. Elsewhere, free-standing cabinets have always held linen, blankets and books. Armoires were originally intended to hold armor. They later were outfitted with rods, shelves and drawers to hold clothes. Today, you can use these highly flexible pieces of furniture to hold anything from a stereo to a wardrobe. An armoire's size need not be a limiting factor. Indeed, it could become the focus of a room or hallway. The decorative detailing may make it preferable to an austere wall unit.

There are today many pieces, on the order of tables that shift from coffee to dining height or offer hidden storage space. They are multifunctional and highly adaptable. You can create extra space in many ways. Even new wallpaper can make a room look larger. Here at BOUND BROOK PAINT & HARDWARE we have a wide selection of wallpaper which features the finest names in the industry. You will find us in N. Scituate at 763 Country Way where we are open Mon-Wed 8-6, Thurs & Fri till 8:30, Sat. till 5 or phone 545-3624. We'll even recommend contractors if you wish to have it professionally installed.

DECORATING TIP:

An armoire can be placed in any room of the house.

Health Board sets new rules for Cohasset Heights

The board of health this week adopted new regulations regarding the Cohasset Heights Ltd. landfill.

If all provisions are not complied with by the owners, the board of health has the authority to levy a fine of $200 per day.

The board, which has the authority to adopt such regulations at its regular meetings, also established a 150 ton daily limit at the privately-owned landfill.

Among the regulations were specifications that the landfill be opened from 6:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., a monthly report on waste materials received must be filed by the owners, a weighing mechanism must be installed at the landfill area to measure the amount of tonnage received daily, all site preparations at the area must be in accordance with the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE), and no specific hazardous wastes can be accepted without the approval of the board of health.

All provisions must be followed by the board's next meeting Oct. 18. A letter was to be sent to Cohasset Heights Lt., notifying the owners of the approved regulations. Town Counsel has approved the amount of the fine to be levied against violations.

Health Agent Elaine Eliopoulos said she would "like to have a handle on what is happening" at the landfill before daily tonnage requirements are increased. The landfill owners had indicated to the board they would prefer to have a 300-ton limit established. Before that is approved, Eliopoulos said, she would like to know specifically how much is being dumped at the site now. Installation of a scale is imperative, she noted, along with a daily logging of trucks which deposit at the site.

In other board action Monday night, a probable septic problem was reviewed for two developments proposed for lots 17 and 20 on Heather Road. Engineer David Primmer came before the board to discuss the leeching problems he had encountered, specifically at lot 17, which is owned by Roland Leary.

The thorny problem facing the engineer and the board of health, is that the home on lot 20 is 95 percent complete, and the foundation on lot 17 has been constructed. Primmer is not the original engineer on this project. It was after construction of the foundation and the home that perk tests by Primmer were taken on the properties and leeching failures were found.

The board's concern was that no home be constructed or occupied which contains a marginal septic system. The home which has been constructed contains four bedrooms. Board member Michael Bliss suggested the two lots be combined into one acre-sized lot and that a proper leeching field be constructed within the two subdivisions. Under no circumstances would the board approve a septic system on lot 20 which has filed all water table and perk tests, the members said. Primmer said he could probably construct a proper leeching field on lot 17.

The board questioned whether the building inspector should take back all building permits for the two properties within the next three weeks, until a course of action is decided. In the meantime, Primmer will talk with owner Leary about his future plans for the properties.

The board also met with developer Jack Riley about a renewal of his permit to construct a septic system on lot 4 on Jerusalem Road. A permit had previously been issued in 1975, but nothing was built. According to the board's regulations, the perk tests which were done in 1975, would no longer be valid after two years.

The board renewed the permit in 1980, and Riley contended he should not have to go through another test because of the change in the board's regulations. Since the test was originally completed in 1975, the board has altered its regulations four times, he said.

Eliopoulos recommended that another perk and water table test be completed, since new developments have been constructed in the abutting properties. This could alter the present water table content, she said. Tests performed on the property in 1975 might no longer be valid since the nearby developments have been constructed, she added. A water table test could not be conducted until March.

Riley disagreed with Eliopoulos' statements, and said his consulting engineers have said the water table, which has previously been approved, would not be significantly altered by subsequent construction on abutting properties. He said he would never opt to develop land again in Cohasset, saying it was not a place "to land-bank now." He said developers are at the mercy of a board of health which changes membership frequently, and rules and regulations are altered as often.

Board of Health members Bliss and Marilyn Sweeney said they could not forsee any drainage problem with the property since it previously had such a proper perk rate. They could not approve placing a financial burden upon the developer (for more tests) when it was clear this property would not be considered "marginal" even with the increased development in adjoining lots, they said.

If Riley does not construct the septic system within the next two years, he will have to again complete all perk and water table tests for a renewal of the permit.

The board also decided that developer Fred Thayer will not be issued a permit for a septic system at 100 Pond St. until all changes required by the board regarding the development be submitted to the board.

His plans for the development must indicate all changes previously ordered by the board. The board's consulting engineer, John Modzelewski will work with Thayer regarding submission of the altered plans.

Notes & comments

...We're glad that in answering the Mariner survey (which runs again this week) some of you have exhorted us to continue being the "town scold"...'cause here we go again.

It seems that the state Department of Public Works has decided it no longer wishes to be responsible for snowplowing on Route 3A, a state highway. The responsibility of snowplowing — and the expense — would devolve to the abutting towns. For those of you who haven't been off the farm in a couple of generations, that includes Cohasset.

In previous times such action by the state would translate into an involuntary tax increase for the town. The cost of snowplowing would be added to the tax rate and to your assessment. It would be as simple as that.

But under Proposition 2½ property taxes must be reduced to 2½ percent of assessed valuation (hence the "2½.") Short of falderal with assessments there is no way an involuntary state mandate can now show up in your tax bills.

What will happen if this plan succeeds is that the plowing of Route 3A will go into the town budget where it will compete for funds already severely reduced by Proposition 2½. It'll compete with educating our kids, putting out fires, providing police protection and things like that.

We strongly oppose unfunded state mandates at any time under any circumstances. But at a time when the state's finances are relatively solvent and when the towns are trying to get by in the second year of Proposition 2½, this proposal is outrageous.

We suggest this would be a good project for our elected state officials to tackle. How about it Allan McKinnon and Mary Jeannette Murry? Let's get cranking and bury this wicked proposal where it belongs — under a mountain of yellow snow.

...The long-awaited appointment of a new fire chief is about to occur. Selectmen will interview the five remaining candidates this week (three of the eight finalists have withdrawn) and will come to a decision in the very near future.

There is a lot of feeling in town that the appointee should be one of the three of the five who are local residents. Our strong conviction is that selectmen should pick the best candidate, all factors considered.

We supported expanding the original list of three non-resident finalists to include some residents. And we think that being a citizen of the town is a small factor in a man's favor. But the overriding criterion should be the man's qualifications for leadership.

That is what selectmen should be concerned about when and if they do their duty property...for the good of Cohasset.

...Donna Cogliano, our Cohasset reporter for nearly a year, leaves us this week to return to Northeastern University where she will attend graduate school.

The only word for Donna's attitude toward her work here is extraordinary. It's been her frequent practice to spend a Monday at the office, cover a couple of meetings in town on Monday evening, write all night, go home for an hour, and come back for Tuesday's grind looking as though she had had nine hours' sleep.

The road to intimidation...

By Claire McDonough

I think the reason I'm so easily intimidated is that I was an only child. I didn't have other intellects to test my ideas against. It was unthinkable to question my mother.

"Eat your turnip," she would tell me. "Children are starving in Armenia."

I would obediently shovel it in, not daring to ask how the turnip got from my mouth to the Armenian plates.

To this day, anyone with the slightest claim to being an authority figure can intimidate me. Like a shoe salesman. I will call him "Sir," and hobble out of the store with size 4 shoes on my size 6 feet because he's told me they run large, and anyway they'll stretch.

A storekeeper can point at my "Save the Bottle Bill" lapel button and tell me that the bill is anti-elderly, and that poor little old ladies won't be able to get their empties back to the store.

I'll cringe, and it'll be nine hours later that it occurs to me that if the little old ladies got their bottles home full, they should be able to get them back empty.

Not so my kids. There are nine of them, and they were all born saying, "How come?" "Why not?" and "Sez who?"

"Breida," Skipper will say, "I haven't been to Mass yet. If you babysit at Morris's from ten till I get back, I'll finish up."

"Why should I?" Breida will respond.

"Because last Thursday I babysat at the Lewis's while you did the Student Council minutes."

"Yes, but I said I'd make your bed for that."

"Sure, but you didn't."

"That's because you always have so much junk on top of your bed that you'd have to bulldoze it before you could make it."

"So? And anyway, that's Larry's video game on my pillow."

Larry enters the fray at that point.

"I know it's my game, but I don't have to put it away because Pat was the last one to use it. I let him and Mike Fitzmaurice play with it for an hour because Mike let me take his tent camping."

"Right," Pat will contribute. "But that doesn't mean I have to put it away. When you loaned it to me, it was understood that you'd put it back where it belongs."

"Sez who?"

"It's commonly understood the world over. The person who loans is the one who puts the things away. Everybody knows that."

"Where is it written? Is it carved in stone with a finger of fire?"

"That still doesn't get me any help with my babysitting," Skipper will interject. "Are we all agreed that Breida should do it?"

"The question is now moot," the Dragon will reply. "Breida left the house five minutes ago while you were arguing about the video game."

"Well," Skipper will sigh, "somebody has to do it." At that point all the eyes in the room will turn in the same direction. All tongues will speak the same word with one voice.

"Ma!"

They know who can be intimidated.

Criticizes 'Police Log' comment

Letters

To the Editor:

This letter will be as short and to the point as I can make it, although my anger could cover many pages.

I am currently a student at U.N.H., in fact only in my second week at school, so when I received the Mariner today I couldn't wait to sit back and enjoy my hometown news. As customary, I scanned the "Around Town" and I couldn't believe the snide comment of Tanna Kasperowicz on page six, in the fourth column.

The comment, quote, "I am in need of some contacts at the high school regarding the A.T. news. Your other news will, of course, appear regularly in the police log," was totally unnecessary and so demeaning. Were you trying to be funny? As an editorial staff member, I'm surprised at the lack of tact and the show of poor judgement you used in printing that.

Writing for a newspaper must require a lot of responsibility and it's sad to see that responsibility is being overlooked. What respect I had for your column has been thoroughly destroyed. I've lived in Cohasset for 16 years and the kids you are talking about, since you made no specific references (and why not? You went so far as to print that comment...) are ex-classmates, good friends and family of mine.

Or was your comment directed to certain kids? It wasn't printed that way. The comment implies that you are talking about CHS students in general! Certainly these kids are not deserving of your printed abuse.

I miss my home very much, please don't taint the Selectmen briefs...

SQUARE DANCE

Selectmen voted last Wednesday to allow St. Anthony's Sociables to use town hall for a square dance on Nov. 6. The request was unanimously approved by the board.

HUGO'S LIGHTHOUSE RESTAURANT

Hugo's Lighthouse Restaurant will be allowed to serve liquor an hour earlier on Sundays for brunches. Attorney for the restaurant, Charles Humphreys, requested a 12 noon starting time for serving liquor rather than the 1 p.m. starting time. Other establishments in town have 11 a.m. and noontime starting times for serving liquor on Sundays.

The board's vote was 3-0 to extend the liquor license an hour on Sundays.

UNPAID AMBULANCE BILLS

During the past three years $5,500 has amounted in unpaid ambulance bills in Cohasset. In 1978 the sum of $2,000 was not collected from citizens using the ambulance, in 1979 $1,750 was not collected, and in 1980 a similar amount, $1,725.

It used to cost $25 for each ambulance trip but that has now risen to $75.

Last Wednesday selectmen instructed the Executive Secretary, Arthur Clark to investigate handing the unpaid bills over to a collection agency. The town currently contracts with an agency for collection of its parking fines.

WIRE INSPECTION RATES

Selectmen are considering an increase of wire inspection fee permits. Wire Inspector Steve Wigmore recommended that the board approve an $8 minimum to keep Cohasset more in line with other towns' rates. He said Hull charges a minimum of $10.

Cohasset currently charges $5. The proposed $3 increase would become effective Nov. 1.

BRITISH REGIMENT

Selectmen have agreed to recognize a British Regiment which is forming in Cohasset under the direction of Bruce Collins.

Collins, of 36 Ash St., is forming a group to recreate the 43rd Regiment of Foot which fought in the New England area during the Revolutionary War. He said both men and women are welcome to join the regiment.

The regiment will perform in parades, battle reinactments and various ceremonies. Regiment members will carry authentic muskets, bayonets and swords. Only blanks will be fired.

POLICE COPY MACHINE USE

Selectmen are considering the board of health's and sewer department's request to use the copy machine at the police station for daily office work.

Though the health and sewer departments are located across the road from the police station, secretaries usually travel to town hall for copies during their lunch hours. Selectman Mary Jane McArthur noted that secretaries were not given mileage expenses.

The board tabled the request and will consider allowing use of the machine for certain hours each day. Police are said to be in disagreement with the proposal.

DUST AT WHEELWRIGHT PARK

Selectmen heard a complaint from Jacqueline Wirth of Red Gate Lane last week regarding a dust problem at Wheelwright Park.

She said, "Lack of control of activity by horseback riders, including non-residents, individual horseback instructions, the increasing number of horses, and horse manure are a major concern. I feel an immediate study by the Board of Selectmen should be made before any more unnatural substance or further activity takes place."

About 20 horseback riding enthusiasts attended the selectmen's meeting with Sally Davenport as their representative. Davenport said the riders were continually exploring new ways of solving the dust problem for which only one neighbor had complained. She said the health agent had recommended use of calcium chloride which was to be used this past weekend at a riding event.

"I feel sympathy for Mrs. Wirth," said Davenport. "I think that we have been as responsible as we can." She said the group would continue to research ways to eliminate the dust problem. Selectmen said they would instruct the highway department to look into the drainage problem at Wheelwright Park.

School Committee debates where to advertise

By Patricia Anne Walsh

A review of School Department hiring policies quickly evolved into a lengthy discussion of how best to advertise, when John Langmaid III suggested that all teacher openings be advertised in the Boston Globe.

School Supt. Eugene Crowell pointed out that such advertisements weekdays cost approximately $150, and $300 on Sundays. He sought permission to advertise at the discretion of the superintendent.

Mr. Langmaid said he "doesn't see advertising in the Mariner and Mirror, since the Ledger covers the same territory." CHS principal Richard Streeter pointed out that people who see ads in the local papers may very well inform potential candidates they know, who live outside the immediate vicinity.

Langmaid stressed area advertisements, since he wants less parochialism in hiring local people. School Committee member Martha Gjesteby agreed because she "wants to try to get the best group of candidates."

Committee Chairman Diana Kornet said she was "satisfied with the arrangement that if the Superintendent finds the pool adequate, local advertising is OK," but that it might be necessary to advertise further for science positions.

She didn't quibble at the cost of the Globe, however. Joseph Nedrow felt advertising should be left to the direction of the superintendent. "You may get more credentials, but not necessarily more attention to the kids," he said. Richard Conley agreed with Nedrow.

Langmaid suggests change in warning cards

Regular report cards are issued for Cohasset Jr./Sr. High students four times a year.

However, when a student is not working up to his potential, a teacher may initiate a warning card during the fifth or sixth week (or even later if there is a sudden drop in performance) of any marking period.

This report may be of a positive nature as well as calling parents' attention to unsatisfactory academic progress on the part of the student.

School committeeman John Langmaid suggested changing the name "Warning" to "Special Report" since they are used when a student improves or is making exceptional progress as well as when "trouble is brewing." He also suggested a revised special report form with 21, instead of 31, categories, so that the form would provide space for teacher comments and encourage teachers to use it, rather than incorporating a check-off list.

Langmaid's suggestions to have the guidance office monitor return of warning notices ran into opposition by CTA President, Thomas O'Neil, who said, "The logistics would be worse than for report cards. You don't know what you are asking; it would disrupt school for one week.

"Now, the onus is on the student to get their parents' signature," said O'Neil. "This may be weak, but it is educationally and morally sound. You would be taking the burden off the student."

Notes & comments...

She has also impressed a lot of people around Cohasset. There have been many weeks during her tenure when our stories and comments have not necessarily produced huzzas among the denizens of town hall. But as near as we can tell everyone in the den (i.e., town hall) has grown very fond of Donna.

Donna will continue to "freelance" at the Mariner occasionally. We wish her best of luck at Northeastern. With an attitude like hers she can do most anything she wants and be successful.

PERSONNEL MATTERS

The school committee voted the following extra duty positions with the previously agreed 7½ percent increase over contracted amounts: Joseph McCullough, Assistant Football Coach at Step 2; Andrea Palardy, Girls' Varsity Gymnastics Coach at Step 3; and Lawrence Shultz, Junior High Boys' Basketball Coach at Step 3.

Joan Robbins and Kearin Dunn were both appointed senior class administrative advisors at $161.00 plus the 7½ percent increase.

FREE HOUSE

After some discussion of the summer house at 169 Border Street, which the owner, Drexel Gibson, wishes to give away free to some charity or school, the school committee agreed with Superintendent Crowell's suggestion that it be fully investigated. Although the cottage may be uninsulated and have walls supported by metal bars, school committee chairman Kornet suggested possible uses for athletic equipment storage on-site at Milliken Field and for administrative offices. Business Manager John Raftery reported that a cement building for athletic storage might cost about $6000.

DRUG & ALCOHOL POLICY

School Committee member Martha Gjesteby requested an update on the Drug and Alcohol Policy status. Supt. Crowell stated he was meeting with Town Counsel Jack Slater for two hours Tuesday and hoped the policy would appear on the next agenda. He advised moving "slowly and cautiously." Gjesteby, after noting that development of the policy had already taken 18 months, said she wants students "to have direction" this year.

BALLOT QUESTION NO. 1

School committeeman John Langmaid III requested that discussion of Question No. 1 on the ballot be included on next week's agenda. The question would permit making public funds available to pupils attending primary and secondary private schools. Gjesteby requested that SAT scores also be discussed.

BIDDING REQUIREMENTS

New state certification of bidding requirements were outlined at the meeting. Prequalification of applicants must be requested of the Secretary of State's office, and an "Application to Bid" must be filled out before any bidding can commence.

The architect would be the judge of who the qualified bidders are, by making out a point system, also to be filed with the Secretary of State's office. These procedures are expected to delay the bidding on the roof for at least two weeks.

The administration still hopes to have the auditorium roof completed before snow arrives. They also anticipate that if the bids come in low, additional waterproofing, pointing, flashing, and work on the vestibule area can be accomplished.

EXTRA DUTY RAISES

The school committee received notice from Thomas O'Neil, CTA President, approving the proposed 7½ percent raise for extra duty salaries. Since this was an increase beyond the contracted terms, the school committee's lawyer had been consulted, and School Supt. Eugene Crowell noted "to show that no unfair labor practices existed in doing this."

Members agreed that these raises should be retroactive to the beginning of this school year. The cost of the increase will be approximately $3300. Member Martha Gjesteby questioned from which accounts these funds would be taken. Member John Langmaid suggested leaving that discussion "until we get to budget." Crowell replied that he would take the money from the Salary Account, "unless we run short in that account and then have to take it from other accounts."

GIRLS' SPORTS HONORED

Cohasset placed 10th out of 32 schools in Division 3 on the Dalton sports ratings charts. Girls' sports standings especially contributed to the high ranking.

SKILLFUL TEACHER COURSE

Department heads, Edward Sheehan and Paul Narkowitz, have been chosen to attend the skillful teacher course at Duxbury High School, which stresses supervision and evaluation of teachers. The course is being held under the auspices of the Lighthouse Superintendents Assn.

METCO APPROVED

Chairwoman Diana Kornet signed the METCO plan. School Supt. Eugene Crowell said he is still working to resolve METCO transportation pickup problems within the city of Boston.

COURSE REIMBURSEMENT

The school committee agreed to stick with the terms of the contract with the Cohasset Teachers Association regarding the fact that payment for courses would be "any fee paid to a college." The Norfolk and Plymouth Teachers Associations are billing for courses offered to teachers, from which proceeds are to go to the association treasuries.

Currently, the Cohasset contract provides for payment toward two courses a year up to a maximum of $400 with the provision that the fee be paid directly to a college. Chairwoman Diana Kornet suggested that any revision be considered at contract renegotiation time.

Deer Hill Principal Kenneth Ekberg estimated that out of a $150 charge for the Association courses which could be held locally in Hingham, $35 might go to Fitchburg State for administrative costs, the professor might receive $85, and the remainder go to the Association. School Supt. Eugene Crowell pointed out that Kenneth Cisneros, a teacher, had raised the point that these courses might cost the committee less than equivalent courses reimbursed at the $200 rate taken elsewhere. Member John Landmaid said, "We are getting into the problem of whether we should subsidize organizations."

GYMNASTICS TRIP

The school committee approved a request for a trip to Nantucket by the girls' gymnastic team for an exhibition. The cost, including chaperones, would be provided from private sources, including the Gymnastics Boosters.

MOUNTAIN TRIP CONSIDERED

The request by physical education director Marilyn Watson, for a junior high trip to Mt. Monadnock was returned to the administration without a vote of the school committee, due to several suggestions by committee members.

Members suggested that a Saturday trip might be better than a Friday excursion, during which classes would be missed by 41 participants. They wanted the planned selection of students which is currently limited to the "first come, first served" choice reexplored, so that with added volunteer adult leaders, more students might participate.

GOALS WORKSHOP

School committee member Nedrow said that the school committee should interact with the selectmen, the advisory committee, the teachers association and the P.S.O. He felt the superintendent and administration should deal primarily with the professional staff, physical facilities, and transportation. He recommended having professional architect volunteers appointed to the school facilities committee, and stressed the importance of school committee relationships with the selectmen and advisory committee as being crucial in the budget process at the next town meeting. He also said any goals should be stated clearly in writing and be measurable.

School Committee member Martha Gjesteby said that in the last two years the school committee had not completed a formal evaluation of the Superintendent, and she wanted it done. School Supt. Crowell felt his evaluation should be ongoing, and not saved up to the end of a year.

Weekly academic progress reports

Weekly Academic Progress Reports are sent out by teachers to some students. Teachers indicate the degree of the student's academic progress during that school week.

It is a mutual agreement between parents and teachers.

School Supt. Eugene Crowell recommended that instead of pupils seeking reports from the teachers on Fridays, that in the future weekly progress reports would be handled by the guidance department. They would be logged, and a copy kept to safeguard the integrity of delivery for both the teacher and the parent.

In contrast to warning notices which may be issued in numbers exceeding 1000, only a limited number of weekly reports are issued, said CHS Principal Richard Streeter.

Even with meat prices out of sight, a home-cooked meal costs half as much and tastes twice as good as a meal prepared from packaged food. Also, packaged foods, convenient and tasty as they are, really don't save that much time, for by the time you trot off to the store, get the little tins open and packages unwrapped and into the oven, it might be easier to just broil a hamburger and make your own salad. Robin Rondeau writes: "I love being able to make ahead and freeze this:

CHICKEN TETRAZZINI

1/4 c. butter
1/4 c. all-purpose flour
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
1 c. canned chicken broth
1 c. heavy cream
2 T dry sherry
7 oz. spaghetti, broken into small pieces, cooked and drained
2 c. cubed, cooked chicken or turkey
1 3 oz. can mushrooms, drained
1/2 c. grated Parmesan cheese

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Melt butter over low heat. Blend in flour and seasonings. Cook, stirring until mixture is smooth and bubbly. Remove from heat. Stir in broth and cream. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil 1 minute. Add sherry. Stir in spaghetti, chicken and mushrooms. Pour into 8" baking dish. Sprinkle with Parmesan. Bake 30 min., or until bubbly in center. If desired, brown top by placing briefly under broiler. Serves six.

I've been reading again and am impressed to learn there are 10,000 different supermarket items, almost 60 percent of which are processed or convenience foods. And many, in these times of high production costs, are made with the cheapest of high-starch, high-fat ingredients. In the days of the old Yankee cooks, they had to make do with what was in the pantry. Without a car waiting out in the garage, unable to pick up something for the evening meal at the supermarket, New England women came up with some truly wonderful dishes. New England now imports more than 85 percent of its food from outside and we should do more to support the local roadside stands which are fast disappearing from our area. Pick up some ripe pears when next you stop by, for Lavinia Nordstrom's timely fall dessert called

GINGER PEAR CRUMBLE

1½ c. fine gingersnap crumbs
1/2 c. brown sugar
1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 c. butter or margarine, melted
3 pared ripe pears, cut in half
1 T lemon juice

Mix together crumbs, brown sugar, salt and butter. Place half of mixture in bottom of buttered 8" baking dish. Place pears, cut side up, on crumbs. Sprinkle with lemon juice and remaining crumbs. Bake in 350 oven 25 to 30 min. Serve warm topped with ice cream or whipped cream. Serves six.

Polls and surveys and research findings delve into all aspects of our lives. Why, I sometimes wonder. It boggles the mind to think of the time and money spent for researchers to come up with the finding that "old-fashioned moms, married women with four or more children and no paid employment, are a vanishing species." Not exactly news to many of us and not all bad, when you think of women such as Susan Sack and Jan Fossella with their "Serendipity" catering service who somehow find the time for a rewarding experience outside of their family responsibilities. Here is their recipe for

FRENCH ONION SOUP

2 lg. Spanish or Bermuda onions
3 T butter
1 clove minced garlic
Salt and fresh ground pepper
1 T flour
2 c. rich beef stock
1 bay leaf
1/4 tsp. thyme
10 slices French bread cut 1" thick
1 c. grated Parmesan

Peel and slice onions thinly. Melt butter. Add onions and garlic. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and stir about 15 min. until onions are very golden in color. Sprinkle onions with flour and stir to remove any lumps. Pour in liquid. Add bay leaf and thyme. Cover and simmer 40 min. Toast bread. Bread slice may be placed on top of soup and sprinkled with cheese when served. "The stock can make or break this soup," Sue writes. You can use canned beef broth but it does not have the hearty delicious flavor of homemade.

SPELLING WORDS

Spelling words to be learned this week are: KNEW, KNOWLEDGE, LABORATORY and LAID.

NEWSMEN VISIT CHS ENGLISH CLASS

Peter Mehegan, the television journalist who is currently anchor for Channel 5's "Chronicle," visited the 11th and 12th grade students of a CHS course called The Mass Media.

Mr. Mehegan answered the students' questions and gave some insights into television news production.

Glen Ordway, sports commentator from radio station WRKO, and John MacDonnell, a news photographer who has worked for the Associated Press, The Boston Globe, and The Quincy Patriot Ledger, will visit the class later in the term. The class is a part of the high school English Elective Program, and is taught by Jo-Ellen Wood.

DEBATING TEAM NEWS

This year all high school and college debating teams throughout the United States will be debating the topic: "Resolved that the United States should significantly curtail its arms sales to other countries." The topic also includes the shipment of any materials used to construct nuclear weapons.

For the past year Cohasset Debaters have taken part in debates sponsored by the South Shore Forensic League. Mr. Edward F. Sheehan, Cohasset Debate Coach, is presently serving as treasurer for the League, which includes the towns of Cohasset, New Bedford, Taunton, Somerset, Dartmouth, Silver Lake (Kingston) and East Bridgewater.

Due to the inexperience of the young Cohasset team this year, most Cohasset debaters will be classified as novice participants. The team lost several experienced debaters, when they graduated last June.

Last year a large number of Seniors signed up for the Debating Team, and shortly thereafter had their pictures taken for the school year book. Allegedly, that was the last time a few of these youngsters were seen at team meetings. On the other hand, some of the underclassmen who were conscientious debaters, such as Meg McCullough and James Walsh, were not notified and not included in the photos.

At the organizational meeting of the debating team last week, Coach Sheehan took the affirmative position that "This year team pictures will only be taken of those who have actually participated in a couple of debates." We applaud his stance and find his position "not debatable."

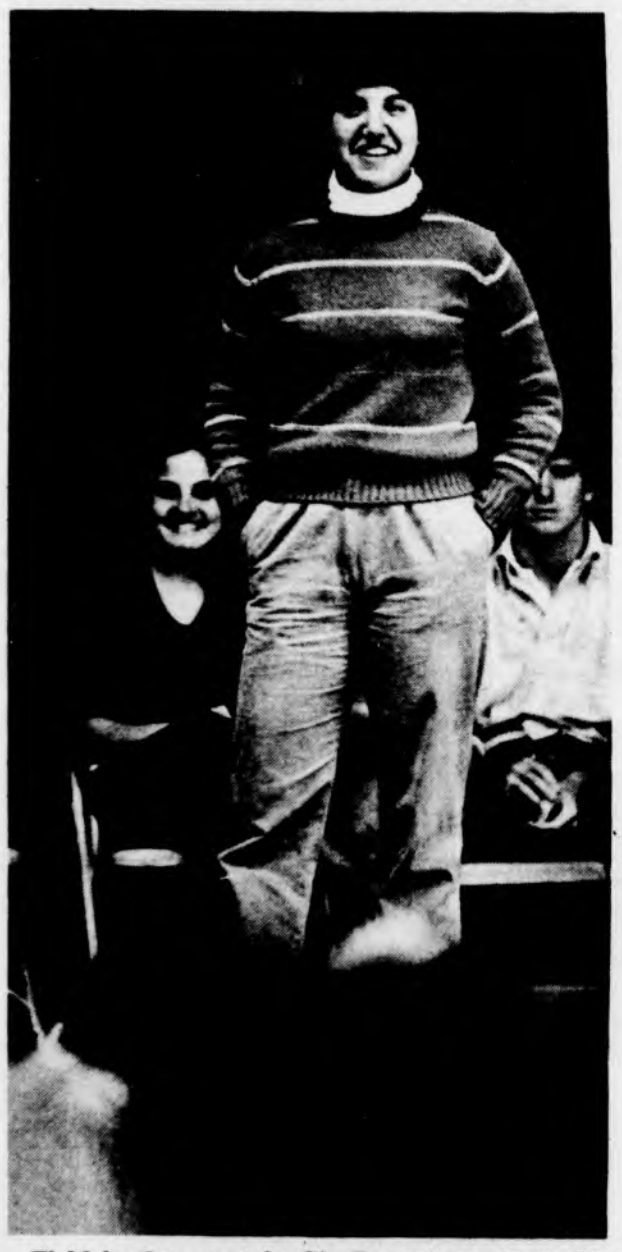
BOOSTERS

Rosee Duffee reports that the Boosters have made two new appointments: Margaret Hoffman, as Publicity Chairman, and Carol Meers in charge of sales of "Cohasset" embroidered apparel. The water repellant, three-season Navy jackets at $25 and V-neck Navy acrylic sweaters at $15, are sized for parents as well as students.

Those wishing to purchase these articles, sold for the benefit of the Booster's scholarship program and other projects, should contact Mrs. Meers directly at 383-1587.

The Boosters' Fall Sports Banquet for parents and athletes will be Nov. 9, so mark your calendar now.

Students in the '83 Merit Program



CHS Principal, Richard Streeter this week announced the names of 10 seniors who are being commended in the 1983 National Merit Scholarship Program.

Letters of Commendation will be presented to Samantha Barrett, William Davenport, Joanna Fone, Jeffrey Giles, Elizabeth Glasfeld, Elaine Mullen, Ann O'Connell, Sean O'Connor, Joy Pratt and Frederick Zotos, who placed among the top five percent of the participants in the 28th nationwide competition.

A spokesman for National Merit Scholarship Corporation, which conducts the Merit Program, stated, "To rank among the top 50,000 performers in a competition that includes over one million participants is an outstanding attainment, deserving of public recognition. We sincerely hope that the academically able young men and women who are commended in the Merit Program will diligently pursue their higher education opportunities and career goals. The nation will benefit by the full development of their talents."

The students being commended this month, who are now beginning their final year of high school, entered the 1983 Merit Scholarship competition by taking the qualifying test in 1981. Commended participants scored high, but slightly below students in their respective states who qualified as Merit Program semifinalists. Only the 15,000 semifinalists, who were announced in a national news release on Sept. 16, will receive further consideration for about 5,000 Merit Scholarships to be awarded next spring.

Two Cohasset seniors, Mark Caughey and Paul Dormitzer have been designated as semifinalists and will continue in Merit Scholarship competition. They will be notified in February should they qualify as finalists. Finalists are the only students in the program who will be considered for awards.

Field hockey captain Gia Barresi speaks to Deer Hill School students as did other CHS varsity captains last week.

PSO fall orientation program

The Cohasset Parent School Organization will present a Fall Orientation program to highlight its first general meeting of the school year Tuesday, Oct. 5.

Coffee will be served at 7:30 p.m. and a slide presentation on the special features of each school in the system is scheduled to begin promptly at 8 p.m.

The meeting will take place in the new study hall adjacent to the high school cafeteria. Introduction of administration, specialists and board members will follow. Distribution of a checklist of such school-related groups as Boosters, Scouts and other parent support groups is on the agenda.

"The program is designed to be both informative and comprehensive," said Nancy Sandell, president of the organization. "It will have special appeal for 'first-timers' in the Cohasset school system, K or pre-K parents, newcomers to the town and parents with children advancing to a higher school level such as Deer Hill or the High School.

"Sue McNamara, PSO activities chairperson, and her committee, have worked hard to ensure that the evening will be interesting for all, and fun too."

Fine-free policy working well at Pratt Library

Librarian Richard Hayes reported this week that the Paul Pratt Memorial Library's fine-free policy is working.

During the first week of the amnesty, he said, "hundreds of overdue and missing books have been returned."

Valuable materials which have been in demand by other library users were among the returned materials, Hayes said.

The amnesty period will continue through Oct. 12. Hayes urged parents to search their homes for library materials, including those borrowed by their children, and return them. "There will be no fines and no questions," he said. The outdoor book return box is open twenty-four hours a day.

Following the amnesty, regular charges will be resumed. Overdue charges range from five to 10 cents a day, with a maximum charge per loan of five dollars. Additional charges are made if notices have to be mailed.

The program will review the methods and materials (including media materials) to be used within the school for the education of the students in these subject areas.

The Community Health Education Advisory Committee has been working closely for the past two years with Health Coordinator Michael Gill reviewing resources and materials and would like to implement the program this fall.

German engineering makes Jetta Diesel America's best mileage luxury sport sedan.
At a time when other car makers are asking you to shrink your standard of driving, Volkswagen is asking you to do neither. Jetta Diesel gives you a luxurious interior for four. Plus a trunk in back that holds six good size suitcases.
And with an EPA estimated 43 mpg and 59 mpg highway estimate, no other luxury car even comes close. (Use "estimated mpg" for comparison. Mileage varies with speed, trip length, weather. Actual highway mileage will probably be less.)

CHS Skippers shut out opponents

By Donna Cogliano

It's two weeks into the season and the Cohasset varsity football team is undefeated and unscored upon. On Saturday the Skippers gave the home crowd plenty to cheer about, especially in the first quarter when they scored 20 points against Holbrook.

It was a victorious home opener as Cohasset shut out Holbrook, 28-0, Saturday. The score was 14-0 before the Bulldog squad regained their composure. A 14-0 lead can change a team's offensive strategy said Cohasset Coach John Leone. He said the early two-touchdown lead was advantageous for the Skippers.

The game's first score came shortly after the opening kick-off when Cohasset returned the ball almost to the end zone. Bob Meers caught a five-yard pass from quarterback Rich Evans and the touchdown. Evans booted the extra point giving the Skippers a 7-0 lead.

It was Holbrook's turn to move the ball but they made a mistake and Cohasset had possession once again. This time junior Lee Wilson brought the football in on a three-yard run. Evans kicked the extra point and the score was 14-0 in Cohasset's favor.

Before halftime arrived Evans, the senior co-captain, connected with senior Tom O'Brien for a nine-yard touchdown pass. The kick failed and the score stood at 20-0. The second quarter was scoreless.

In the third quarter Cohasset scored a two-point safety when senior co-captain Bill Cuff tackled the Bulldog quarterback in the end zone. This amounted to a 22-0 Cohasset lead.

In the final quarter Wilson scored his second touchdown of the day. He ran the ball in from the one-yard line and the extra-point kick failed.

Holbrook made seven costly errors in Saturday's game. The opponents' errors were turned into Cohasset heroics as D. Anderson picked off two interceptions for his team. The Skippers recovered four Holbrook fumbles.

In the past Cohasset football teams have been known to give up points, confessed Leone. This year is different and the Skippers will force opponents to earn points, he said.

Meers, a senior, caught seven passes totaling 102 yards for the day. O'Brien caught two passes for 60 yards with one completion being a 48-yarder from Evans.

Senior Pat Broderick had a fine game running up 65 yards in seven carries.

Evans was named the South Shore League's co-player of the week by WATD radio. He completed 10 of 19 passes for 186 yards in the air. Leone said four of Evans' incomplete passes should have been caught since they were sent directly into the arms of receivers. Cohasset covered 350 yards for the day which included both passing and running yardage.

Leone says the real test comes this Saturday at Hanover when Cohasset will be faced with stopping the Indian's explosive running back Jim Earle. Cohasset is 2-0 overall and 1-0 in the league.

Abbruzzese at Bowdoin

Bowdoin football player Chris Abbruzzese of 90 Old Pasture Rd., is a fullback on the 1982 Bowdoin College football team. A senior, he is a 1982 graduate of Deerfield (Mass.) Academy.

Boys soccer drops two in league play

The Skipper boys' soccer team was defeated twice last week by South Shore league opponents. Their record now stands at 1-2 with a win over Middleboro two weeks ago.

Though the Cohasset squad was defeated 5-0 by league-leading Duxbury, Cohasset Coach Jon Anderson said his players were strong defensively. In fact the Skipper defense held the Dragons scoreless in the first quarter.

The score was 2-0 at the half with Duxbury in control. Anderson said his team appeared a little run down in the second half when Duxbury added three goals. The final score was 5-0.

Anderson said his team played outstanding soccer against one of the best teams, ever, out of Duxbury High School.

In the Abington game the Green Wave scored two goals before ten minutes had passed in the game. It was a case where the Skippers had to play catch-up for the entire game, said Anderson. Abington defeated Cohasset, 3-1.

Cohasset's Scott Duncombe scored a goal in the third quarter with Lee Reid registering the assist.

This weekend the girls' and boys' soccer teams will travel to the Cape for non-league games versus Nauset and Harwich. The teams raised money for the trip this past summer with a car wash.

Field hockey gets 1st win

The field hockey team downed East Bridgewater, 2-1, last week in a home contest for their first win of the season.

Last week Cohasset Coach Gino D'Girolamo was concerned that two South Shore opponents had shut out the Skippers. His team needed to score and break the ice. Seniors Joy Pratt and tri-captain Gia Barresi put Cohasset on the scoreboard versus Easties.

Senior Mia Graham set up Barresi's goal with a pass in front of the goal. Barresi assisted on Pratt's score with junior Richelle Sargent.

D'Girolamo said the East Bridgewater squad had a strong second half keeping the ball down in Cohasset's end most of the time. Fortunately the Skipper defense was able to hold off the Easties' attack, allowing only one goal.

Cohasset has a record of 1-3 in the South Shore League. Last week's game with Abington was rained out and will be played Friday at 10 a.m.

Local treasures on the historical tours

By David Wadsworth

The Cohasset Historical Society and the Cohasset Recreation Department are co-sponsoring a special tour of the Historical Society's three museum buildings at Cohasset center.

The tour will take place at 11 a.m. Friday, Oct. 8. All Cohasset and South Shore residents are invited to attend.

Featured in the tour will be the Maritime Museum, a 1790 ship's chandlery now containing artifacts relating to Cohasset's seafaring past as well as a general collection of historical material dating as far back as the late 1600's; the Captain John Wilson House, an 1810 dwelling holding 18th and 19th century furnishings as well as a unique antique kitchen fireplace located on its second floor; and the Independence Gown Museum where one may see a selection of 19th and early 20th century gowns, uniforms and accessories given to the Society by Cohasset residents.

The Recreation Department's Museum Tour is scheduled to last for about one hour, and Historical Society personnel will be present to provide information and to answer inquiries relating to the museum exhibits.

This will be one of the last opportunities for South Shore area residents to visit the Cohasset museums this year, for the Historical Society's buildings at Cohasset center are scheduled to end their summer open season Sept. 30. They will be open Oct. 8 especially for the tour.

Each of the Cohasset Historical Society's museums offers a different and unusual view of the history of a small New England seacoast village, and the Recreation Department's Oct. 8th tour will give everyone an opportunity to take a glimpse into the lives and times of early New Englanders. Three centuries of historical exhibits are on display in the museums. carefully arranged to tell a fascinating story.

To register for the Cohasset Historical Society-Recreation Department special Museum Tour, call the Recreation Department Office at 383-6791.

Jazz classes

"Jazz Throughout the Years" is one of the evening classes for adults and high school students which will be offered at the South Shore Conservatory of Music in Hingham this fall.

The course will be a survey of the different jazz eras from blues, ragtime, dixieland, swing, big band, early progressive to modern and fusion. Classes will meet on Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 9. Jazz discussions will be supplemented by recordings of the jazz greats and occasional piano playing by Tim Kelly, who will conduct the class.

Kelly is a graduate of the Berklee College of Music. He is a much sought after pianist and he and his groups have played in hotels and night clubs all around the Boston area.

South Shore residents have enjoyed his playing at the Whiton House in Hingham and at various local functions. He teaches Jazz piano and improvisation at the Conservatory. Tim is a Weymouth native and still lives there with his wife, Rhonda, who is also a musician.

Information about this and other classes at the Conservatory, off 19 Fort Hill Street, may be obtained by calling the Conservatory office, 749-7565.

Flea market

The Cohasset Historical Society will hold its fall flea market on the grounds of the Lothrop House, Summer Street, Saturday, Oct. 9 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

As is usual, the Society's flea market will have a wide selection of materials, and this time will include an extensive accumulation of fine glassware and chinaware. Dealers wishing to set up tables should call Mrs. Parker at 383-0773 or 383-6930.

Anyone wanting further information may call her at those numbers. The Society's flea markets are held annually as a fundraising event for the community-side operations of this group of dedicated volunteers.

Be sure to attend the Cohasset Historical Society's Fall Flea Market, and plan to arrive early for the best selection.

Roberta Raffa a founder of Studio IV

Have you decided to do your Christmas shopping early? Are you looking for that extra-special, unique gift? Are you rather tired of poking around shops which carry similar lines of merchandise?

If your answer is a weary "Yes" to each of these questions, then your next shopping trip should take you to 59 Water Street, Hingham Harbor, where you will find a marvelous art gallery — Studio IV!

Five creative and versatile ladies own and maintain this unique shop. One of the founders, Roberta Raffa of Cohasset, specializes in making and arranging paper flowers, as well as painting in oils in a contemporary style using soft, gentle colors. Another founder, Gloria Worthington of Hingham, has her specialty in painting portraits and landscapes from photographs, as well as oils in still-lifes and other general subjects.

Another Hingham resident, Elizabeth Robinson displays her artistic talents through watercolors and portraiture. Susan Kilmartin of Hingham specializes in doing paintings of houses from photographs — a great gift for any proud homeowner. The fifth partner in Studio IV is Grace Lawrence of Hingham who uses watercolors as a medium to show her artistic abilities. The prices are right; the quality of art superb; the parking facility excellent at this unique studio located near Hingham Harbor, just off Route 3A.

Needless to say, because of the talents involved in this fairly recent addition to the Hingham shopping area, (Studio IV opened its doors April 1, 1982) many beautiful and unique works of art are available for discerning collectors. With the Christmas season fast approaching, many of us are searching for special gifts for friends and relations. The gift of art is often "That perfect gift!" A painting can complement a lovely decor, can become the nucleus of a larger art collection, or can simply signify the importance of a friendship.

In order to choose the painting that is right in color, subject and size for a particular friend or relative, one of the five Studio IV artists would be happy to help you. There are artistic styles represented at this popular gallery which will appeal to all.

Studio IV hours are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday.

Very often a visitor to the gallery will be able to appreciate the artists at work, as the shop is also their studio. This fall classes in oil painting are being provided by Gloria Worthington.

For further information on these classes and on the Studio itself, drop by at 59 Water Street, Higham, or call 749-8767.

Art Center plans for auction and sale

The South Shore Art Center has received $100,000 in pledges towards its $500,000 Building Fund goal.

The committee for the non-profit, educational corporation, headed by President of the Board of Directors, Ubaldo DeBenedetto gathered recently to make plans for the "Great Art Auction and Sale" on Saturday, Oct. 30 at the Cohasset Town Hall from 12 to 5.

With celebrity auctioneer, Ron Della Chiesa from Channel 2, the Art Center will auction and sell works by its artists and members donations from all over the South Shore.

Margaret Dilon, director, and Linda Summers, gallery co-ordinator, along with representatives from other local communities will meet to discuss plans for the Saturday afternoon fund raising event.

They included Berj Kailian of Weymouth, Ali Swedock of Scituate, Jeanne Replogle of Cohasset, Louis Kalish of Quincy, Joe Burbank of Cohasset, Bill Bell of Plymouth, Henry Dulaurence of Hingham and Betsy Millard of Cohasset.

The group was enthusiastic about the upcoming event which will feature portable antiques and collectibles, as well as something delicious to keep you warm and content throughout the afternoon auction. The sale will take place from 12 to 5 with sealed bids taken between 12 an d2.

The Art Center is a member of the Massachusetts Cultural Alliance and is affiliated with Massachusetts College of Art Continuing Education. The Center offers a year-round program of classes, exhibits, instructions and social events. The "Great Art Auction and Sale" will be one of the events for the fall schedule.

Donations (with descriptions) from the community will be accepted at the Center on Friday, Oct. 22 from 12 to 4 and on Saturday, Oct. 23 from 10 to 2.

Rec. Dept. youth soccer program draws 300 kids

The Recreation Youth Soccer Program is now under way with over 300 boys and girls in Grades K through 9, participating.

Grades K through 2 will be involved in clinics and scrimmages at the Osgood school on Saturday mornings, for the next seven weeks. There are 81 participants in that program.

Two hundred twenty participants in Grades 3 through 9, who are broken down into two divisions, have been assigned to 12 teams which meet Saturday mornings for league games.

This year's program coordinator, is again Jim Gallagher, who is also a member of the Cohasset Recreation commission. He has been involved with a number of youth and adult sports programs over the years.

He will be assisted by a number of adult and high school volunteer coaches who have graciously donated their time, efforts and expertise.

Without the help of the volunteers, the program costs would be so prohibitive as to preclude conducting the League.

GUITAR LESSONS

The Recreation Department is currently accepting telephone registrations for guitar lessons to be held Tuesday or Wednesday afternoons, from 3 to 4 p.m. for beginner I and from 4 to 5 p.m. for beginner II. The fee is $15 for five 45 minute lessons.

SEPARATE CLASSES FOR ADULTS AND CHILDREN

The Recreation Department announces that registrations will be accepted, via phone for Hand Caning or Fiber Rush Courses to be taught by Kenneth S. Sargent of Country Workshop, Cohasset. Individuals may register for one, or the other of these programs.

The programs are scheduled for Thursday mornings from 10 a.m. to 12 noon, meeting at the Town Hall Thursdays for five weeks. The fee for this program will be $16 per person for the entire course. There will be a materials charge between $7 to $10. Non-residents will be accepted on a space available basis.

The program is designed to teach, (hands on) chair caning or rushing beginning with basic techniques, graduating to the finished product i.e.: a caned or rushed chair. Each person will need a chair to work on.

AEROBIC EXERCISE CLASSES

The Recreation Department is currently accepting registrations, via phone, for Aerobic Exercise Classes to be taught by Mrs. Margaret Watson.

Evening Classes will be held Monday from 6:45 to 7:45 p.m. in the Town Hall Auditorium, beginning Monday, Oct. 4.

Morning classes will be held Wednesday from 9:30 to 10:30 at the Town Hall Auditorium, beginning Wednesday, Oct. 13.

Participants may register for either class for $15 for the eight week session or may register for both classes for $22.50 for eight weeks.

To register, call the Recreation Office at 383-6791. Non-residents may register on a space available basis.

Conway Realty offers special financing

For the next 30 days, the 26-office Jack Conway, Realtor Company has arranged to finance some $2 million worth of homes at the attractive rate of 13 percent.

Sound good? It is, but there are two conditions the would-be buyer must fulfill to qualify for the special rate arranged by Conway executive vice president Dick Cahill in cooperation with a local bank.

"The first condition is that the buyer must purchase a home exclusively listed through one of the 26 Jack Conway offices from Beacon Hill in the North through Cape Cod in the South. Secondly, the home must be sold by one of the Conway company's 350 sales associates," Cahill advised.

The 13 percent rate is a fixed rate for three years, Cahill noted. The rate can be changed every three years after that, through the 30-year life of the note, but the interest rate can never go up more than 5 percent or down more than 2 percent, according to Cahill.

The 13 percent rate is available with 20 percent down and raises slightly to 13¼ percent with only 10 percent down.

Single family homes and multiple-family dwellings, up to four units, qualify for the loans, as long as the property is to be owner-occupied, Cahill said.

Further information is available by calling Cahill directly at 479-1500.

LWV barn sale to be held Oct. 9

The barn sale to benefit the Cohasset League of Women Voters has been postponed until Saturday, Oct. 9 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 231 South Main St.

Items to be sold include bric-a-brac, small appliances, home furnishings and toys. There will also be a farmer's table where home-grown vegetables and home-canned goods may be purchased.

League members are encouraged to drop their donations at 231 South Main St. on Thursday, Oct. 7. Those wishing to leave their donations earlier or arrange for a pick-up may contact Rita Strong, chairman at 383-0939. No wearing apparel will be accepted.

Proceeds benefit the League of Women Voter's many projects including Candidates' Nights and debates, studies of warrant articles and referenda issues and their three current studies: national security, state health care policies and local government structure.

Love should be refined to produce perfection

By Lois Martin

Nothing more confounds my earth-bound mind than the elitist effort to improve the quality of humankind through its selective sperm bank.

Perhaps one ought avoid such a word here, 'sperm,' though there's no avoiding it even for discretion's sake in entering the debate of parenting for the sake of more perfect breeding.

Clearly this isn't a new notion. Reproduction by a stern choice of the male has been done for centuries among animals. Indeed among serious herdsmen darn little pasture cavorting is by chance. Zoos, farms, animal breeding businesses leave nothing to careless accident in gaining new generations of herds or flocks.

PATCHES

So then it's come to this. Shall we as a human race seek to improve, if not to guarantee, our quality by using sperm wittingly aware of the intelligence and developed skills of the male parent with high intelligence quotient — IQ.

Well some people have decided that's the only way to go. No more of two adults choosing one another on more careless criteria. Scrap love or even short-termed commitment. Head straight for the sperm bank.

A recent news story in a nearby daily aroused more questions in me than understanding. And I'll tell you for sure, it didn't arouse passion for prime time parenting.

It seems, thus far anyway, that they're trying to secure male lifegiving material (tough to find articulate definitions for 'sperm' sometimes) from brilliant scientists.

That's well and good. But my first question is, 'Is that all?' Will this perfect society do without mechanics? I consider some of them of genius. What of physicians, educators? Where will be the artists? No plumbers? No seamstresses, tailors, talismen, soldiers?

It didn't say all skills and abilities and interests would be banked in the repository.

But it did say women were clamoring to be carriers of scientist's children. What it didn't say was whether or not any notable attributes would be required in the mother. In fact one woman who'd conceived and delivered from the bank's trust fund had been determined to be abusive of other children so they could be smarter. That doesn't sound too bright.

I can't imagine they'd go to so much trouble to have one parent a genius and not give a hoot about the other. Or is the male all that matters? At least they ought to look for balance. Maybe the female should be a marvelous runner, a printer, a statesmen or something that could promise more than scientific genius. I've never seen an offspring yet that didn't have echos of both parents.

Missing too was any suggestion of more subtle forms of genius. Original thought, for example, qualifies as measurable intelligence. Yet it may surface in ways that don't involve a formula. A leader. Give us a good leader.

And followers. No great person can make it without those who'll be persuaded and be the regiments for great commanders, the sub committees, the go-fors.

It would be kidding ourselves, too, to think they'd breed for volunteers. If that segment of many millions were eliminated from our society, our lifestyles would be dramatically changed. No one would be a Girl Scout leader. There'd be no school enrichment speakers. And scientists don't usually have schedules that would allow them to spend a day leading flocks of little people through the aquarium, or reading to patients in a hospital or nursing home.

There'd be no professional or local sports unless we were to breed for it. No cabs because there'd be no cab drivers. And I'm sure it would be too much to ask them to instill in society newspaper people and printers, garbage collectors, cooks...or a good mother or father.

The trouble is while I pride myself on being discerning, I'm grateful I haven't met people selectively. So much I've learned from those who won't be asked to participate in a sperm bank. In fact, little has been added to my life by genius-type people. Nearly everything has come from all types, the masses, the purely natural mating creating, my friends who are here because of love.

I know people who have skills, talents, personalities that seem to make them wondrous, super people. They just don't happen to be male scientists. But in all fairness I don't know a lot of those.

Probably I lack vision. I wouldn't likely adapt well to a society born bereft of love, even of short ones. And believe me these propounders of the sperm bank aren't interested in the love child unless love miraculously accompanied the test tube encounter.

It's a good thing no one's counting on me to lug a picket sign for perfection. The world has had tough enough times with people who think they've found it. I like the varied society, from the gladhearted waitress to the friendly florist deliveryman to the safety crowd of policemen and firefighters. None of them would be part of the reproduced society. A loss.

And what a boring pregnancy. No speculation about blue or brown eyes, Aunt Hattie's predeliction for horseback riding, or a mother's charm.

Let's just keep taking our chances on love...and seek to refine that to perfection instead.

Selectmen ready to name new fire chief

By Jane Lane

Selectmen are expected to name the town's new fire chief tonight. The choice is between acting fire chief Roger Lincoln and Martin Dooley of Hartford, Conn.

Following last Thursday's interview session, selectmen narrowed the field from five to two candidates. Originally, Lincoln had been excluded from the selection committee's lists of finalists for the chief's post.

There were three out-of-towners named to the committee's list. Voters at town meeting in August approved the expansion of the list to include eight applicants, including acting chief Lincoln.

After the conclusion of Thursday's interviews, selectman Rocco Laugelle said he would favor appointing a local person.

"I feel that the out-of-towners, almost automatically, look at the chief's job as a stepping stone. I would hate to appoint a chief and before you know it, he leaves. It disrupts the department, no matter what department it is. I would like to have someone who'll stay, I favor a local person," he said.

Selectman Mary Jane McArthur disagreed with Laugelle's sentiments and said she would not be concerned if a non-resident stayed five to seven years with the department. "New ideas are always healthy," she said.

She suggested selectmen screen the two candidates' references before tonight's decision.

Last week, selectmen convened two meetings to interview candidates. Although there were eight candidates to be screened for the position, three persons requested they be dropped from consideration. Louis Bennet Jr., of the Beverly Fire Department, Victor H. Cail, a deputy chief in the Reading Fire Department and Robert M. Winston of the Boston Fire Department, were not interviewed by selectmen.

Candidate Dooley has been with the Hartford Fire Department for 14 years. He also worked for the Garden City, N.J., department and volunteered for 14 years with the Washington, N.Y., fire department. He is also an instructor at the Connecticut State Fire School.

Frank M. Sylvester, was interviewed by selectmen, is a lieutenant with the Pawtucket, R.I., Fire Department. A 17 year veteran of the force, he is also head of the city's rescue squad.

In his interview with selectmen last week, Dooley emphasized the importance of awareness of fire prevention throughout the community. He said the educational process must begin in the elementary grades and outreach programs should be available to senior citizens and others within the town.

Dooley told selectmen he would move to Cohasset if he was selected chief. Although he currently owns a low-mortgaged home in Connecticut, he believes he could afford to purchase a house in Cohasset.

During Thursday night's interview session, acting chief Lincoln also stressed the need for fire prevention education within the community. He would appoint a fire prevention officer whose duty would be to oversee such a wide-reaching program.

His only reservation about accepting the permanent chief's position would be the elimination of his civil service status.

"I'm a little bit apprehensive about not having a civil service position," he stated. "I have no reservations about being a good chief. But in several years, my philosophy could be different from another board of selectmen and maybe that would justify my leaving the force. I'm out of the fire department unless some kind of protection is built into my contract," he added.

The Mariner survey results...

Seventy-one residents responded to the Mariner questionnaire in just over the past two weeks and they commented on just about everything under the sun.

If the Mariner survey were a referendum, the Town would have voted 34-28 to not buy the Cox Estate; 55-13 to institute a leash law; 48-14 to encourage more business development; 38-28 to place the police and fire chiefs under Civil Service; 36-25 to make the North Cohasset Fire Station land into a Town park of sorts;and 51-16 to not repeal Proposition 2½.

Most residents feel Cohasset has too little elderly housing, 41-19. Residents split down the middle (31-30) to not initiate user fees for sports programs at the high school.

Should the school buses for the elementary schools have paid bus monitors? On a referendum, it would have been voted down 55-9. Also voted down (46-9) would be a question which asked if vacant school-owned land be given to the South Shore Arts Center for its new headquarters. However, on part II of the South Shore Arts Center question, residents were in favor of "selling" the land to the Arts Center, 32-17.

Residents said the quality of Cohasset water is not good, 49-15, and commented on the fact (read on).

In rating Town Departments, the highway department came in first on a scale of 1-5 with a resounding 4.3 average.

The fire department came in second with an average of 4.1; the recreation department averaged a 3.9; police 3.6; water department 3.3; school department 3.2; assessors 1.7; and selectmen came in last with a rating of 1.5.

On other questions, residents voted 42-23 to allow

Timetable delayed on revaluation

Assessors are awaiting a proposal by another revaluation firm before setting up a timetable to complete the revaluation program.

The State Department of Revenue must receive the timetable before allowing the town to send out estimated tax bills. Unless the bills are sent out, the town must borrow money to pay expenses.

Revaluation was supposed to have been completed by July of 1981 but work has stalled. Appraiser Thomas Mahony missed the deadline and when he finally submitted figures to the state, officials rejected them because further documentation was needed to prove calculations of property values.

Mahony notified the town he wants the balance of his contract, despite not completing the revaluation process. Records in the town accountant's office show Mahony was to receive $27,600 under the terms of two contracts. He has received $24,190 leaving a balance of $2,410.

The matter has been sent to Town Counsel J. Blake Thaxter for legal action.

Assessors have received field cards and other documents from Mahony. They have discussed with the president of an appraisal firm his plans for submitting a bid to help the town complete the revaluation process.

Edward Mendoza, president of Appraisal Consultants of New England Corp. of Raynham told assessors last week preliminary revaluation figures in a computer sample appear to be satisfactory but added a sales analysis must be done which would compare the actual prices of homes sold last year with the computer figure.

If the analysis shows the figures are off, the town may have to start the project over again.

The board is expected to meet Thursday night to hear another proposal from another company.

Rebates coming on $20 parking tickets

There may soon be a refund for motorists who received $20 parking tickets for violations at Sandy and Black Rock Beaches, Wadleigh Park or for parking illegally on bridges since April of 1981.

However, applications for the refund shouldn't be sent until procedures have been ironed out between Arthur Clark, the town's parking clerk, and selectmen.

Clark had asked Town Counsel J. Blake Thaxter to examine the legality of the $20 parking tickets.

Thaxter said any schedule of fines established by selectmen by municipal rule "shall not exceed $15 if paid within 21 days." Selectmen may establish more severe penalities for parking notices not paid within 21 days of the violation.

Last year Cohasset Town Meeting voted to approve a $5 surcharge on violators who were late with payments.

Clark said he did not know how many of the $20 tickets have been issued and is waiting for a report from the firm handling ticket collection for the town, Rapa Collection Systems, Inc. of Quincy. But he added, "I really don't think the whole thing involves that many tickets."

Selectmen approved the $20 fine in April of 1981 based on the recommendation of former Police Chief John DeBassio.

Clark said, "Once we have that report, we will set up the procedures for requesting a refund."

Cohasset's week...

McKinnon office hours

A member of Senator Allan McKinnon's staff will be available for monthly office hours in Cohasset Town Hall Oct. 27 at 2 p.m. If this time is inconvenient, please call Sen. McKinnon's office at 722-1646 and other arrangements will be made.

Library stop list

The trustees of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library were dismayed to be told at a recent meeting that in the past three and a half years over 900 Cohasset residents have had their names added to the stop list.

This list is on the front desk of the library and anyone on the list is denied library service until they clear up overdue or lost books.

The trustees directed the library staff to take strong action to get library property back.

To encourage the return of materials, the trustees approved a three-week "amnesty" during which overdue may be returned fine-free, no questions asked.

Library director Richard Hayes said that during the first two weeks of the amnesty, dozens of families "got off the list."

"But," he noted, "there are still hundreds of families on the list." He suggested these people think about this next time "they complain about waste and fat in public services."

Residents who would like to get their names off the list with forgiveness of fines can do so until Oct. 12.

Murray endorses bill

State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray has endorsed a state spending bill drafted by the office of William G. Robinson, Republican Leader.

The amendment would add a new article to the state Constitution which would require state appropriations be limited to no more than a four percent increase over the amount spent in the previous fiscal year.

Appropriations are considered to be all operating expenses for the Commonwealth except expenditures for capital outlay and local aid.

The amendment would require that no new taxes will be imposed following a year where there was excess tax revenue, except in the case of certain verified emergencies. Any excess revenues may be spent only in case of an emergency when such an appropriation shall be approved by a vote of two-thirds of the members of each branch of the Legislature.

These emergencies are when the immediate health and safety of the people are threatened, or when the preservation of the fiscal stability of the Commonwealth or its cities or towns has been threatened by unanticipated events. These events will be verified by written statements from the state treasurer and auditor. When the Governor files emergency legislation, it must be accompanied by these written statements.

Newspaper recycling

Newspapers will no longer be accepted in the landfill, according to the new Board of Health rules.

They must be recycled at the recycling center or the Boy Scout Barn, North Main St. The board is also arranging for a third drop-off point for the newspapers.

Sealund Corporation of Marshfield, has been preparing the new landfill area since Sept. 1 and may be completed by the last week in December. Weather conditions will influence the completion date.

The Board is optimistic about the lifespan of the new area. Depending on the town's involvement in recycling, the area may last beyond the previous predictions. The board is stressing the importance of recycling newspapers, magazines, glass (brown, green and white), and aluminum and is considering recycling cardboard and other materials.

Board members have said when the new area has reached capacity, they will be forced to pursue alternatives which will be more costly than maintaining a disposal area, absorb the financial burden and possible inconvenience of disposing wastes in a non-town operated facility.

Lead poisoning

The Board of Health has some information regarding a public health concern which affects children: Lead paint poisoning.

Lead paint has not been in use for about 10 years. However, many older homes may have layers of paint beneath the surface which contain dangerous levels of lead. If the paint is in poor repair, i.e. chipped or flaking, children may eat the particles, and suffer an increase of lead in their blood.

Lead is a poison and improper removal of it can result in elevated levels in adults, children, fetuses and pets. Thus, children, by-standers and pets should be kept away from an area being deleaded.

Symptons of lead poisoning can be as subtle as irritability or lethargy and as severe as convulsions or coma. The latter symptoms would occur in children whose lead levels remained high for an excessive length of time.

For home remodeling, particularly older homes, ensure that the lead dust is confined by using drop cloths to collect the particles. This applies to furniture refinishing and stripping. For more information, contact the board.

Fire Prevention Week

This week the nation, Massachusetts and Cohasset are observing the 60th anniversary of Fire Prevention Week.

This week is set aside to raise the consciousness of everyone to the terrible fire problem in the United States. No other industrialized nation can compare to the awful fire statistics generated in this country.

The Fire Department would like to take this opportunity to remind all Cohasset residents of some of the DON'Ts and DO's of Fire Prevention.

DON'T...

allow children and matches to come together in an unsupervised situation; overload electrical circuits or use frayed or damaged extension cords; invite fire with oily rags, paints, or flammable liquids. Store in proper containers; and allow rubbish to accumulate in the home. Good housekeeping equals safety.

DO...

plan fire escape routes and have fire drills in your home; install and maintain approved smoke detectors; have fire extinguishers in hazardous areas; identify windows of rooms where children or handicapped persons sleep; and have the Fire Department and ambulance phone number on every phone in your house.

For further questions or information, call the Cohasset Fire Department at 383-0260 or stop in at Fire Headquarters, 44 Elm Street.

LWV candidates night

The League of Women Voters of Hingham, Cohasset and Scituate will co-sponsor a regional candidates night Oct. 6, at 7:30, in the Scituate High School auditorium.

Candidates for the following offices will be represented: State Senators; State Representatives; and U.S. Congress.

The following candidates will participate: Senator Allan McKinnon and Thomas Barry; Mary-Jeanette Murray and Caroline Stouffer; Christopher Bowker and Philip Johnston; and Jack Conway. Due to Congressional activity, Rep. Gerry Studds, as yet, has not been able to make a definite commitment.

For more information, call Janine Broadhurst, 383-6127.

Historical tour bows Friday

By David Wadsworth
Society Curator

This week two different events share the spotlight at the Cohasset Historical Society's museums. Friday, Oct. 8, will be the co-sponsored, Historical Society and Cohasset Recreation Depts. special Fall tour of the Society's three museums at Cohasset Center.

The tour will meet at the Maritime Museum, Elm Street, at 11 a.m. and will include the Maritime Museum, the Captain Wilson House, and the nearby Independent Gown Museum.

Since the three museums are closed until next spring, this tour represents a last chance to see the interesting and unique exhibits covering almost three centuries of Cohasset's history.

Maritime relics, ship models, old fishing gear and the story of Minot's Light are among the fascinating displays at the Maritime Museum.

The Wilson House is furnished with antiques representing a Cohasset home of the early 1800's, and the Gown Museum features fine clothing and accessories from the early 1800's to the 1900's.

To register for the Friday museum tour, call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791.

Saturday, Oct. 9, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. the Cohasset Historical Society will hold its Fall Flea Market on the grounds of the Lothrop House, Summer Street.

Featured at the event will be a selection of antique cutglass, china, lusterware and other quality items recently obtained from an estate.

This accumulation of quality items has been expertly appraised and is priced attractively.

Also available will be the usual wide range of flea market items, from books and clothing to kitchenware and games (to mention a few of the many categories.)

Proceeds from the flea market go to fund the Society's three museums at Cohasset Center, to aid in the restoration of the Lothrop House, and to enable the Society to continue its extensive program of community activities.

At the flea market, one will be able to purchase raffle tickets for the Society's new 1982 Cohasset Quilt. Tickets are 50 cents each or three for $1.

The quilt, made by volunteers from the Society, pictures numerous scenes of Cohasset landmarks past and present, and is a true work of craftsmanship.

Other Society sale items will be available, including the two volumes of the reknowned "Narrative History of the Town of Cohasset" and the Society's own Minot's Light cup plates of Pairpoint glass.

Baby seal found

A 50-pound baby harbor seal was found dead by Animal Control Officer Richard Yocum Friday, washed up among the rocks off Sandy Beach.

A Sandy Beach resident notified Yocum of the dead seal at noon. Yocum immediately called the New England Aquarium. Scientists there were interested to hear of the seal since they were studying the harbor seal and its sightings for five years.

The Aquarium planned to do an autopsy to discover why the seal died. Yocum said the seal's body was in good shape and there were no marks of violence.

"It's unusual at this time of year for a young seal to be around this area. It's the first time I have ever handled it," Yocum said.

Yocum wrapped the seal in a plastic bag before transporting it to the Aquarium.

Patricia Fiorelli of the Aquarium said the seal is "this year's pup" but it isn't unusual for seals to be found washed up dead in New England or the Cape Cod bay.

She said the dead seal remains frozen and an autopsy will be completed within two weeks.

Selectmen to appoint acting police chief...again

Cohasset did not have an official acting police chief until Tuesday night.

Last Wednesday, selectmen rescinded their vote to appoint Patrolman Joseph Kealey as acting chief and agreed to re-interview him and Lt. Charles Stockbridge at an open meeting Tuesday night.

The action came after Stockbridge complained to the district attorney that the board violated the open meeting law during interviews for the job.

The decision by Dist. Atty. William Delahunt to rule the actions void at the Sept. 16 and Sept. 17 meetings meant Kealey could not be made an official acting police chief.

Interviews for Stockbridge and Kealey were set for Tuesday night and the board decided Kealey should remain chief until the matter is settled.

Stockbridge made three complaints to Delahunt. They are: (1) Sept. 16 and 17 meetings — discussion of the competence of one or more candidates for acting chief were made in executive session without a lawful reason and selectmen failed to state in open session the reason for the closed door meeting.

(2) Sept. 17, meeting conducted without 48 hours written notice posted and filed with the town clerk.

Delahunt wrote Chairman Henry Ainslie Jr., state law provides for the discussion of professional competence of an individual in open session.

If a complaint were to be filed in Superior Court by three registered voters or by a district attorney, Delahunt said the court would promptly set aside the actions taken as a result of closed sessions to discuss professional competence.

Ainslie said the allegations by Stockbridge were not entirely true. He said the two executive sessions were preceded by votes to discuss pending litigation and police personnel matters.

Ainslie added, "That's not the reason per se. That's what we voted. We went in to discuss personalities regarding an individual's record."

Ainslie and Selectman Rocco Laugelle said they asked both Kealey and Stockbridge if they preferred executive session and both men agreed to the closed door meeting.

"I remember at first he (Stockbridge) said no and then asked if his wife could sit in on the executive session. And when we decided yes, he agreed to it," said Laugelle.

Ainslie said in view of the record and complaint, he would accept a motion to accept the district attorney's recommendations and schedule a new meeting."

Selectmen originally scheduled a Saturday morning meeting but postponed it to Tuesday because Stockbridge could not attend the session.

Selectman Mary Jane McArthur said the open meeting law is a "grey area" and often found it hard to make judgments concerning it."

She suggested selectmen discuss the law with Town Counsel J. Blake Thaxter Jr. She also asked for written guidelines concerning the laws.

Selectmen were due to discuss the police chief's job description and "other related matters with Stockbridge and Kealey."

School Board weighs business

By Patricia Anne Walsh

After voting to accept School Business Manager John Raftery's resignation Monday, the School Committee considered how to replace him.

Raftery, whose resignation is effective Oct. 29, has accepted a position with the state department of education.

Member Richard Conley moved. John Langmaid seconded posting a job description. Martha Gjesteby's amendment "that the Superintendent propose for the School Committee various alternatives for administrative reorganization of the Cohasset Public Schools, reapportioning the duties of the business manager with the professional staff," failed for lack of a second.

The superintendent said the posting would require a bachelor's degree in accounting, finance or business administration with knowledge of transportation and computer management also necessary.

The salary "will be discussed based on experience," as proposed by Supt. Crowell. Raftery's salary was $33,488 plus $600 travel per year.

This reporter telephoned several communities this week to find out how other communities are handling their business administration under Proposition 2½.

The superintendent's office in Hingham reported that they reorganized last year, eliminating the position of business manager and combined it with that of assistant superintendent, saving thousands of dollars. The position is held by Robert Novelli, with a salary "a little over $40,000" for this sytem which had 4234 pupils in 1981-82.

Scituate, which had 3501 pupils last year, has a new director of business and finance with a salary of about $28,500.

Needham with over 5,000 pupils replaced their assistant superintendent for business with an administrator of business services. Patricia Correia started at about $27,000 and is reported to be earning about $31,000 this year. The assistant superintendent's salary was higher than the newly created administrator of business services.

Norwell Supt. Robert Bunnell said he has had an "Adminstrative Assistant," Mrs. Ethel McCool, for over 10 years, who currently receives "less than $20,000." She holds the new certification of business manager which was created two or three years ago, by the legislature. Norwell had 2,216 pupils last year.

Supt. John Rogers of Rockland, who answered his own telephone, without the usual intermediaries of receptionist and/or secretary, reported that under Proposition 2½ the positions of business manager, personnel director and assistant superintendent had been eliminated.

☐Congratulations to Gilman Churchill, who celebrated his 96th birthday last Thursday. His party was held at the "Log and Line" with standing room only attendance. After Mr. Churchill had his usual breakfast he was presented with a birthday cake aglow with candles, as well as a birthday card from the White House. Best wishes to a fine gentleman!

☐Saw Mimi Mulvey walking Miller the other day — or was Miller walking Mimi?

☐Rosee Duffy, president of the Booster's Club, has some wonderful items for sale this year...along with the navy blue V-neck sweaters that were so popular last year they have added a new item, jackets. The jackets are navy blue nylon with a plush lining and COHASSET embroidered (in white) on the front. Carol Meers (383-1587) is in charge of sales. Call her or Rosee (383-0292). The jackets will also be on sale at the Deer Hill School open house on Oct. 14. The cost is $25, a great Christmas present!

☐Sarah Froio is doing a super job at Johnson and Wales, she loves it. She was surprised last week by fellow classmates who stopped in for a surprise visit on their way to a concert at the Civic Center. Also heard that Sarah's cousin made the varsity field hockey team...Karen Froio was superstar for Cohasset, it sounds like she's continuing her good work! Congratulations, Karen, hope you have a great season.

☐Applause is also in order for Bob Meers and Rich Evans, both of whom made last week's "cheering section" of the Patriot Ledger. This "Dynamic Duo" will get a lot of ink during the season I'm sure! They're great!

☐While on the subject of football, attending this week's game against Hull is a must. It will be a great game (it always is when we play our biggest rivals) and a treat is in store for the half-time, as Hull is bringing their famous marching band. Don't miss it...two shows for the price of one!

☐Mrs. Frances Antoine called to report the latest happenings at 60 Elm...Beano is very popular there. So much so they don't have enough card tables available. Anyone have an extra? If so, please be kind enough to call her, or drop it off at 60 Elm. Beano is played there every Tuesday afternoon and they are now going to play one night a month, starting Thursday, Oct. 7. Mrs. Antione also wanted to tell of the lovely time everyone had with Blanche Thompson entertaining ...over 40 in attendance, singing, great refreshments!

School committee strongly against Question 1

The Cohasset School Committee voted 5-0 this week "that they publicly state their opposition to Question 1 on the November ballot, and take whatever effort they feel is necessary to convince others in town to share their position."

Committeewoman, Martha Gjesteby, commended Tanna Kasperowicz' front page article in the Mariner, and Superintendent Crowell's quotations therein. She observed that aid to private schools, including transportation, Special Education, Title 1, etc. is already costing 11.5 million dollars.

Members suggested actively campaigning for their position by speaking against Question 1 at meetings, passing out handouts on election day, and contacting newpaper editors urging that they write editorials opposing the ballot question. They also want to contact Representative Mary Jeannette Murry, who, they noted, voted for putting Question 1 on the ballot. They want to know her reasons for so voting, and to voice their opposition.

The superintendent distributed the following statement from C.T.A. President, Thomas O'Neill:

"This note is to let you know that the Cohasset Teachers support the School Committee stand on Proposition #1. There seems to be a concerted effort to dismantle good public education by means of referenda.

"We believe that good public schools are at the foundation of a democratic society. In Cohasset we have a system that provides education equal to the best available at private schools. To take public money from a strong system like ours to enrich private schools is not only unfair, but dangerous. The School Committee has no control over that money which would be given to private schools if this proposition passes. Public tax money should be publicly accounted for.

"I hate to see special interest groups tearing away at what has been a wonderful tradition of excellence and democracy in American public education."

CALENDAR CONFLICTS

Resident Nancy Clapp of the Health Advisory Council voiced concern that a conflict existed between the scheduled meeting for the public on child Abuse and Molestation, which will be part of the health and safety curriculum, and this Oct. 4 meeting of the School Committee.

She claimed that the health program had been cleared with the Superintendent to avoid any such conflict. She further suggested that a calendar be printed to avoid this.

The Superintendent admitted that she had cleared the date with him, and that the school committee had not received their usual monthly calendars for two months. School Committee members suggested not scheduling any school related functions on Monday nights.

On appointments

Appointive power is far and away the most far-reaching in the Selectmen's arsenal. There are other powers but a one-day beer/wine license scarcely has long lasting impacts.

But in appointments to Town committees — at the discretion of Selectmen or theirs in conjunction with other boards involved to fill unexpired elected positions — the effects on broader policies and decisions are obvious.

In some instances, when a town board like the Assessors is down to two members because of the third slot being vacant, Selectmen have the decisive vote if the three members are in accord.

In any case, the process is not easy, particularly at a time when volunteers aren't storming the ramparts to fill vacancies. Still extreme care should be exerted.

Criteria in selection obviously should be based on qualification (if there is any)...availability (always assured, not always provided)...stability...common sense (a long suit). Records of past performances, if any, should be checked and, if in doubt, questions asked of those in a position to privide information.

What has no part in the process (or shouldn't) is equally important — social, organizational, political, religious, ethnic, minority, status, sex and neighborly preferences should not be considerations.

The area is not a nativity scene. Nor a popularity contest. Conflict of interest should be avoided. Most of all, appointers shouldn't be influenced by aspiring appointees who are apple polishers (to put it politely) and curry favor through fawning, flattery and favors.

The first and only consideration should be who can do what for the best interest of Cohasset as a whole. Nothing less.

The job is not merely to fill a slot with a body but to appoint the best individual available.

A vote against question one

By State Sen. Allan McKinnon

Commentary

On Tuesday, Nov. 2, voters will have the opportunity to express their approval or disapproval of our ballot questions addressing significant current issues of public concern.

The first question proposes an amendment to the state constitution to provide state aid to non-public school students and certain other institutions.

As stated in the amendment, public funds would be made available to pupils in the form of aid, materials or services. This aid would be contingent upon three requirements: Schools must not discriminate on the basis of race or color in the admission process, individual students must request the assistance, and the grant must be consistent with the First Amendment right to the exercise of free religion.

The approval of this measure by the electorate could have catastrophic effect on the quality of public education in the Commonwealth. Although there appear to be limitations, such a constitutional change would pave the way for further financial commitments to private schools and in the long run work to the detriment of the public school system.

There could be no worse time to seek public support for this amendment since funding is desperately needed for public educational purposes. In a period when Proposition 2½ has already caused curtailment in the programs of local school systems, monies siphoned from public schools to aid private institutions would jeopardize to a greater degree the future of public institutions of learning.

Private school funding would come from tax revenue that could otherwise be used to sustain state or municipal services. For the past two years, purse strings at the state level have been tightened to allow for increased local aid packages. In 1981 $265 million was returned to municipalities, and this year $2 billion will be received by communities battling the 2½ budget. Yet, even with these added monies, deep cuts in school budgets are inevitable and teacher layoffs expected.

Publicly funded school systems are central to the function of our society and an improved level of understanding of our modern world. I feel that expending our limited public fiscal resources on private schools tend to erode the public school system which is so basic to the American way of life. Founded on the basis of providing quality and equal education for all persons, regardless of financial circumstances, public education in the 80's has the continued responsibility of producing well-educated and thoughtful individuals. The demand to improve public education would be lessened since more and more students would be taken out of the public system. Poorer students will end up attending public schools whereas students from more advantaged families will go to private schools. The result would be a weakening of the very foundation upon which public education was built.

And a vote for the Bottle Bill

Letters

To the Editor:

On Nov. 2nd the voters of the Commonwealth will have the opportunity to finally determine what type of environment and society they wish to live in: a society in which people accept and tolerate the empty beer and tonic bottles and cans which are liberally strewn and discarded on our lawns, beaches and parks, or one in which, with a minimum of effort, we can eliminate the eye-sore and safety hazard represented by unwanted bottles and cans. It is a choice in short between a pop-top and throw away culture or one in which people are encouraged to recycle and save the bottles and cans that they use. I am referring, of course, to Question Four on the Referendum: the so-called "Bottle Bill" Law.

If approved in November, the Bottle Bill will require consumers to pay a five or ten cent deposit on beer and tonic bottles and cans which will be refunded when the containers are returned. A "yes" vote on Question Four indicates approval for the Bottle Bill and its deposit requirement; a "no" vote is a vote to continue under the present system of discarding bottles and cans in the trash, on our highways and elsewhere.

Some of the benefits of the Bottle Bill are obvious, others more subtle. Its most visible benefit is that it is the only proven method of reducing the litter of soft drink and beer bottles and cans which comprise 60 percent of all litter by volume. Based upon the states that have enacted the Bottle Bill, including Michigan, Oregon, Connecticut and Vermont, the Bottle Bill will lead to an 80 percent cut in beer and soda container litter and a 40 percent cut in overall litter in Massachusetts.

The Bottle Bill works because by exacting a deposit it provides a strong financial incentive on the purchaser to return the cans and bottles rather than throw them away. In addition, since anyone can collect the deposit for any returnable can or bottle, children and others have a financial incentive to pick up after those who continue to litter. Finally, the Bottle Bill sparks an anti-litter ethic. When people are conscious of the consequences of throwing away a bottle or can, they also think twice about littering paper and other refuse.

Unfortunately, there is a dark cloud on the horizon in Massachusetts which threatens to drown the Bottle Bill before it has been given a chance. I am speaking of the vested interests of the beverage industry which plan on spending between 3 million and 5 million dollars to convince the public that they really do not want a cleaner environment. I trust that the voters of the Commonwealth will be less tripped up by the spurious arguments of the beverage industry than by the bottles and cans they have to negotiate to enjoy a walk in a park or on a beach. Nevertheless, we need your support both before and on election day to counteract the anticipated media blitz of the Anti Bottle Bill forces.

The dangers of the sewer plant loan

To the Editor:

Cohasset cannot afford a $970,000 debt for services not rendered. This could be the case if we accept the state loan for the design of our proposed sewer plant, and Congress then fails to appropriate design funds in 1983.

I believe that after having been stung by a breach of contract by an assessor for $25,000, that the people of Cohasset are in no mood to be liable for such a huge sum and no sewer plant for their money.

To avoid this very real possibility the following request is made to the Board of Selectmen:

1. Obtain a written guarantee from the state indicating that the Town of Cohasset will not have to repay the loan if Congress does not grant construction funds...or,

2. Do not accept the loan from the state until Congress has acted upon sewer construction funding legislation early in 1983...or,

3. Call for a special town meeting where the people of Cohasset can debate the wisdom of such a loan, and the necessity of such a grand and expensive plant now that Proposition 2½ makes such a project totally unaffordable.

Please attend the Board of Selectmen's meeting this Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. and express your reservations about this loan.

A little dust...

To the Editor:

With all the rules and regulations that have been bestowed upon the horse owners of Cohasset, it surprises and delights me to see that their enthusiasm has not diminished.

Many riders are young people, who take pride in their animals. They are participating in a sport that requires practice and skill, but more important is the fact that they are enjoying what little is left of the open spaces in this town.

A little dust seems a small price to pay when one weighs it against all the positive aspects of riding.

Asst. treasurer

To the Editor:

It was recently announced by town hall that the vacated position of assistant treasurer had been filled. Curious. No one outside town hall seemed to have knowledge of the availability of the job until it was filled.

This writer's intention is not to question the qualitications of the appointee, but to question the town's policy in the posting of town jobs. Is the posting of town jobs a sporatic action or does the town have specific policy?

Without posting or advertisement for all jobs, is Cohasset truly an equal opportunity employer?

What happens to the spirit of competition and the incentive of current town workers to improve their skills if they must rely almost entirely on word-of-mouth when new and better positions become available?

If the town fathers could clarify the policy of the posting of available jobs within the town, this resident, as well as many others, could dispel rumors of nepotism and patronage in town hall and be assured that as taxpayers we are getting the best qualified employees for our tax dollar.

Barrow's request

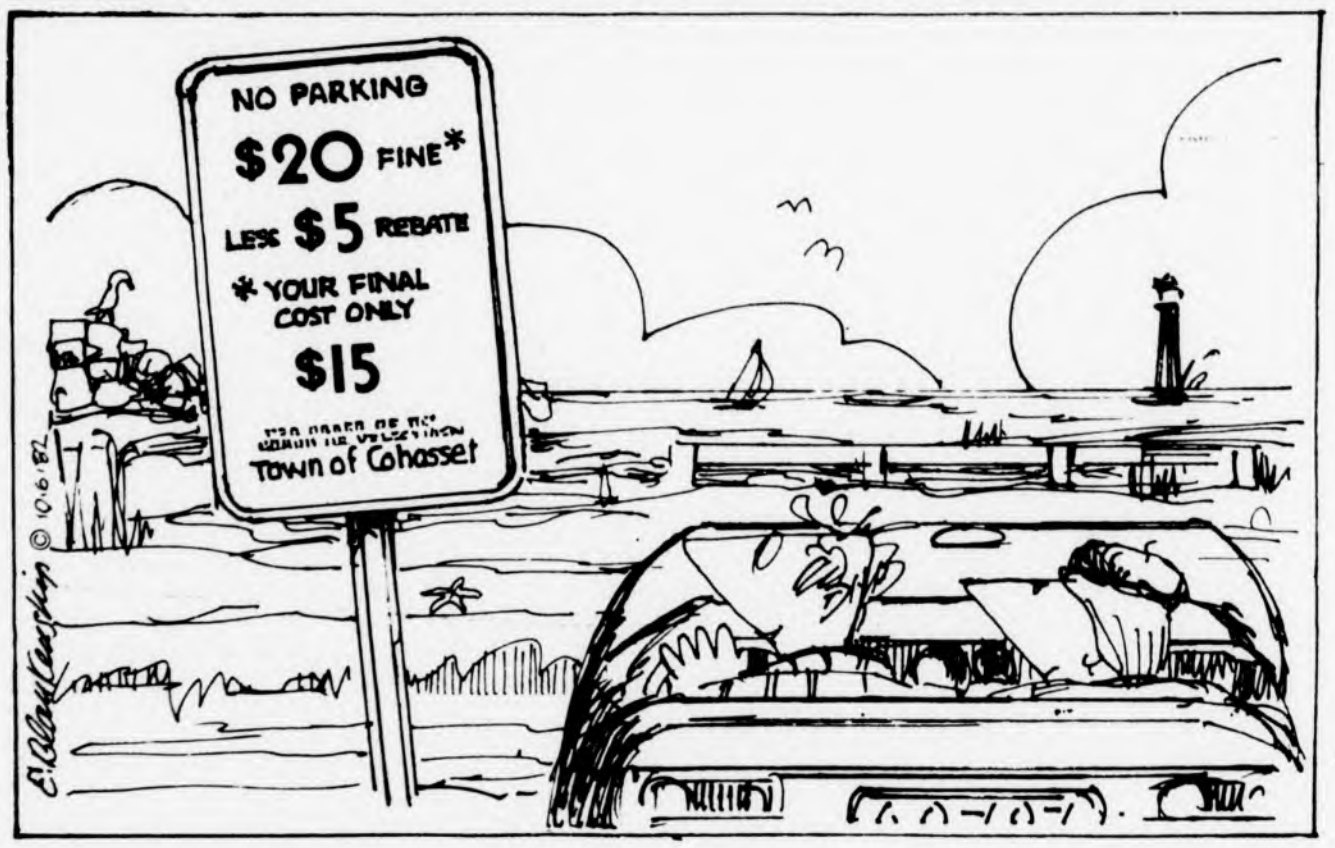
It has come to my attention that you will be interviewing candidates for Acting Chief of the Cohasset Police Department Tuesday, Oct. 5.

I was not interviewed for this position in the initial round of interviews which the board held recently. Nor was I aware that interviews were being held until shortly after the board publicly announced its choice. It is my understanding that two individuals were interviewed at the invitation of the board, and further that the board did not ask for applications or make public advertisement of the same.

Although I am not certain of the correct procedure in this matter, I would like the board to be aware of my continued interest in this position, and would like to bring my particular qualifications to the attention of the board.

Over a 32-year period I have had an outstanding record in my capacity as a patrolman, detective and as a police sergeant, for the past 16 years. In 1967 I passed the Civil Service examination for Police Chief.

For the past 16 years I have served as a shift supervisor and am in charge of all police officers, special and regular, who work on my shift. For an eight-year period, during the four to midnight shift, I was responsible for prosecution in Quincy District Court and for the preparation of payrolls and assignments. I have also served as Acting Chief of the department on various occasions.



If for any reason the board should decide to entertain further applications for the position of Acting Chief at its Tuesday session, please be advised that I would be most interested in the board's consideration.

As a senior officer in the Cohasset Police Department, I would also appreciate any courtesy you can extend to me regarding an explanation of why I was not considered for the position of Acting Chief in your initial round of interviews.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,
Sgt. Richard Barrow
Cohasset Police Department

NEWS ITEM – Cohasset: to refund $5 on illegal non-resident Sandy Beach and Black Rock Beach $20 parking fine. Selectmen vote to reduce fine on advice of town counsel. 'If someone request a $5 refund, we must give it to them,' says chairman

"...I still say it wasn't worth coming all the way back from Antigonish for the five bucks..."

Selectmen briefs...

OFF-DUTY PATROLMAN'S ACCIDENT

Selectmen are requesting police report on a traffic accident involving an off-duty policeman Saturday, Sept. 25 at 7:28 p.m. at 16 Old Pasture Road.

Selectmen and police did not name the officer involved. The car apparently struck a utility pole.

PERMANENT RESTRAINT ORDER

After a bitter dog hearing, selectmen ordered William Figueiredo of Marshfield to permanently confine his German shepherd to his property.

If the dog officer should find the dog loose, he has the authority to impound it. The order came after Frederick Parker of Parker Avenue alleged Figueiredo used his dog in a threatening manner. Parker said the dog barks constantly when Figueiredo arrives to board his boat.

On one occasion Parker told selectmen he had to jump in his car for safety when the dog rushed toward him. Officer Richard Grassie had earlier told former chief John DeBassio that the dog was dangerous after he drew his service revolver to ward off the dog three years ago. Grassie said he was told the dog was the German shepherd's cousin.

Figueiredo said his dog is licensed in the town and is well trained for protection. He stays at my side at all times, Figueiredo said. Figueiredo said there were no complaints about his dog until he sought a variance to allow a trailer on his property, opposed by the Parker family.

FLEA MARKET APPROVAL

Selectmen approved the Cohasset Community Center's request to use Town Hall for an Oct. 23 Flea Market.

CAR WASH APPROVAL

Selectmen also approved the American Field Service Club's request to use the town hall parking lot Oct. 16 for a car wash.

BUILDING INSPECTOR

Selectmen narrowed the list of building inspector candidates from eight to four last week. Arthur Clark, executive secretary, was to contact the four candidates to see if they wished to be interviewed Thursday night, Oct. 7.

Names were withheld until Clark contacted the applicants but the final four include residents from Cohasset and Weymouth, a registered professional engineer and a carpenter.

New fire chief...

past seven months, said that despite this reservation, he has "a genuine desire to serve the town in that capacity."

Cohasset Fire Capt. James Gurry was also interviewed for the post. Former Hull firefighter Arthur Bilodeau said at the conclusion of his interview, that he would drop his name from consideration if Lincoln was "in the running" for the job.

"I am very interested in the job, but if Roger is in the running, then I think he should have the job. I know him and I think he would make a good chief." Bilodeau said.

The Mariner survey results...

more apartments in Cohasset; are in favor (43-21) of having the advisory committee elected as opposed to being appointed; said the police were cracking down on traffic violations enough, 37-25; and did not feel (47-21) more money should be given to Pratt Library so it can remain open seven days a week. It is now closed on Wednesdays.

What would residents like to see more, or less of in the Mariner? One person said "The survey is much too brief. Also make space for comments on each question."

COMMENTS

Less gossip-chit chat, more local information of upcoming events.

Less Kasperowicz, more compassion towards local town departments; less influence on town matters through editorials, people have minds of their own.

Around town on one page. Good editorials!

Pretty good the way it is.

Nothing, it's quite perfect now.

Think your editorials should be reinforced, with more statistical facts; too much slanted opinion.

Satisfactory as is.

More - Do this more often! Thanks, Rocky.

More surveys, minutes of sewer, water, planning board, health department published.

Cohasset Mariner is doing an excellent job in getting town news to the residents; I am especially pleased with the CHS news page which can be used on bulletin board as weekly reminder.

Personally, I enjoy the format exactly as it is.

Accuracy. For instance you said the Cox Estate was for sale for $25M. Wow! Also that Chief DeBassio took a $15,000 pay cut to come to Cohasset. (We were wrong on the first one, but approximately in the ball park on the second).

Less criticism of Cohasset, majority of towns are in same situation as Cohasset pertaining to revaluation.

More local unbiased reporting of interesting news items.

Doing fine.

Continue to be the "town scold" if it wakes people up.

More opinions in editorials; less around town gossip.

Demand more accountability from town officials!

Accuracy in names. Generally good local news. Survey filling need.

Exposure of town department operations and problems. i.e. why is Cohasset's water poor? Investigative reporting - let the chips fall!

Less gossip.

More editorials like AN INSULT.

Less foolishness.

More of the local and humorous cartoons - they're delightful!

More Sailing Club news in the summer.

More coverage of sewer meetings.

Too many kid items. More reporting of restaurants, elderly and their need.

Cheesecake photos.

More news of all board meetings on a weekly basis.

No more center spread ads. Use the position for local photos, otherwise we think the paper is fine.

More features, more meetings.

More pictures of local people and events of the town. More stories of the past and present. Too much school news. You have readers who are senior citizens and we are bored by the constant youth-oriented news.

Continue on town government; more in-depth articles on people. Publicity on music department at high school to help foster it back to state recognition and position.

Doing a good job.

MORE COMMENTS

Residents continue to be upset about the town's having lost former police chief John DeBassio and it showed up in their many bitter comments about selectmen. Selectmen got the lowest tally in the ratings and comments pretty well followed suit.

One resident urged Doris Golden to run for selectman, saying "New leadership is needed."

Others commented that one, two and sometimes all three selectmen should be replaced. Another suggested somethig dastardly should be done to selectmen for having allowed former police chief DeBassio to have "gotten away. Shame!"

Selectmen chose the acting police chief very unfairly, as usual; two persons stated in almost identical phrasing.

If selectmen had control of the Cox Estate it would be a slum in one year; another person said selectmen couldn't even run a lemonade stand.

Two individuals said the town should appoint a public safety officer to administrate both the police and fire departments.

Another person suggested the town have no selectmen and instead appoint a town manager and a assistant town manager. "Five selectmen still won't have the time needed to operate a growing town. It started in 1945; this is '82 and we're still 30 years in the rear."

The polling hours in the last election were ridiculous. Money is no excuse. Volunteers could be found to man the polls free of charge.

P. Pratt library should beef up its research materials; kids have to go elsewhere to complete school assignments.

I thought Cohasset had a leash law, one person said, with two others wishing it did.

Another person said they would like to see a concrete proposal on the Cox Estate purchase, why? how it would be used? who will do it, etc.

And lastly, an individual responded: "Looking over my comments, so much of the quality of life in cohasset depends on the quality of the selectmen." This individual also criticized the water department, claiming it doesn't check meters.

The survey totals

1. Should the town buy the Cox Estate? 28 Yes, 34 No, 9 No opinion.
2. Should Cohasset have a leash law? 55 Yes, 13 No, 3 No opinion.
3. Does Cohasset need more business development? 48 Yes, 14 No, 9 No opinion.

5. Should the former North Cohasset Fire Station and land be made into a town park? 36 Yes, 25 No, 10 No opinion.
6. Should Proposition 2½ be repealed? 16 Yes, 51 No, 4 No opinion.
7. Does Cohasset have sufficient housing for the elderly? 19 Yes, 41 No, 11 No opinion.
8. Should Cohasset initiate user fees for sports programs at the high school? 30 Yes, 31 No, 10 No opinion.
9. Should school buses for the elementary schools have paid bus monitors? 9 Yes, 55 No, 7 No opinion.
10. Should vacant school-owned land be given to the South Shore Arts Center for its new headquarters? 9 Yes, 46 No, 16 No opinion. Or should the land be sold to the Art Center? 32 Yes, 17 No, 22 No opinion.
11. Is the quality of Cohasset water good? 15 Yes, 49 No, 7 No opinion.
12. 13. Should more apartments be allowed in Cohasset? 42 Yes, 23 No, 6 No opinion.
14. Should members of the advisory committee, now appointed, be elected? 43 Yes, 21 No, 7 No opinion.
15. Are the police cracking down on traffic violations enough? 37 Yes, 25 No, 9 No opinion.
16. Should more money go to the Pratt Library so it can remain open seven days a week? (It is now closed on Wednesdays.) 21 Yes, 47 No, 3 No opinion.

Soccer girls the lone CHS winners

By Alana O'Brien

FOOTBALL

The CHS football team traveled to Hanover on Saturday with a clean 2-0 overall record.

But the Hanover Indians proved to be the real test for the Skippers, as they fell 44-21.

The Skippers came out ahead, 7-6, in the first quarter from Rich Evans' 15-yard connection to senior Bob Meers and an Evans' kick for the extra point.

In the second quarter the Skippers remained scoreless while the Indians tallied 10 points from running back Gary Rogers.

After half-time Cohasset came back into the action with a one-yard catch by Meers and a 47-yard pass by Evans to senior Pat Broderick. This brought the score to 30-21 in favor of the Indians.

In the fourth quarter, the Skipper defense couldn't stop running back Jim Earle who scored on a three-yard run and a 73-yard run with one minute left to play. This brought the final score to 44-21.

Coach John Leone said his team was pleased with their offense but disappointed in their defense. He said their defense couldn't stop Hanover's Gary Rogers and Jim Earle.

Evans made three touchdown passes and gained at least 300 yards, said Leone. Pat Broderick was praised for a fine game by Leone.

The Skippers now 1-1 and 2-1 overall face Hull at home Saturday.

FIELD HOCKEY

The field hockey team was defeated 2-0 last week by league opponent Hull.

The Skippers were having trouble creating an offense during their game due to Hull's strong forward and halfback lines. But their defense did well, holding the Pirates to two goals. Tri-captain Anne Marie Lagrotteria played well in net for Cohasset.

In their next game the Skippers beat Abington's Greenwave 1-0.

After being defeated four times due to poor offense, coach Gino Digerolamo decided to shake up the line a little to create a better offense and it worked. Cohasset dominated the game.

Senior tri-captain Giabarresi scored the goal off a corner shot with assists from senior Mia Graham and junior Kathy Corbett.

Eighth-grader Lisa Shumaker played her first varsity game in net and earned her first varsity shut-out.

The Skippers, now 2-4, play at Abington today and face Duxbury home Friday.

GIRLS SOCCER

The girls soccer team romped over Harwich, 8-0, last Thursday in a home match.

Sophomore Janet Digerolamo picked up three goals with two assists from sophomore Jill Nedrow and one from tri-captain Amy Duncombe.

Nedrow also picked up two goals and an assist was given to Amy Duncombe.

Sophomore Sarah Seavey kicked in the last two points with Carla Lucas and Krissy Pompeo registering the assists.

Tracy Keating earned her second shut-out of the season.

Friday they traveled to the Cape with the boys soccer team to face Nauset and Harwich.

Coach Bill Fallon said his team dominated the Nauset game and outshot them by a wide margin, but were defeated, 1-0, in the fourth quarter with a goal from a corner kick.

After a good night's rest they faced Harwich again and won, 5-0. Sophomore forwards Janet Digerolamo, Sarah Seavey and Jill Nedrow each scored one and junior halfback Kim Willet kicked one in from a Jill Nedrow pass.

Sophomore halfback Tara Stanford scored the last one with an assist from Amy Duncombe.

The Skippers travel to Abington today and Friday they play Duxbury home at 3:15.

BOYS SOCCER

What looked to be a promising week for the boys soccer team turned out to be a rough one.

Tuesday the Skippers faced the Rockland Bulldogs and were defeated, 4-0.

Coach Jon Anderson said Rockland's three quick goals in the first nine minutes of the game put Cohasset in a spot. The fourth goal came late in the third quarter.

Thursday the boys traveled to Norwell. Anderson said it was a well played, even game but the Skippers were defeated, 1-0, with a goal late in the fourth period, kicked off a rebound.

Anderson also said junior Scott Duncombe played a strong game.

Friday the Skippers traveled with the girls soccer team to the Cape to face Nauset and Harwich.

The boys lost, 3-2, to Nauset. The goals were scored by senior Jim Stallard off a pass from Lee Reid and by junior Scott Duncombe with an assist from sophomore Chris Kirkendale.

Anderson said his team dominated the first period with a two-goal lead but then Nauset took over for the second and third periods.

Saturday the boys played Harwich. Anderson said they outshot Harwich, 16-10, but were defeated by a 40-yard shot with four minutes left to play.

Sophomore Lee Reid played a strong midfield game for the Skippers.

The Skippers now 1-4, face East Bridgewater and Hanover in away matches this week.

INTERVIEW WITH MR. RONALD EMMONS

Thespian, English teacher and Drama Director, Ronald Emmons, is enthusiastic when he discusses the many student productions that he is overseeing this year. After rehearsing two nights a week all summer long, in September an ensemble of 13 youngsters performed "More of Story Theatre." Nancy Walls, Maureen Buckley and Kent Hochkeppel were particularly outstanding in this sequel to the drama performed almost four years ago, by Cohasset at the state competition.

Presently, Grades 9-12 classes are rehearsing four one-act plays, which are totally student directed. The four directors, all experienced seniors, are: Samantha Barrett, directing the 9th Grade production of "To Burn a Witch," set in Salem; Maureen Buckley, directing the 10th Grade production of "The Children's Story," which was shown on TV last year, since it is by the same author as the popular "Sho Gun;" Susan Douglas, directing the 11th Grade production of excerpts from Neil Simon's play, "The Good Doctor," a dramatization of some Chekov stories; and Karen Ekberg, directing her classmates in the 12th Grade in "Princess Rebecca Birnbaum," a comedy. Each class rehearses an hour on-stage, both Tuesdays and Thursdays. Mr. Emmons says that he takes notes, and only gives advice when asked — which, he admits, is difficult. However, he is amused by the frequency with which the four directors have to deal with the same types of problems that he encounters in directing students. These one-act plays provide a way for more youngsters to get on stage, than is possible in a single cast in the State Drama Competition. Altogether, about 40 students are participating. The production date has been changed from October 23 to Sunday, October 24 at 1:30 p.m., because of Homecoming. The plays are open to parents and the public. A $2 admission will be charged to help pay for State Festival expenses.

Emmon's third dramatic effort this school year is staging the play "Grease," derived from the play that preceded the movie, to be performed Dec. 3, 10, and 11. The music department is producing this play, which Bryan Marks will put into rehearsal as soon as the One-Act Play Competition is over.

The State Competition Regionals will be Feb. 12 this year, but the location has not been chosen yet. Mr. Emmons will probably supervise his own adaptation of "Twelfth Night." In writing this over the last two summers, he used Lamb's "Tales from Shakespeare" as a resource. The 15 characters needed will be cast before Christmas.

Ronald Emmons graduated from Monmouth College in New Jersey, and has an M.A. from Bridgewater State. He also studied at Fairleigh Dickinson. In high school he participated in vocal music, but in college "drifted toward theatre." He is Music Representative on the New England Drama Guild and Assistant Secretary of the Massachusetts High Shool Drama Guild. His casts have been in the finals of the state competition for three out of the last four years, and the other year were semi-finalists. His cast of Cohasset students won the State Drama Festival in 1979, and performed at the New England Drama Festival in Rutland, Vermont that same year.

"High school theatre is pretty much everything for me now, outside of school," he mused. "I'm thinking about it, even when I'm not doing it. I spend a lot of time reading scripts, since it is difficult to get one suitable for high school production."

Murray campaign brunch successful

Several hundred volunteers, supporters, well wishers and friends greeted incumbent Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray at a campaign brunch Sunday at the South Shore Country Club.

Campaign supporters dined on a scrumptious buffet of eggs, sausage, quiche, bagels, rolls, fresh fruit and beverages while getting the word on campaign progress. The three term legislator stressed the need for support in all three towns of the district (Cohasset, Hingham and Hull). Her efforts to bring legislation to the floor in behalf of such projects as Hog Island, Pemberton and Nantasket Pier Reconstruction, improved South Shore transportation, Lincoln St. Public Works, Hingham Armory Repair, Straits Pond Tidal Gate and other projects for Community betterment, were outlined by Murray.

While elaborating on the need for full-time representation to her constituents, Murray stated efforts on her behalf by everyone in attendance was very much appreciated. The 3rd Plymouth legislator served her first term as representative for Cohasset and Scituate.

"It is a tough campaign. I have represented all of the people in the district for the past four years and wish to continue to do so. We are making strides and with your help and assistance we will continue to make greater progress. As your full time representative you will receive full time effort from me as in the past."

A beautiful seascape painting was donated to the campaign by artist Mrs. Warren Brown of Hingham. The lucky recipient of the door prize was Robert Parsons of Hull.

Murray introduced several other candidates who dropped in to wish her well. Gracious as ever, she chatted with several individuals and discussed their thoughts and concerns throughout the day.

State Rep. Mary Jeanette Muray talked recently to her campaign workers at a meeting in Hull about Question No. 1 referendum questions.

"Constitutional Conventions held in joint session of the House of Representatives and the Senate determine which amendments shall go to the voters for referendum. Two separate successive legislatures must vote on any such questions," said Murray.

"I usually vote favorably on important issues in Constitutional Conventions which I feel the voters should have the privilege of casting their ballots on these issues," continued Rep. Murray.

The local state representative voted for the following in Constitutional Convention to place these items before her constituents;Question No. 1 - State aid to non-public school students and certain institutions; Question No. 2, Capital punishment; Question No. 3 - Restricting low-lead radioactive waste disposal and nuclear power plant construction; and Question No. 4 was placed on the ballot as an initiative petition.

Stouffer speaks against Question 1

Democratic candidate for State Representative Caroline Stouffer, speaking at a Hingham coffee, discussed the need to keep public funds for public education.

Facing the voters on the Nov. 2 ballot will be a question regarding the use of public funds for private education. In order to remove the current prohibition against using public funds to assist non-public schools, a Constitutional Amendment is required. Such an amendment needs voter approval. Stouffer has come out strongly in opposition to any change in the state's Constitution which would allow using public monies for such purposes.

She expressed concern that such a change will drain funds away from the public schools which are already showing the effects of budget cuts and reduced programs. Most Massachusetts communities are wrestling with the realities of providing quality education within the confines of limited budgets.

Stouffer told the voters attending the coffee that at a time when public schools have had to eliminate courses, increase class size, and cut back special programs, sports activities and field trips, "it is inappropriate for the state to incur additional financial burdens for the local school committees in order to assist those who have made a conscious choice to send their children to private schools."

She feels it is urgent that the state guarantee sufficient funds to maintain a high level of education in the public schools. The public education of students should not be jeopardized in order to provide funds for private school students. The responsibility for private schools must rest with those making the choice to send their children to those schools.

Stouffer's opponent has twice voted in favor of removing the Constitutional restriction and allowing public funds to be used for private education. If ratified by the voters on Nov. 2, such a change could immediately force school committees to drain money from public school budgets and bring about a further decline in the quality of education offered at the public schools.

"How can my opponent believe that funneling funds away from the public school system will make it better?" Stouffer asked. "Her vote reflects a basic philosophical difference between us. I believe in strengthening the public school system, because that is where the public commitment to education lies, and that goal can only be achieved by assuring sufficient funding for public education."

Aside from the financial impact, there were questions as to what would keep a private school private once it began to receive public funds. Public schools must, under state and federal law, meet certain regulations regarding discrimination by sex or to the handicapped. However, legal research indicates that the Constitutional Amendment would set up exclusions in these areas, and the private schools would not be required to meet those standards in order to receive public aid.

from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

October is a gentle reminder that summer is making her exit and nowhere can you find more subtle hints than here on our South Shore. In these days when farmlands are vanishing, a trip to Uncle Harry's is a must at this time of year, not just to buy apples, but to enjoy a scene typical of our New England autumns of long ago. Here's a chance to view knarled trees laden with bright red fruit and sniff the tang of the apples stored in the old wooden shed. You'll see his sign on Union St. in North Marshfield at the start of the long lane leading to his orchard, where you can pick your apples off the tree, off the ground, or choose from crates of fragrant "drops" for cooking, or hand-picked for snacking. If you can't resist taking home a bushel, try freezing apples by washing, coring and paring. Slice directly into cold saltwater (2 T salt to 1 gallon water). Drain. Scald 2 to 3 min. in boiling water. Cool 2 to 3 min. in ice cold water, drain. If you can't wait to try them, here is Julia Chapman's recipe for

APPLE CAKE

2 c. diced apples
1 c. sugar
1 egg
1/3 c. oil
1½ c. flour
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. cinnamon
1/2 tsp. salt
1 c. raisins

Add sugar to diced apples and let stand 10 min. Add egg and oil. Sift dry ingredients and add to above mixture. Bake in 9x9" pan, greased and floured, at 350 degrees for 30 to 40 min. Sprinkle with confectioners sugar.

Even the farmstands take on a new look as summer is on the wane. It's a riot of color at Steverman's on Country Way where row upon row of hardy mums are yours for a ridicously low price if you go armed with a shovel to dig up your plants. Shell beans had just been picked the other day and the owner said they're wonderful combined with corn to make succatash, but, being a true old Yankee, he also has a fondness for green tomatoes and says they're delicious fried. Just dip slices in bread crumbs, fry carefully on each side, then salt and pepper. Or fry them in butter and add brown sugar and salt. A wonderful breakfast treat with bacon! Speaking of bacon, here is Mary Faas' recipe for

BACON-WRAPPED WATER CHESTNUT

1 T seasoned salt
2 T lemon juice
1 T Worcestershire Sauce
2 5 oz. cans water chestnuts
Pickled watermelon cubes

Marinate for 24 hours. Wrap chestnuts in 1/2 slice bacon and broil until crisp. Wrap watermelon cubes in 1/2 slice of bacon and broil until crisp.

Though deserted, our beaches are at their loveliest and marsh grass is slowly turning golden along the river banks. The clam flats beckon before the east wind gets colder and stronger, so if you get out for one last bucket of clams, you might care to try Arlene Garside's

CLAM PIE

2 medium potatoes, boiled, sliced thin
2 c. minced clams
4 slices bacon
1 c. onion
1/2 c. milk
1/4 c. butter
2 T flour
Sage, salt and pepper to taste

Fry bacon til crisp. Saute onion in fat. Drain liquid from clams into a 2-cup measuring cup. Add milk, so that your liquid from clams, together with milk, measures 1¾ cups. Add clams to onions, crumble bacon and place with boiled potatoes in single pie crust. Add flour, butter and seasonings to clam/milk liquid to make gravy. When thickened, add to ingredients in pie plate. Bake in 450 over for 25 min.

Coast Guard report

MONDAY, SEPT. 25

While underway the CG 210503 found a diver swimming in the North River Channel. Due to heavy boating traffic current in the river and absence of a diving flag, the diver was taken aboard the 210503 and delivered to his vessel which was boarded by CG personnel and cited for four safety violations, these included no numbering on the vessel, no certificate of registration on board, insufficient number of lifejackets and no diving flag present. The vessel was owned and operated by the diver William Massidda and was escorted to a safe mooring.

Received call on channel 9 CB from the vessel "Ghost Rider," a 22 ft. outboard, disabled with engine trouble near the Mary Ann Rocks Buoy with three people on board. The CG 41455 was dispatched and towed the vessel, owned and operated by Algird Stunzenas to Scituate Harbor where a boarding was conducted to ensure the proper equipment was on board and the vessel was issued a violation for improper numbering on one side of the vessel.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 26

The alert watchstander at CG Station Scituate overheard traffic on distress channel 16 FM from the vessel "Ducky" and also from Pt. Allerton CG. The vessel "Ducky" was reported to be sinking 1 mile north of Minots Light. The CG 41455 was immediately dispatched with CG Pt. Allerton's 41383 to the vessel "Ducky" who was found in 3-4 ft. seas, sinking. Both CG vessels proceeded to dewater the vessel. CG Pt. Allerton 41384 towed the "Ducky" to Lil Ritchards Marina where it was hauled and a boarding was conducted with no violations.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 28

Received call from Scituate Harbormaster informing this unit of oil spill at Cole Parkway Marina. CG 210503 was dispatched to investigate and take samples of the oil for CG Marine Safety Office in Boston.

Everyone agrees . . .
property taxes are too high

so does Caroline Stouffer (D)
Candidate for State Representative

What can be done to fight escalating

PROPERTY TAXES?

The State must:

- fulfill its unmet obligation to fund local education to the level provided in the law
- accept fiscal responsibility for any new mandated programs
- continue rebates to communities within the MBTA district that have little or no service
- accept greater financial responsibility for public transportation
- guarantee municipalities a minimum level of local aid each year. At least 40% of all new revenues should return to local governments to help maintain police, fire and educational services.
- take an active and cooperative role in helping municipalities deal with the fiscal realities of Proposition 2½.

No one wants to cut important and necessary social service, but blatant mismanagement or fraud must be stopped. Government corruption, as documented by the Ward Commission, costs taxpayers billions of dollars and should never again be allowed to infiltrate state politics.

- every agency should take steps to ensure that its services are delivered in the most efficient manner
- complete financial records of agency expenditures should be available for public scrutiny
- public assistance to senior citizens so they do not lose their homes because of unpaid property taxes — possibly an arrangement could be made to defer a portion of taxes until the property is sold.

If these ideas make sense to you . . .

. . . vote Nov. 2 for

At the Recreation Department...

The Cohasset Recreation Department is accepting telephone registrations for two dog obedience training programs scheduled to begin Wednesday, Oct. 20 at 7 p.m. The fee will be $20 per dog for the eight-week session.

The purpose of the first class will be to teach novice and pet owners basic obedience and responsible pet ownership. Topics will include proper use of voice, corrections, stay commands and getting the dog to come and heel.

Helpful hints on dog ownership and responsibility will also be included.

Obedience will include those exercises beneficial to the pet owner and will benefit owners who may eventually show their dog in obedience.

An 8 p.m. class will be an advanced class for those dogs who have had prior training.

Owners are required to bring their dogs equipped with a humane choke chain.

The proper size of the chain is determined by measuring the dog's neck and adding four inches.

It is urged that handlers wear comfortable shoes and clothes for these sessions.

The classes will have a graduation "fun match" and ceremony to demonstrate their newly acquired skills at the end of the eight-week session.

Laurie Ann Goodrich will instruct the course in Basic Canine Obedience for the department.

As an experienced professional handler at the breed and obedience level, Miss Goodrich has handled dogs in each group as well as rare breeds.

She has been an assistant trainer at Wilder's Dog Training School in Scituate since 1976.

She has much experience with both pure bred and mixed breed dogs and is a Certified Obedience Instructor in Canine Obedience at both the beginning and advanced levels at Newbury Junior College in Holliston, Ma.

She also holds a B.A. in Psychology with a minor in Biology from Boston State College where she did her psychology practice at the Stone Zoo in Stoneham, graduating cum laude.

To register, call the Rec. Dept. office at 383-6791. Class size will be limited and enrolled on a first call/first registered basis. Non-residents will be enrolled as space allows.

Cohasset is a long, long way from Arosanti

By Laura Doherty

Arcosanti, a prototype city located in the middle of a desert in Arizona, has attracted people from all over the world since its inception 12 years ago, including Jim and Nan Shipsky of Cohasset.

Architect, Paolo Soleri, bases his design for what will be a living demonstration of a very compact, three-dimensional city on arcology, a term he uses to describe the concept of architecture and ecology working as one integral process. Born in Italy, where he received his doctor of architecture degree, Soleri came to the United States on a Frank Lloyd Wright fellowship. Grants from several different foundations allowed him to research and eventually publish works on urban design, which maximizes interaction and accessibility while minimizing the costs of energy, raw materials and land.

Jim Shipsky describes Soleri as an "architect, philosopher and visionary." According to Newsweek, Arconsanti is "probably the most important experiment undertaken in our lifetime."

Jim readily explains how "the built form of the city, itself, can be the most significant tool in the next quantum leap of human evolution" by making it possible for groups of people to interact. His feelings about Cohasset are mixed. He has a deep appreciation of its aesthetic beauty but feels that much could be done toward making it a better place to live, for instance by the establishment of space for a natural meeting of people of all life styles. He feels that the segregation of people is bad — "mixing them produces a lot of energy in terms of creativity," he notes.

Cohasset, also has too many cars, according to Jim. Soleri plans to eliminate their use within city limits. According to Nan, it takes less than 15 minutes to walk to anywhere in Arcosanti.

Jim first visited Arcosanti in 1971 after graduating from the School of Architecture, Renseelear Polytechnical Institute in New York. For almost a decade following this visit, he worked in several architectural firms from Boston to Honolulu but "never on a project that I felt was really needed and that if it wasn't built I would have felt sad. Arcosanti was the only project in the world which from any view point made tremendous sense." After visiting it again in 1980 as a tourist, he and Nan signed on for a summer workshop for a five week period.

Workshoppers are a vital force in the construction of Arcosanti. As described in a brochure about the project, they invest five weeks in a "total immersed environment of voluntary simplicity and dedication to the task of city building." They rise at 5 a.m. and begin work at 6 and finish at 2:30. The fees from the workshop also provide income for the project.

Other income is generated from the sale of Cosanti originals — wind chimes designed by Soleri and hand produced at Arconsanti, designer tiles and other items, honoraria received for Soleri's international lecture circuit and the sale of his books. Some funding has also been received from private foundations. Community residents of which there are about 70 contribute their time and skills primarily as an investment in the future.

Jim notes that recently there have been major planning changes at Arcosanti. It is now recognized that using workshop participants is not the most effective way of getting work done. Also, the money needed cannot be raised by "selling bells." A skilled financial manager has now joined the project and he will be directly involved in solving such current needs as the establishment of some kind of equity for the permanent tenants.

Jim describes Arcosanti as "technically a desert" but "it shocks you." The first two weeks, it seems a "barren place" but after that "you come to feel it as robust and dynamic." They both agree that it was "a great place to be." There were no cars and they walked to work which for Jim was constructing wood shelves and for Nan a boulder wall. Although Nan usually did not prepare meals, twice she cooked dinner for 120 people which, she described as "very exciting." Much of the food is raised at Arcosanti in its gardens and solar greenhouse. However, according to Jim there is no attempt to duplicate many of the resources already available outside.

Nan also enjoyed working with people from many different countries and at least one former Hingham resident, Sally Dinwoodie, who is in charge of ceramics.

After 10 years, Arcosanti has developoed the foundation from which to begin work on its main structure, Valetta Springs, a 25 story structure wrapped in a semi-circle — one unit to fill the housing and working needs of 2,000 residents. Funds must be raised as well as a work force of at least 600. In the meantime, some of Soleri's philosophy and concepts are already evident in such buildings as the visitors center, art studios, the ceramic apse, the theatre, foundry and swimming pool.

Arcosanti exemplifies Soleri's philosophic and scientific approach to design. His attitude, according to Jim, is Oriental and concentrated on nature and evolution in which each forward step is more compact and complex. In this way, Jim explains, he uses miniaturization and complexity as guidelines for his city as opposed to suburbia which is neither dense nor complex.

The completion of Arcosanti is planned for the year 2000. To those who would question that amount of time, Soleri would answer "to build a town in 30 years might be a reasonable compromise between the unplanned growth of a community stretching for generations and the instant communities we scatter singlemindedly — if not mindlessly — across the continent." Soleri, Jim emphasizes, gives the community a place to perceive itself.

GJESTEBY READS MARINER AND MIRROR

Reacting to a front page story in the Mirror, which stated "Martha Gjesteby said she never gets the Mariner or the Mirror," School committeewoman Martha announced at Monday night's meeting that she not only sometimes reads the Mirror and Patriot Ledger, but she also subscribes to the Mariner, Boston Globe and New York Times.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

Acting Fire Capt. and School committeeman, Richard Conley, noted that Deer Hill teacher, Frank Deakin and Principal, Kenneth Ekberg have scheduled a fire prevention program for Friday afternoon, Oct. 8. John Creamer has a program going in the Osgood, he reported, and Health coordinator Mike Gill has been discussing some programs.

TWO TROMBONES DONATED

School Supt. Eugene Crowell, formally thanked Barbara Dillon, of 217 Jerusalem Road, for her donation of two trombones to the Deer Hill School. Barbara's daughter is one of two former Cohasset students opening on Broadway this fall. Sandy is a delightful piano player and singer.

SCHOOL DEPARTMENT WON'T USE FREE COTTAGE

Last Wednesday, Athletic Director Clark Chatterton, Supt. Crowell, and Shop Instructor Patrick Plante carefully looked at the summer cottage Mr. Drexel is willing to donate to a non-profit institution.

Crowell reported that unfortunately, because it is a pre-fab house, the modular construction would prohibit its use as a public building. "I guess it would last a day and a half up at Millican Field," said the superintendent, referring to the vandalism of a previous structure there. Furthermore, he declared that it would be expensive to move the building.

Plante will do some design work on a needed structure, and Chatterton feels people in the community might be interested in contributing to a storage building, the superintendent reported.

REDESIGNING MILLICAN FIELD

Supt. Crowell announced that Patrick Plante's mechanical drawing class will design a template for redesigning Millican Field, which is owned by the town. Fields would then run across the area, at a 90 degree angle to the present layout.

Committeeman Nedrow supported this as offering better utilization of the existing space. Mrs. Gjesteby stated that not having an all-weather track is a distinct disadvantage. Mr. Conley deplored the fact that several fields utilized by the schools are not of regulation size.

CLEANING OUT DEER HILL BASEMENT

The perennial problem of unwanted school surplus furniture and books, which fill up a huge area in the Deer Hill Basement, was tackled again by Supt. Crowell.

He suggested that the School Department might run its own yard sale. Committeeman, John Langmaid warned that it was his understanding that the School Department had to declare the materials surplus, and then it was up to Selectmen to advertise them.

Advisory Board Member, Jacqueline Dormitzer, who stressed that she was at the school committee meeting as a private citizen, warned that funds from the sale of unwanted library books, with which she had been involved in the past, were returned to the Town of Cohasset, rather than to the library. The superintendent is to investigate legalities and possibilities.

MT. MONADNOCK TRIP SET FOR OCT. 16

The School Committee voted 5-0 to allow the Junior High Mt. Monadnock trip Saturday, Oct. 16.

The cost, to be paid by students, is estimated at $10.25 each. The buses will leave at 7 a.m., and return at approximately 4:30, Physical Education Director, Marilyn Watson announced.

Chaperones will be physical education majors and PSO volunteers. If signups warrant, an additional bus or the school van may accommodate students, however, she does not want such a large group of inexperienced students that it would be difficult to manage properly.

Parents will have to sign insurance waivers and permissions. In case of rain, the trip will be cancelled.

WARNING NOTICE PROCEDURES

The School committee agreed by consensus to give the administration the authority to investigate printing warning notices on "carbonless" triplicate.

One copy would go to parents, one to the guidance office, and one kept by the teacher. Since warning notices go out in a few days, it is hoped to have the new forms in place for the following cycle of notices.

BUDGET TIMETABLE

The Superintendent announced that his administrative budget managers would return all budget sheets to him by Nov. 29. He hopes to have the preliminary budget in the hands of the School committee before Christmas or by Jan. 10, at the latest.

On Feb. 28, the budget submission is due at Town Hall to be printed in the Warrant. Historically, the School committee has made some changes after that date.

March 24 is PSO candidates night, Town Meeting is April 2, and Town Elections are scheduled for April 9. Jacqueline Dormitzer, citing the fact that the committee had just been deploring the conditions regarding playing fields, and noting the committee had transferred $6,000 out of grounds maintenance in June, suggested that a hard look be taken at the transfer from accounts as prepared by the town accountant, when looking for monies for the budget.

DRUG AND ALCOHOL POLICY

The Drug and Alcohol Policy was returned again to Town Counsel for what one member of the audience hoped would be "the final, final, final, final draft."

Discussion centered on using the police department to transport youngsters, kept after school for prohibited conduct where no medical emergency exists, when a parent, or emergency substitute listed by the parent on school forms, could not be reached.

The superintendent observed that searches by police with dogs should not be permitted, unless a warrant had been issued.

Feels snubbed by selectmen

Lt. Stockbridge says he'll retire

Police Lt. Charles Stockbridge is planning an early retirement from the force and will move out of state, after being twice denied the acting police chief's position.

Stockbridge, who has been with the Cohasset force for 17 years, was passed over when selectmen named an acting chief last week. Patrolman Joseph M. Kealy, a 16-year veteran of the force, was appointed acting chief.

Stockbridge has not named a retirement date yet, but he said it will be "in the very near future." The senior ranking officer on the Cohasset force believes selectmen have turned the chief's position into a "political football. They just want to get someone in there they can dictate to. Whoever gets the job will have to answer to the selectmen for everything and will have to do exactly what they say."

Stockbridge, a lieutenant for the past six years, also supports the petition drive which will be initiated by Sgt. Richard Barrows. The petition will call for the return of the chief's position to the Civil Service roster.

According to Civil Service regulations, selectmen would decide who would be eligible to take a competitive exam for the job. The board would choose a chief among the three highest-scoring candidates.

Barrows, a 30-year veteran of the force, was also interviewed last week for the acting police position, but was rejected in favor of Officer Kealey. Barrows was fuming when he exited from the last week's meeting, and said he would begin immediately to petition for a change to Civil Service.

By appointing a chief through the Civil Service it would provide "everyone with a fair shot at the job," according to Sgt. Barrows.

During last week's meeting, selectmen interviewed acting police chief candidates Stockbridge, Barrows and Kealey. An acting chief will serve until a permanent replacement is named by selectmen.

Selectmen had originally made the same vote on Sept. 17 when they appointed Kealey acting chief. But two weeks ago, after Stockbridge filed a formal complaint, Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt ruled selectmen were in violation of the open meeting law when they made the selection in closed session.

After the ruling was handed down, selectmen scheduled another meeting for last Tuesday night. At the conclusion of the three interviews, selectman Henry Ainslie made a motion to appoint Stockbridge

HOUSE FOR SALE — The once active Cohasset Sportsmen's Club is looking displaced these days as it waits for a new owner on Route 3A opposite the home of Joseph Rosano, club president. The selectmen voted more than a year ago to evict the house from town-owned land opposite Winter Gardens. Saturday the unwanted house was moved off the town land.

Report from the Census

On plumbing and other facts

What ever happened to all that confidential information we itemized in 1980 for the federal government? Where did it go and just what conclusions were calculated from the tabulations we computed for the Bureau of the Census?

Some interesting summations were deduced from that information. It is available from the regional office of the Bureau of the Census in Boston. But few citizens request the numerous studies for their private perusal.

The Mariner received some of the studies completed for Scituate and Cohasset. And we thought we could highlight some of the more interesting facts and figures that pertain to our hometowns. Although the study is not meant to be a comparison of the neighboring towns, we thought we could better illustrate what numbers mean by relating them to each other.

One study completed by the federal government was a summary of the general housing characteristics of the towns. The total number of people responding to the census in 1980 in Cohasset was 7174. Those people lived in a total of 2512 housing units, 2488 of which were year-round structures. In each year-round home, there was an average of 6.8 rooms.

In Scituate, a total of 17,317 persons responded to the census. From a total of 6797 housing units, 5755 were year-round structures. A year-round home in Scituate had an average of 6.6 rooms, according to the study.

The median value of a home in Scituate was $59,000 and the average rent for such a unit was $348. In Cohasset, the median value of a year-round home was $82,900 and the average rent was $366.

Although both towns have their share of affluent residents, it is noted in the Cohasset census there were 1.2 percent or 29 housing units which did not contain complete plumbing. It also said that such a one-family unit contained an average of one person per unit.

Judith Cohen of the Boston regional office, said complete plumbing facilities within a home are listed as missing if it does not meet one of the following conditions: 1. all three specified plumbing facilities (hot and cold water, flush toilet, and bathtub or shower) are present but are shared by another household; 2. some, not all the facilities are present; and 3. none of the three specified plumbing facilities are present.

Cohen estimated there are housing units in every Massachusetts town which do not contain complete plumbing facilities, but are occupied year-round.

In Scituate, there was 0.5 percent or 34 year-round units without plumbing facilities. All numbers, it

Congressional debate: Conway takes on Studds

By Jane Lane

Voters have a clear choice between candidates when they cast their ballot on November 2.

A showcase of the local candidates was presented last week at Scituate High School by the League of Women Voters. Highlighting the forum was a feisty debate between 10th Congressional district incumbent Gerry Studds and Republican opponent Jack Conway.

As Conway said in his opening remarks, there is a wide difference in the style and philosophy between the two candidates.

Conway portrayed himself as a conservative businessman and an advocate of Reagonomics.

Studds, who listed names Conway has labeled him during the campaign, such as "celestially arrogant and out-of-touch," subtly commented, "Jack's not a bad realtor."

Also, Murray vs. Stouffer

Conway argued that this country sunk itself into financial woes 37 years ago when "we spent and spent and helped and helped" and the national debt increased to trillions of dollars. Reagan decided to attack that debt, according to Conway, and America has now bottomed out of its recession.

Interest rates have deflated from 21 to 13 percent, mortgage rates are down to 14.7 percent from 17½ percent, he added. "I feel good about what is happening to the economy now," he said.

Studds, in turn, stated that anyone who is as optimistic about the country's economy, "obviously has a job." He agreed with Vice President George Bush's phrase "voodoo economics" when applied to economic measures administered by Reagan. He said the economy is in the worst condition since the Depression.

Conway told the audience of more than 200 persons if mortgage rates continue to decline to 12 percent "it will mean the end of the recession. Housing will increase by leaps and bounds. Housing led us out of every recession since World War II and it will lead us out of this one."

One area in which the two opponents agreed was Reagan's approach to Israel and Lebanon during the Value of loan

Charles DeSantis of 260 Forest Ave. told selectmen they should be leery of a $1 million state loan the Sewer Commission is seeking to pay for designing a sewage treatment plant. He said there is no written guarantee from the state that the town won't have to repay the loan if federal aid is not awarded for the $13.7 million project. The state Division of Environmental Quality Engineering is expected to make the $1 million loan available and the town has voted to spend $500,000 for its share of the $1.5 million design costs. But the loan must be repaid if the federal government for the construction phase is approved. DeSantis said there is no guarantee the federal government will approve the aid. If that's the case, he said, we will have worthless plans and a lot of money to throw away. He recommended the selectmen receive in writing a guarantee that if the federal aid isn't approved, the town will not be responsible to repay the$1mil.loan.

Building inspector

Stanley Gould, a former deputy building inspector in Hull, will act as acting building inspector until the position is filled. Last week selectmen interviewed four candidates but reached no decision. The applicants are Leo Tully of Weymouth, Tom Marty of Hanover, Kenneth Osgood of Norwell and Robert Dennis of Cohasset. Tully is a part-time assistant building inspector in Weymouth and had served as a full-time inspector until his job was cut from the Weymouth budget. He has taken night classes in engineering from Northeastern. Marty holds a civil engineering degree and operates his own engineering consulting firm. He said he would continue to operate his consulting firm but would not take any jobs in Cohasset. Osgood has 16 years of experience as a carpenter foreman and construction superintendent and has taken courses at Northeastern in construction management.

Dennis is a graduate of Fitchburg State College with a degree in industrial arts. He has worked in the contracting field for 10 years and is self-employed. He taught industrial arts for three years at Westwood High School and established programs in architectural drawing, mechanical drawing, machine drawing and woodworking. If Dennis was selected, some compromise must be worked out to allow Dennis to do some outside contracting work in Cohasset.

Police vacancy

Selectmen received a letter of resignation from Officer Richard Fairbairn and are considering filling a sergeant's position to fill a shift commander position. Selectman Rocco Laugelle said the town has provisions for four sergeants but has lost one with the demotion of Sgt. John Rhodes III. However, Executive Secretary Arthur Clark said the town cannot fill a vacancy until Civil Service hears the appeal of Rhodes. Laugelle said Officer Bobby Jackson would be the logical choice because he is highly recommended and has passed the sergeant's exam. Selectman Mary Jane McArthur said if a new position is created, the town must prove the need to Civil Service.

Town Hall permission

Selectmen approved permission for the South Shore Art Center to use Town Hall Saturday, Oct. 30 for a benefit auction for the center's building fund.

Executive secretary's job

Within the next few weeks, the position of Executive Secretary will be advertised in major New England newspapers. Due date for applications will be Nov. 20. A job description was approved by selectmen last week. Still to be considered by selectmen in the interviews is if the executive secretary should live in Cohasset. Selectman Mary Jane McArthur said for a person making between $19,000 and $21,000 it might be difficult to find new housing. Robert Sturdy, a Cohasset resident, said the secretary should live in the town to "get a feel for the town" and could be helpful especially for town meeting. He said it didn't make sense for the secretary to be worried about Canton's town meeting and not care about Cohasset's town meeting.

Telephone service out

Telephone service for all of Hingham, Cohasset and Hull was disrupted Sunday night after something electrical malfunctioned in the central office.

A spokesman for New England Telephone Company explained that most customers were unaware the outage even happened.

Hingham police, however, noticed there was no phone service in the station about 10:30. An entry in their log states that the desk officer radioed Scituate to relay a message to the phone company about the service problem.

What if someone had an emergency when the police telephones were out of service, an officer was asked.

"They could always ring a fire alarm," the man replied.

But as fortune had it there were no emergencies during the time telephone service was out.

"Sunday is a quiet time," the phone company spokesman explained. "Our first report was at 10:39 by 11:30 service was back to normal."

He said the outage happened in stages, getting progressively worse. The problem was a malfunction in the electrical system within the control circuitry, he said.

An earlier power outage affecting the high tension wire that fed the Hingham central office had placed the system on a battery operation. The problem hit the phone service when those batteries started to wear down.

Lt. Stockbridge to quit ...

as acting chief. The motion was not seconded and was thereby dropped.

Selectmen Mary Jane McArthur and Rocco Laugelle then voted to appoint Kealey acting chief. Ainslie voted "present" during the roll call vote.

Ainslie said he did not want to see the department's chain of command broken and added "no one could fault us on picking a chief by rank, depending on whether we chose a good man for the job." Stockbridge has always acted in a respectful manner, Ainslie added.

McArthur said her decision was based on the theory "that with all this turmoil and conflict, in my judgment we want someone who is low key, who will promote a reasonable degree of harmony within the department. That's why I am in favor of Kealey."

She said she never intended to cast any negative feelings toward any one individual, and encouraged "anyone on the force if they want to apply for the permanent position to do so."

Laugelle agreed with McArthur and said he did not want to alter his choice for acting chief "in the middle of the stream. I want to make this temporary position as short as possible. I would prefer to see things as they now are."

Laugelle said his original reason for not voting for Stockbridge was "the difference in dollars." According to Laugelle, at the Sept. 17 meeting, Stockbridge was offered the acting chief's position, but at a lower salary than he makes now.

He would also have to quit his part-time off duty private job. "Charlie said 'nothing doing.' He wouldn't take the job for five cents less," Laugelle charged.

Under the current salary formula used by selectmen to determine the acting chief's pay, Stockbridge would have received $23,000; Barrows, $23,000; and Kealey, $21,000. Stockbridge currently receives $27,000 in base pay, overtime and detail work.

According to Stockbridge, he could not financially survive in Cohasset with a $4,000 pay cut. He currently works at a private oil company in Hingham as head of the security staff. Selectmen required Stockbridge to quit that job if he was named acting chief.

"I am currently putting a son through college and I need the money for that," Stockbridge said in a telephone interview. "Do you realize what I would have to give up for this chief's job? I would have to take a pay cut, give up that part-time job which I only work at two hours a day when I'm off duty, and I would have to work a 5/2 work week instead of the 4/2 schedule I have now."

After Stockbridge was bypassed for the chief's position following DeBassio's appointment, he sold his home and is currently renting a house. His thoughts at that time were to stay with the department for three more years, and then retire on a full pension.

But soon DeBassio realized that with a chief's salary of $29,500 (plus $1,000 as school truant officer), he couldn't make it in Cohasset, and he had to leave for a better-paying position with a private firm, Stockbridge said.

"Had I known DeBassio would be leaving so soon after his appointment, I would never had sold my home," the lieutenant said. "But I don't blame him for leaving. He was one of the finest men, and one of the finest professional police officers I have ever known. But the selectmen let him slip out of their grasp because they won't pay the chief what he is worth."

After DeBassio announced his resignation from the force, Stockbridge thought he had another shot at the chief's job. "I realize this sounds like sour grapes, and maybe it is, but I feel very badly. I feel if the job was still under the Civil Service jurisdiction, I could have had the job," he said.

He feels having the position under the control of selectmen "takes away the incentive from the men. They used to study and prepare themselves, from their first day on the force, to attain the chief's job. Now it's at the pleasure of the selectmen - whoever they want in that job. It takes away that hope the men have, that someday they can be chief," he noted.

Although he recognizes Acting Chief Kealey is one of the finest men, and one of the better patrolmen in the department, Stockbridge feels the snubbing of two higher-ranking officers will have a demoralizing effect on the force.

"It will definitely have a demoralizing effect," he said. "When you pass over a lieutenant with 27 years and a sergeant with 30 years, it can't help but have negative effect on the men. When I started out in the department 27 years ago, the chief's job was my dream — my ultimate goal. It hurts that as hard as I tried, I'll never reach that goal."

Tylenol removed

All Tylenol capsules were removed from shelves of Cohasset Colonial Pharmacy last week.

According to pharmacist Ralph Harrison, the capsules have been re-packaged and are in storage in the back of the store until further orders are issued.

Although the Extra-Strength capsules were the number one pain reliever among his customers, Harrison said no one has asked for the product since the recent notoriety. The Colonial Pharmacy had sold more Tylenol capsules than any other brand, including aspirin, Harrison said.

Sen. Tsongas hits Reagan policies at Hingham stop

By Patricia Desmond

A group of V.I.D.'s breakfasted this week on scrambled eggs, arguments for the Nuclear Freeze Referendum, the campaign strategies of Caroline Stouffer, orange juice and the thoughts in general of Sen. Paul Tsongas.

As Tsongas told the Very Important Democrats, "Who wins in the legislature won't be terribly important if the arms race continues."

He pointed out that he doesn't believe the freeze is the answer — he favors reduction.

"But this is our one opportunity to protest," he said.

Later Stouffer's Republican opponent, Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, was found to be riding the nuclear freeze bandwagon.

"I voted to put it on the ballot," Rep. Murray said taking a few minutes from work at the State House. "My concern is that all nations be included, not just Russia, and that everyone be monitored," she said.

"Of course, that's the way the question came out."

So the nuclear freeze isn't an issue in the local representatives race.

Tsongas said the freeze has been winning strong backing. The vote was five to one in Austin, Texas, as the junior senator said.

"I've got three kids," Tsongas added. "The situation is dangerous. Look at your kids and your grandchildren — that's our ultimate obligation."

Giving the group a quick lesson in Kenyon diplomacy, he explained that if confrontation is seen as inevitable, it, by definition, becomes inevitable.

Tsongas sees Russia as being caught in the same despair over the possibility of nuclear holocaust.

Tsongas said the opponents of a freeze are using the sort of tactics prevalent during the McCarthyism of the 50's.

He singled out an incident involving himself and Sen. Jeremiah Denton of Alabama.

As Tsongas tells it, the Southern senator was describing Peace Links as a communist-inspired organization. Peace Links was founded by Betty Bumpus and Tsongas' wife, Nikki, is a member.

"I rather resented someone calling my wife communist-inspired," the low-keyed Tsongas said.

" 'Is your wife a commmie?' was his last question to me.

"I said when I get home I'll ask her.

"Her response was, 'no' she's Episcopalian," he smiled and there was a flutter of laughter through the room.

"We have the opposition on the run when they stoop to these tactics."

Moving away from nuclear holocaust, Tsongas said some hopeful things about the new secretary of state. He seems to believe the man is listening to the thoughts of the senate's foreign relations committee.

Tsongas joked that even if the note-taking and questions are an attempt to co-opt the committee members, that's more attention than their thoughts earned in the past.

His own view of the situation in Lebanon is rather

Two new exhibits at the Art Center

Haletky and Graff show will open Friday, Oct. 15 between 6 and 8 p.m. at the South Shore Art Center Gallery, 103 Ripley Road, Cohasset. The exhibit, "Places," offers expressionistic and realistic views of two well travelled artists.

Philadelphia's Leon Graff comes to New England and brings with him vibrantly colored animated acrylics. The Philadelphia Inquirer has called his work, honest and unpretentious. Mr. Graff has exhibited at the Wardour Gallery in London and also in Philadelphia and Boston. He has studied painting in South Africa and London.

Becky Haletky of Whitman, "loves to capture unusual times of day or weather, with the subject matter architectural, store fronts, Victorian houses, etc."

Whether it be in Whitman or Italy, Ms. Haletky presents a straightforward, soft detailed approach to her watercolors. She is in the permanent collection of Cynthia Vaughan, London, England and has exhibited throughout the Boston area.

Singing is another part of the Haletky talent. Ms. Haletky is a singer and guitar player in the bluegrass band "Woodsmoke." Two friends, Karen and Chris, will offer musical entertainment at the opening reception, Oct. 15, from 6 to 8 p.m.

For information, call South Shore Art Center at 383-9548.

Named Studds coordinator

The Committee to Re-elect Congressmans Gerry Studds has appointed Sherry Becker as coordinator for the Congressman's re-election campaign activities in Cohasset.

Becker urged all residents who wish to participate in the Congressman's campaign to contact her at 383-1971 or to contact the Congressman's South Shore campaign headquarters at 837-5031.

Have some work? YES has workers

Yard raking, window wahing, garage cleaning, dog walking, kitchen painting, dish washing. These services and more are available by calling 383-0771, the number of Youth Employment Service in Cohasset.

This program, now beginning its fifth year, is a service of the Social Service League of Cohasset, which acts as sponsor for the student labor exchange in the community. Oct. 7 students will be registering at Cohasset High School for scores of jobs for which they have training, experience or just plain enthusiasm.

Residents who call 383-0771, 8:30 to 3 p.m. weekdays, will receive several names of prospective workers. Fees are arranged between employer and student.

The Social Service League of Cohasset, which has placed scores of students in past years through the Y.E.S. Program, welcomes comment from employers on the success of placements.

Carol Sandblom and Mary Chittim, directors of the Program for this year, emphasize that its success depends heavily on the response and involvement of individuals and businesses in Cohasset.

Tsongas hits Reagan policies ...

depressing. He said he hopes the U.S. troops are pulled out "when it's evident the government is collapsing."

He likened what's happening there as akin to Viet Nam.

On matters closer to the Stouffer/Murray race Tsongas predicted that Democrats will do well as people reject the Republican economic programs.

He said most Republicans in the Senate realized the Reganomics wouldn't work.

He told a joke about a man who fell over a precipice and hung by a limb over a 5,000 foot drop.

"Is there anybody up there?" he said.

"I am here. I am the Lord, a voice answered."

The story goes on that the voice said the man could be saved if he would have faith and to demonstrate his faith he should let go.

"Is there anybody else up there?" he said.

"Ronald Reagan told the Republicans last year to have faith and since then the GNP has dropped 5,000 points," Tsongas said.

"Even Republicans like Margaret Heckler are now saying they are not going to let go for anybody. But last year they were all at the White House having their pictures taken when it was still a juggernaut. This year they see it's sinking."

After the brunch and speeches Tsongas took a few minutes more to talk with the assemblage of Democrats.

He said the issues this year will be the important focus, not whether an incumbent does the best job of constituent service.

He talked about the need for a pragmatic approach to the economy. Someone asked him to be more specific and he mentioned that was what his book was all about.

Aside from the heart of the Stouffer campaign which was present at the brunch, there was D.A. Bill O'Malley, who Tsongas had an appointment to rally for later in the day, Sen. Allan McKinnon, Hull Selectman candidate Jim Tobin, Clerk of Courts Francis Powers, unopposed Scituate Selectwoman Ellie Seaton, School Committee member Loretta Warden, Jan Colby, Pat Walsh, Helen Barrows and dozens more.

Shaker furniture, because of its elegant simplicity, can be successfully combined with contemporary pieces or used in informal colonial settings. The shakers were a communal religious sect who produced forthright, honest furniture in the U.S. during the latter part of the 18th century. Their strict beliefs in frugality, industry and integrity carried over into their workmanship. The result was plain, unadorned, sturdy furniture that was delicate in proportion. Made of local cherry, pine, and maple, all furniture was carefully joined by mortise, doweling and dovetailing. It can be said that their furniture adhered to the modern precept that form should follow function.

Although his mom said the rest of the garden did rather poorly, his pumpkin was huge! It weighed 47 pounds and was 47½ inches in circumference. Jeremiah is so proud of his Hallowe'en pumpkin, rightfully so!

Field hockey & soccer teams win

CHS sports

By Alano O'Brien

FIELD HOCKEY

The Field Hockey team brought it's record to an even 4-4 with two wins last week.

Last Monday, they played Holbrook and defeated them 1-0.

The lone goal was scored by senior tri-captain Gia Barresi; with assists from seniors Anne Marie Lagrotteria and Joy Pratt.

Goalie Emily Glasfeld earned her first shut out of the season, while Elizabeth Glasfeld was praised for a strong game at the fullback position.

Last Wednesday, the girls travelled to Norwell to defeat the Clippers 2-0.

Gia Barresi scored a goal, assisted by Mia Graham and Susan Ciciotte.

Graham also scored the second goal with Jeanie Bailey and Joy Pratt assisting.

Elizabeth Glasfeld was praised for another strong game of defense while Emily Glasfeld recorded her second shut out for Cohasset.

BOYS SOCCER

The boys soccer team defeated Hanover 1-0 in a League contest last week.

Fullback David Rice drilled in the winning goal with five minutes left in the third quarter. Junior Charlie Brady assisted Rice's goal.

Senior goalie Chris Mahoney was praised for a superb game and recorded the shut-out for Cohasset.

In the mid-field, sophomores Mike Desantis and Lee Reid played a strong defensive game.

The team is looking forward to their match this Thursday with Duxbury's Green Dragons.

GIRLS SOCCER

The girl's soccer team travelled to Abington last Wednesday and were downed 3-0.

Coach Bill Fallon said his team played well defensively but couldn't set any offense together.

The girls play away at Hanover Wednesday and face E. Bridgewater home Friday.

CROSS COUNTRY

The Cross-Country team took four of the first five places to defeat Hull in a recent league meet.

Senior co-captain Paul Johnson finished the 2.7 mile course one minute ahead of the pack to place first.

Senior Bill Davenport and junior Mike Laitta placed second and third respectively with senior co-captain Mark Brown coming in fifth to finish up the win.

The team is 1-3 with loses to Hanover, Abington and Duxbury.

Seahawks whip Randolph twice

Coach Louis DiLorenzo's Bantam A's started the Seahawks 1982-83 Youth Hockey Season off on the right note as they downed Randolph 6-0 behind the brilliant goaltending of John Belsan.

Coach Bob Hayes Bantam B's were shut out by Randolph 1-0 despite the excellent cage-minding of Karl Kauper.

Coach Carney White's Pee Wee A's roared back from an early 3-goal deficit to knot Randolph 5-5. Danny Pompeo (2), Jason Clark, Scott Cutliff, and Todd FitzPatrick provided the scoring while Chris Olivieri, Craig Mulcahey, Darren Gold and James Misakian contributed assists.

Coach Frank McGovern's Pee Wee B's were also deadlocked by Randolph 1-1. Peter Buckley notched the lone Seahawk goal on a pass from Patrick Glennon. Gregory Neville and Eric Meschino excelled at their defensive slots while goalie Jamie Bridge made several outstanding saves on rival breakaways.

P.J. Breen walked off with this week's "Sharpshooter" Award as he whipped in a "Hat Trick" to lead his teammates past Duxbury 3-2 in the Pee Wee C contest.

Coach Barry Resnick's Squirt A's shaded Randolph 4-3. Jon Mahoney and Brian Pompeo netted a pair of goals each to pace the home team while Jeffrey White, Chris Sullivan and Billy Lincoln (2) all recorded assists.

Our young Mite skaters suffered an 8-3 drubbing to a powerful Duxbury squad. Paul Frey led the Mites with a pair of goals. Corey Champagne also scored in the losing effort and Kevin Mulcahey picked up the lone assist.

Editorial

What purpose?

If you're old enough to remember the pre-rock 'n roll tune "wedding bells are breakin' up that ol' gang of mine" you may have some idea of what has been happening to Cohasset's finest. Yes, finest, for they don't make finer police officers than former Chief John DeBassio and Lt. Charles Stockbridge.

But it's not "wedding bells" that's breaking up the old gang and driving dedicated men out of office and out of Cohasset, it's the ding-dongs on the board of selectmen.

In case you missed it, the news this week is that Lt. Charles Stockbridge, a 27 year veteran of the force, is about to retire in the aftermath of being passed over for the position of acting chief, a position for which he was both highly qualified and next-in-line. This news, and the loss to Cohasset that it represents, ought to convince the town beyond any doubt that the selectmen's behavior over the last several months has not simply been the sort of behavior good-government types find upsetting to high-falutin' notions of how government ought to run.

Make no mistake, the behavior of selectmen has hurt Cohasset, and the "hurt" is there for all to see. Not for mere annoyance do good men like John DeBassio and Charles Stockbridge leave their jobs and put themselves and their families through the trauma of change. They only do so when they are profoundly and repeatedly provoked and when they see it demonstrated that there is very little hope that selectmen will ever permit intolerable conditions to change for the better.

What we'd like to ask the selectmen is this: What on earth are you trying to accomplish? What if anything is in your plan? How is Cohasset served by actions on your part that cause the loss of two of the best men among us? What is your intent?

Our hunch is that selectmen have no intent — and that is the problem. It seems to us that they stumble along focusing only on the minutest aspect of their decisions and remaining oblivious to the consequences of their decisions. Larry Ainslie's a nice fella — let's get him some paid details, never mind what DeBassio thinks. Charlie Stockbridge wants too much money, let's make someone less uppity the acting chief, never mind if we lose Charlie in the process.

If the thought processes we suggest are how selectmen actually think, we can only say that their thinking is inadequate. They have been elected to serve Cohasset and doing so means thinking big, not small. It often means saying no to friends and overlooking petty annoyances in order to do what is right for Cohasset.

Lastly, we ought to point out once again that in this latest imbroglio involving Lt. Stockbridge, Chairman Henry Ainslie is "clean." He has consistently argued and voted in favor of doing right by Stockbridge and by Cohasset. He deserves credit for so doing, and in this case it would be unfair to lump him together with his erring colleagues.

Death on the highway

By Paul Steven Stone

He looked so lonely.

He was so dead.

Had he waited one more minute before stepping out onto the Southeast Expressway, his might have been another death that had little meaning in my life. Like you, I might have read about him in the Globe and wondered who he had been, and what had driven him to be so foolishly desperate.

But he didn't choose to wait.

It's been almost two weeks since that night when I saw him lying so alone on the expressway. I can't escape from the image, though it reappears less frequently now. The body in pieces, the strangers standing on the dark highway keeping their distance, the traffic inching by with an unobstructed view of a surreal drama that seemed lifted from old war zone news photos.

The mind has no simple way of dealing with such an image. Like a child who's taken apart his parent's clock, you search in panic for a way to make the machine whole again. But the reality of what you see stands firm against your growing desperation and sense of helplessness. And soon you see that the clock will never be made whole again. Never.

But what of it? What should it mean? You read about tragedies every day. It's inevitable that sooner or later you will become a witness, if not a victim, to this or some similar event. What should it mean?

There are consequences you begin to experience almost immediately. The curtain you've drawn over your vulnerability no longer masks your mortality. Worse yet, the fears run to your very deepest underpinnings, and you imagine your children lying there on the highway, or others whom you love.

How invulnerable can you feel once you've seen how wide is the circle that you've drawn about your happiness?

Death comes to all of us. To those whom we love as well as to everyone else with whom we share this mystery called life. Live long enough and you will see your circle of happiness pierced countless times, and the circle gradually diminished until you find yourself waiting for a conclusion that was fixed from the moment you were born. For your life itself is a highway and there's no escape from the fact that you will one day reach your destination.

If you see this — truly see it — you may start to understand that what's important above all is not the destination but the journey. You begin to understand that the real fortune of that lifeless stranger — good or bad — rested not upon the tragedy that occurred on the Southeast Expressway but on everything that preceded it.

Commentary

Thoreau once said that most men lead lives of quiet desperation. That's a tragedy we witness every day of our lives, yet it goes unnoticed for the true act of dying that it represents. If there's a higher order in the universe we were clearly meant to connect with it; not through the mind-deadening stimulii to which we turn for our pleasures and for our view of the world, but through our senses, through a hungry intelligence, through nature, through works of art that lift us to higher realities. The experience of a family gathered together in a room is totally altered once you add the presence of a TV set. The opportunity for channeling love from one person to another is always there, but to what is their consciousness now directed? Not to each other. Not to the family. Not to the love. Only to a stimulant which in our culture rarely feeds the hunger of the intellect or the spirit.

If you look around yourself, you'll see that Thoreau knew well what he was talking about. That the things we hold up for ourselves and our children as treasures are actually hollow. The satisfaction they give is transitory, never lasting. If money, possessions and success were truly of value, there would only be happiness among the rich, only sorrow among the poor. We've become so weak about questioning these values, that we laugh when someone raises them for us to look at anew.

But then you see someone dead on the highway, and you find that his loneliness has broken off some stones from the wall you've built around your view of life and its meaning. After all, here is the ultimate in isolation. TV, radio, technology, apathy, narcotics or alcohol can only take you so far away from the essence — that true experience — of living on this planet. Now you see someone who no longer needs air conditioning to deaden the burden of the summer's heat. Who no longer has to make excuses for spending his Sundays watching media heroes instead of his children. Who no longer has to define his existence against the size of a paycheck or the cost of a car.

It's sad to think that there are beautiful sights the dead man will never again have the chance to experience. A sunrise on the ocean, water lilies seen through the eyes of an artist, the smile on the face of a total stranger. Sadder still to think that he never took the chance while he had it.

Death is waiting on the highway for all of us. It would be the worst kind of tragedy if in journeying there we neglected to enjoy this gift we call life.

It would make us all so very lonely.

A vote against Question One

By David A. Mittell, Jr.

As Tanna Kasperowicz reported two weeks ago in the Mariner, Question 1 on the November 2 ballot — aid to students in private schools — is a "sleeper." If approved by the electorate it would alter the state constitution to allow public financial support for students attending private schools at the primary and secondary levels.

Just how much support and what sort no one really knows, for the wording of the amendment is very general and inclusive, and few of the legislators who voted for it in Constitutional Conventions in 1980 and 1982 seem to have known what they were voting for — if they even recall their vote. It remains a marvel of the nice local folks we send up to Beacon Hill that somehow in collectivity they are perennially capable of voting horrors upon us.

What is certain about Question 1, which came from somewhere in the Boston delegation, is that it would permit a fraction — any fraction — of government's much decreased commitment to public education to be divvied out to private education in the form of aid to students. Barring a stunning increase in public support for education generally, whatever money private schools would thereby gain, public schools would thereby lose.

A number of conservatives, most prominently William F. Buckley, see this as highly desirable. Their argument goes like this. Private schools are demonstrably better than public schools. Instead of pouring public money into the bottomless pit of inefficient, unionized public schools, why not give each child a "voucher" which his parents could use at the school of their choice, be it public or private.

According to this argument all economic brackets would be better served than in today's public schools, and so, eventually, would public schools themselves, because they would be forced to become efficient or perish. The twofold trouble with this argument is, first what it would do to public schools, and secondly what it would do to private schools.

Commentary

As to public schools, the flaw of the so-called voucher system is very simple. Assume, dubiously, that all segments of society have the wherewithal to "shop around" for schools for their children, and that a voucher plan is in all other ways theoretically workable.

The flaw that remains is that the size of any feasible support for students in private schools would not come close to covering the actual cost of private school education. The effect, therefore, would be to make private schools more easily accessible to the upper end of the economic spectrum, while it would leave the lower end in public schools that were now more poorly funded than ever.

Mariner towns today average about 200 boys and girls in private schools. Most of these kids are assets to the schools they attend. Their parents on average have more wherewithal than most parents to influence their children's schools and to agitate for a curriculum of quality.

A "voucher system" might double the number of students in private schools to 400 per town. The public schools would be likely to lose more of the students and families they need to keep if they are to remain viable as the educator of most of America's children — as it seems to me they must.

It seems to me that a voucher system, or any substantial form of aid to private education, would produce two systems separate and increasingly unequal. Every generation must train an elite, but the "elite" must be drawn from the talented of all segments of society. For a while we called this "equal must be remembered, are gathered from total numbers and an average figure is calculated.

Cohasset facts: A report from the Census ...

It is also interesting to note that the bureau neatly averts any possible identification of individual residents within a community. If, through its calculations, it might be possible to discover the identification of an individual, the computer will simply not devulge that information. Although the complete information data is stored within the computer in Washington, D.C., the information will not be released.

Such is the case with the tabulations for the number of housing units in Cohasset with a black head of household. A total of eight black persons responded to the census. That is approximately 0.1 percent of the total Cohasset population. But the computer stopped at that point and would not devulge if these people owned homes, or what was the median value of the home in which they resided.

In Scituate, there was a total of 58 black persons, or 0.3 percent of the population. A total of 18 blacks owned their home in Scituate, with a median value of $38,500. Of the number of housing units occupied by blacks in Scituate, about 4.8 percent of the units did not contain complete plumbing facilities, according to the study.

There was a separate study completed for the number of homes with a Spanish householder. In Cohasset, there were 11 persons of Spanish descent, or 0.2 percent of the population. But the study goes no further in attempting to calculate how many own homes. In Scituate, there were 122 persons of Spanish descent, or 0.7 percent of the population. A total of 24 own their home with a median value of $51,300.

Fireman Dick Conley discusses fire prevention at last week's assembly program at Deer Hill. Sixth graders directed the assembly, by the way; it's part of the school's enrichment program (see story page 28).

The Cohasset median income in 1979 was $27,542

In Scituate, as of 1980, there were no condominium units. There were 12 owner-occupied units valued at $10,000 or less and there were 21 homes valued at more than $200,000 two years ago. There were 1264 homes, more than any other, valued between $60,000 to $79,000.

In Cohasset, where there were no condominiums listed in the 1980 census, there were two homes valued at less than $10,000. The greatest number of homes, 804, were valued between $50,000 to $99,999. There were 78 owner-occupied homes in town valued at more than $200,000 two years ago.

Another study summarized the general characteristics of the towns in 1980. In Cohasset, there was a 3.2 percent increase in the population from 1970 to 1980. From that total, 28.2 percent were under 18 years. The majority, 59.7 percent, were 18 to 64 years, and 12 percent of the 7,174 population were over 65 years old. The median age for a person living in Cohasset was 34 years in 1980.

In the same year, 61.5 percent of males who were 15 years and older, were married. In comparison, 56.2 percent of all women 15 years and older were married.

In Scituate, there was a 2 percent increase in the general population from 1970 to 1980. From that total, 30.3 percent were under 18 years old, 59.3 percent were 18 to 64 years old and 10.5 percent were 65 years and older. The average age for a person residing in Scituate in 1980 was 31.9 years. In that year, 61.1 percent of the male population who were 15 years and older, were married. In that same category, 56.14 percent were female and married.

There were 276 females over 75 years old in 1980. Although there were 8 black persons and 11 Spanish persons, they were not computed into further population statistics.

A summary of nationalities within Cohasset concluded there were 7118 whites, eight black persons, 11 American Indians, four Chinese, one Filipino, three Koreans, five Asian Indians, and 24 "others." The other category, according to the census, includes Asian and Pacific Islander groups such as Cambodian, Laotian, Pakistani, Figi Islander, etc.

Approximately 11 percent of the 18 years and older population in Cohasset spoke a language other than English in their home. More than 1600 persons were enrolled in a kindergarten, elementary or high school in 1980 in Cohasset. And from a total of 5547 persons 16 years and older, 3465 were employed (other than the military). Approximately four percent of that population was unemployed. About 80 percent of workers used a car, truck or van to get to work, and 16 percent utilized a carpool.

In Scituate, about 6 percent of the 18 years and older population spoke another language in the home. And 4526 persons were enrolled in a kindergarten, elementary or high school program. There were 8500 persons in the civilian labor force, from a total of 12,876 persons older than 16 years.

About four percent of that population was unemployed. About 88 percent of the civilian work force used a car, truck or van to get to work, and about 20 percent carpooled.

The median income for the Cohasset household in 1979 was $27,542. In that same study it was concluded that 246 persons or 3.5 percent of the population were earning less than the poverty level. Eighteen of those persons were 65 years or older. In addition, there were 101 children under 18 years old in families earning less than the poverty level.

Household hints not from Heloise but from Lois

By Lois Martin

"There are a few things that have to be done," she said from within her neat red corduroy jumper. "The Bed Has to be made."

I thought about what the lovely young woman had said and was grateful I was not required to respond. Because I would have said," "Why?"

Oh, don't get me wrong. I like a neat bed myself... I kick the covers off in an orderly manner. There was a time The Bed had to be made. I think it was when Sputnik went up.

And since then my housekeeping mores have come under alteration, like my skirts.

PATCHES

It took a lot to get out of the habit of turning around once my bare feet hit the floor and efficiently making the bed, folding down that top sheet and placing the pillow properly on the fold of the bedspread. My training as a chambermaid at 15 was not easily undone.

But I did it. My children have taught me a lot. I figure I might get mono and need to crawl in quickly. And I'd grown innured to the luxury of a made bed. I didn't appreciate it like a decent person should. So now when I make it up clean (I'm a sucker for clean sheets) I am no longer a jaded spoiled American. I'm a person who is overcome with gratitude, someone who has been given additional reason for a moment of thanks. It makes you a better person to have an unmade bed.

And I've adapted in other ways. A man called me up several months ago. He was, he said with zeal, anxious to let me be the first one for whom he'd demonstrate his line of housecleaning products.

"Do you like watching women sob?" I asked. The sadist was nonplussed. He didn't understand. I explained to him that I was not physically or emotionally able to handle such a demonstration. I could get a note from my doctor, I told him.

See, ever since my dust cloth broke during the Blizzard of '78, I've been waiting for it to heal so I can organize the whole job at once. Fabrics are slow healing. Fortunately I'm a very patient person.

And I've given my family guidelines of things that upset me. I've added lilt to the ground rules by saying I'm too shy to mate socks. Barefooted men don't laugh at that line.

My mother once told me during a visit here that she wished she had time to do something about my cupboards. I set up a schedule for her day in order to accommodate several hours for cupboard rejuvenation. But the truth is personally I don't allow myself to clean those.

Once I notice that the spilled powdered sugar has been overrun by the cinnamon or salt or baking soda, I know I need to get more powdered sugar, right? So you don't just charge around in your cupboards messing up your grocery list.

'Course I'll never give up hanging my sheets out on the line. That's a tradition in my family. Mine have been out there since just before the April 6 snowstorm. In fact one, I noticed, is still drying in Furnace Brook Watershed where the wondrous natural elements took it. I love nature.

Last weekend I went up to the attic, a lot, trundling those seasonal clothes up and down the stairs, whomping my little head on the rafters in an effort to get sweaters I wish had been stolen. As if that weren't enough I had a go at the cellar, endearing spider ranch that it is. So it's not like I don't apply the old elbow grease like other home-makers. It's rather that we don't make home like we used to.

The Corners, for example. When was the last time you got The Corners? I don't want to get them any more. So, for my part, I live in a well-rounded house. There isn't time for everything, so I gave up a few chores, like Burping Tupperware, polishing copper bottoms, removing lint from the lint brush.

And as for that room that no one admits to using, The Bathroom. I'm firm and innovative. Signs with 'please' don't work. And nobody cleans out a tub for either a soft-spoken woman or one with a temper tantrum. You gotta get cute. "Notice: nobody on this property makes wigs for a living..." True, that doesn't address the blue/green tinge within the cleaning basin. But stencilling's an artful means with which to make use of that.

And I'll be darned if I'll worry about redoing The Ceilings. True, Brian may have grown up and away. He may live in California and bear an affection for a young woman whose mother I can't wait to meet.

But I've still got the peanut butter that stuck to the living room ceiling when he threw it at his brother. And nobody fools around with my memories.

latest crisis. Studds said he supported a harsh rebuke to Israel. He said Reagan acted with balance and wisdom in his decision to send the Marines to Beirut and supported delicate negotiations between the countries.

Conway agreed the president showed great courage in his latest attempt to restore peace to the mideast and said the final solution would be to carve out a homeland for Palestine.

Studds said the ERA is one of the most important questions facing the nation, but he termed it "unfortunate that it should still be a matter of debate. How do we argue that equal rights should be granted to all citizens of this nation?" he asked. Conway challenged whether it should be necessary to amend the Constitution in order to grant equal rights to all. He is an advocate of equal rights, illustrating that 81 percent of the employees in his company are women.

Studds met with loud, extended applause when he listed past accomplishments during his ten years as a U.S. Congressman.

Among his feats during that tenure were creation of a 200-mile fishing limit, a 20 percent increase in the Coast Guard budget, stricter oil drilling regulations, a comprehensive Coastal Zone Management program, and establishing himself as a pioneer in the open town meeting forum. "It has been an enormous privilege to serve you," he concluded.

Conway summarized his campaign as one waged by an experienced businessman who has fought the economic woes and survived. "I am strong to the right of center for the family and job issues," he said.

The important issues in this campaign, he said, are to end the waste in federal spending, control military spending, work out a longterm solution of the entitlement program, fight the economic battle, support family issues and support the president in his stand on the nuclear weapons issue.

Murray-Stouffer

In the race for Third Plymouth district representative, candidate Caroline Stouffer of Hingham discussed the issues with her opponent, incumbent Republican Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray of Cohasset.

Murray summarized her political philosophy, "I use politics for the people." The Cohasset native is seeking her fourth term in the state House of Representatives, and is entering her second contest against Stouffer for the congressional seat.

"My basic responsibility as a representative, is to know where the people in my district are coming from," she said. "I am against all state mandated programs. I am for the taxpayers voting on referendum issues on the ballot — that is so the people can let the legislators know where they stand."

Stouffer said she is again challenging the incumbent because "this district needs a person who will take a leadership role, someone who has a grasp of the important issues and is an articulate spokesperson. I am that person. This office can be used for the benefit of the district, or in a ceremonious way as it has been for the last four years."

Both candidates said they were against proposed casino gambling in their district. Stouffer said she was "utterly opposed to state aid for non public schools," although Murray said she would like to see the issue placed on the ballot. Murray would like to see the issue left to the individual school committees rather than creating another state-mandated program.

Both opponents favored the bottle bill.

Stouffer concluded her remarks by saying she would "take a leadership role in the legislature." "Those who have political courage make a decision in the right place at the right time. It is an evasion for this legislator to decide every issue on a referendum."A staunch supporter of Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael Dukakis, Stouffer said she would work with that governor for the betterment of the district.

Murray, a veteran of more than 3000 rollcalls in the legislature, said she has not campaigned for any gubernatorial candidate "because I have my own race to pay attention to. You can get into trouble that way (campaigning for other candidates)."

The representative said she was instrumental in finding sources of money to repair the Nantasket Beach area after the 1978 disaster. She found money through the M.D.C. for reconstruction of Pemberton Pier. She helped get grants to rebuild the Hingham Armory, and "I had a hand in the Lincoln Street project in Hingham" — which, she said, "will be very exciting for Hingham."

Barry-McKinnon

The final contest, between Norfolk County Representative Allan McKinnon and challenger Tom Barry of Duxbury, turned heated at various intervals during the debate. Barry said he was against all new taxes, but he would work with any administration to "clear up the transportation mess and provide an adequate transportation system" to the area.

Barry called his opponent's creation of the South Shore Transportation a "political ploy to embarrass King" and a cruel hoax. Barry said during the Dukakis administration, the state had an anti-business image. In order to attract business back, more things must be done to cut taxes. An amendment to allow the government to tax businesses is an incorrect method, he said, which simply "pits people against people." Barry said he supported the first Constititutional question as a referendum issue in November. He said the question should be decided by the people as a Constitutional amendment, not by the legislature.

He admitted the disposal of nuclear waste is a serious issue, and said the communities which agree to a site should be compensated.

Residing near the Pilgrim nuclear station, he has become concerned with possible regulation and code violations. Barry said he represented a change from the incumbent.

He favored working with a coalition from both parties to develop long-range plans to facilitate transportation in the South Shore. He opposed the incumbent's defiant tactic of voting for a legislative payraise and what the Mariner termed "hack politics" when McKinnon was accused of mailing a press release asking Plymouth County Sheriff Peter Flynn to step down, while serving as Gov. Edward King's campaign manager.

McKinnon was district chairman for King's challenger in the recent primary, former Gov. Michael Dukakis.

Barry said he and lame duck governor Ed King are in fundamental agreement on the issues.

Incumbent McKinnon retaliated by stating that in the past 12 years, "there are not many votes I would like to take back." He urged voters to "beware of the easy answers — they are all tough answers."

He said it was the right of the legislature to determine where nuclear waste disposal sites should be located, although the local residents must have some impact and control over the site.

He said environmental issues such as acid rain must be addressed on a national, state and local basis and with the declining resources in this state, the number one resource remains our youth and their education.

He is opposed to state aid to private schools. "I can't think of anything more we need to protect than public education. In Massachusetts we don't have any resources such as coal or oil. We must depend on our human resources."

McKinnon said he was the first to put money in the state budget for a commuter boat and he advocates increased bus service to the South Shore. He promised to stay on top of the Plymouth and Brockton Bus Co. service "until it works right."

By Patricia Anne Walsh

Cohasset School Business Manager John Raftery was appointed by the Massachusetts State Board of Education to the position of Director of the Bureau of Nutrition Education and School Food Services. Over the business office coffeepot, Raftery recently talked about his new job and admits the position will offer an increase over his present renumeration of $33,488 plus $600 travel allowance per year. Additionally, he smiles, "The state will pay 90 percent (versus Cohasset's) 50 percent of the Blue Cross."

When he saw the job specifications Raftery was surprised at how easily he could fulfill the requirements. The state had four prerequisites: experience in school business administration, designing large scale computer information systems, in food service, and experience in serving on statewide committees.

The duties of the new position, he laughed, "do not include that I give up smoking," as he lit another cigarette. They do include supervision of school lunch programs for the state, elderly feeding, nutrition education including in-service programs for teachers and federal grant administration. He finds the prospect of his new job "very challenging."

Raftery, a widower with five children, lives on Holbrook Avenue in Hull, where he has been a school committee member for 18 years, seven of which he has served as chairman. After graduating from Boston College High School, he received his B.A. from Holy Cross College. He has had additional schooling in the IBM Systems Science Institute and American Management Association. He spent 11 years in meat sales and service to the food industry, and for 12 years was coordinator of data processing for John Hancock Insurance Co.

Raftery's friend Alfred Odermatt recalls that eight years ago when Cohasset was seeking a business manager, he felt that "this man with a tremendous background in the Hull Schools and in state and national school related offices should be a candidate." Odermatt went to then superintendent Gray, and asked him to consider his co-worker at Hancock among the finalists.

Raftery is a director of the Hull Medical Center; on the Board of Corporators of the Hingham Institution for Savings; a supervising audit committeeman for the Hingham Employees Credit Union; a member of St. Mary's Parish Council; on the Board of Drectors of the South Shore Rehabilitation Center in North Quincy and a member of their human rights committee; and MIAA Tournament Facilities Committeeman. He also serves on the Mass. Association of School Business Officials Legal Assistance Committee, is a life member and past president of the Massachusetts Association of School Committees; past president of the National School Boards Association for 13 northeastern states; and was recently appointed by Governor King to the Educational Block Grant Advisory Committee.

In the middle of a discussion about his job in Cohasset, which he described as "coming to work, never knowing what I am going to face that day," the telephone rang. "Please take this one," his secretary exclaimed, "it is an emergency." Janet Figuereido was on the telephone and had a broken down bus filled with athletes at the Sagamore Bridge on their way to Cape Cod.

School committee member Martha Gjesteby praised Raftery's tenure as acting superintendent of schools in the summer of 1981. She said she was particularly pleased with Raftery's ability to recruit and handle personnel.

School Superintendent Eugene Crowell claimed Raftery had "saved thousands of taxpayer dollars in these times of economic hardship. His integrity, his many abilities and talents, and his good nature will be sorely missed by us all."

Raftery leaves his post at the business office Oct. 29.

from the kitchen

By Joan Pinkham

When starting out on an errand, I can very easily become waylaid by the sight of a "Garage Sale" sign tacked to a roadside pole or tree. I always make tracks for the book table, hoping to find an old cookbook. "Heloise's Kitchen Hints" is my latest find. Though only published 20 years ago, it seems quaint to read of housewives being urged to remember that "you, the homemaker, are the backbone of the world: chef, nurse, court of appeals, purchasing agent, decorator and hostess. The mistress of a home is lucky!" Now and then Heloise does come up with some good ideas, such as the one for using a tea caddy (the kind on a chain) when making soups. Fill with your spices and when the soup is done, the flavors will remain, but will be free of bayleaves, garlic buds, etc...Then, she suggests when baking, line up the ingredients in a row on the counter, remove the covers and replace the cover each time you use the jar and in this way you'll know you didn't leave anything out...the author says when she makes spaghetti sauce, she puts it in the oven at 250 degrees instead of simmering on top of the stove. Libby Long was using up her garden tomatoes the other day and called to say she skims off the top inch or two of watery liquid on top of her simmering sauce, makes them into ice cubes to be used later. She peels her tomatoes and cuts them into chunks, adds onion, garlic, salt, 2 tsp. sugar, oregano, basil and red pepper to about two dozen tomatoes. Simmer for several hours, stirring occasionally and place in one quarter freezer containers to be served some blustery February day.

When I see a flimsy piece of cardboard with directions to a garage sale just scribbled on, I feel pretty sure that at the end of the trail there will merely be a jumble of junk detoured on its way to the dump. Kate O'Malley Ifstrom has an article in the Oct. 5 issue of "Family Circle" telling how to have a successful garage sale. "Signs! Fliers! Banners! That's how you build enthusiasm for your upcoming sale. The lettering needn't be perfect, but it should be large and an artistic flourish or two helps catch the eye. A simple 'happy face' works wonders." She suggests free drinks and munchies, but warns against setting up a sidewalk cafe, for you want people to shop, not sit. A table set up with coffee, cookies and Kool-Aid marked "Free, Help Yourself" encourages lingering, says this author known as "America's garage-sale guru." I'd like to linger at the home of Adelaide Clark when she serves this dessert which she calls "out of this world" and has been serving her family and guests since she was married in 1926. It's called

GINGERBREAD

1/2 c. Spry
1/2 tsp. Salt
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. ginger
1/4 tsp. nutmeg
1/8 tsp. cloves
1/2 c. sugar
1 egg, unbeaten
1 c. molasses
2½ c. sifted flour
1/2 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. soda
1 c. boiling water

Blend Spry, salt and spices. Add sugar gradually and cream well. Add egg and beat well. Add molasses and blend. Sift flour with baking powder and soda three times. Add to creamed mixture, blending well. Add boiling water and beat until smooth. Grease 10x10x2 pan and bake at 350 degrees for 50 min. or until done.

Other "Hints from Heloise" include adding a drop of food coloring to the water when hard-boiling eggs, then you'll know enough not to reach for them when getting ready to fry an egg for breakfast. This clever gal bakes her breakfast eggs in muffin tins for a crowd. Remove the crust from as many slices of bread as you need to serve. Butter both sides of bread and fit into tins. Break eggs into these bread cups and salt lightly. Cover the muffin tin loosely with aluminum foil and bake. When done, your egg is already on toast...When breaking eggs for a batter, break one at a time into a cup instead of into the bowl. That way, if one is a "rotten" egg, you have not ruined them all. Or — separate them this way so that if one breaks, you don't have a yolk in with your whites.

ECONOMIZE WITH CLASS.

German engineering makes Jetta Diesel America's best mileage luxury sport sedan.

At a time when other car makers are asking you to shrink your standard of driving, Volkswagen is asking you to do neither. Jetta Diesel gives you a luxurious interior for four. Plus a trunk in back that holds six good size suitcases.

And with an EPA estimated 43 mpg and 59 mpg highway estimate, no other luxury car even comes close. (Use "estimated mpg" for comparison. Mileage varies with speed, trip length, weather. Actual highway mileage will probably be less.)

Meet Helen Barrow: the lady is a Democrat

By Tanna Kasperowicz

Kennedy.
Dukakis.
Studds.
McKinnon.
Stouffer.
Helen Barrow is a down-the-line Democrat.
Straight ticket.

She is repulsed by middle-of-the roader Democrats who sometimes support a Republican. She does not even consider them to be real Democrats. She has never understood Independents.

However, in Town elections she has been known to support and even campaign for an "honest" Republican or two.

If the only requirement for fire chief was that the candidate knew the streets, lanes and unaccepted byways of the Town, then Helen would get the job hands down. She knows the streets of Cohasset like no fireman ever knew them in a fire truck. She's been walking them for years.

In Cohasset, Helen's a political boss. A one-woman political avalanche. And many a Democratic state-wide office-holder owes his or her election to her.

She was with many of them in their infancies.

Twenty years ago when Mike Dukakis, seeking his first state-wide office, was looking for an audience to listen, Helen Barrow conjured up a group of eight or 10 Democrats for him to practice on. "He'd speak before any group, no matter how small, in those days," Helen said.

In 1974 when she pulled off a 3,000 vote majority for Dukakis in Cohasset, it was like a first-grade teacher watching a former student become president, for Helen.

Even more delightful, "The Republicans were stunned," Helen said. Her friends fully credit her with the Dukakis victory that year. She walked half of the town herself. It took a number of others to match her vigor.

But Helen's not just a fair-weather friend.

When Dukakis left office in 1978 Helen met him on the steps of the state house. "There weren't many people around that day," she said, recalling that she and a friend had a sort of last supper (lunch) with Dukakis and a few inside staff that day. But she never thought it would be the last of Dukakis.

She remembers enjoying being invited to John Kennedy's inaugural ball and loves any political gathering. But she really enjoys grassroots campaigning best.

There was a time, before her eyesight started to fail, that she knew 95 percent of the people in Cohasset by sight. Now she supposes she has a pretty good handle on 45 percent of the town. Maybe she doesn't recognize them by sight anymore, but give her a voters' list and she can pinpoint within two percent accuracy, just how they voted in the last election...and the election before that, and so on.

Helen Barrow displays her "scrapbook" of Democratic signs, veterans all, of her years on the campaign trail.

What is integrity?
How can it be measured?
Is it important to you to have integrity in public officials?

In the September Primary, an effort was made to have a write-in vote on the Democratic ballot for the Republican incumbent.

What is troubling is the statement by the incumbent that she did not sanction it and did not herself participate in the effort.

When observers pointed out later that she did participate actively, along with her legislative aide, she tried to pass it off as a joke, something done only in Cohasset.

But the truth is, she made a similar effort in both Hingham and Hull. People saw her in all three towns.

The issue is not the effort itself, something quite legal. The issue is her reaction when "caught in the act".

Integrity shows, not only in the big issues, but in life's little things as well. Where does shading the truth leave off and lying begin? In my opinion, my opponent has not been forthright about her actions.

We want our public officials to be completely honest. We hope you do, too.

If you concur that integrity is important, we hope you will show that support by voting November 2 . . .

The lady is a Democrat ...

She can also tell you who somebody's related to, how many cousins, aunties and uncles agree with them politically. Her knowledge is all in her head. Before somebody announces their candidacy for anything in Cohasset, they're likely to call Helen to see what's in the cards. And she pretty much tells them.

A friend said of Helen: "Some women throw themselves at politicians, but in Helen's case, politicians throw themselves at Helen."

When Gerry Studds made his first, fledgling speech in Hanover as a U.S. House Rep. candidate, Helen was there. She remembers he talked with his hands and it was very distracting.

"The first time he made a speech he was terrible. Now you can shut your eyes and listen to him...he's just like a Kennedy." She also encouraged him in those early years to take a six-week crash course in Portuguese, so he could speak to his Fall River and Cape Cod fisherman constituency in the language of their native land. He bowled them over.

Helen was born in the early 1920's. The daughter of Alberta M. and Joseph M. Barrow, a Cohasset native and a Portuguese immigrant, respectively.

When she was a youngster her mother and father were two of perhaps 10 Democrats in town. In those days it was dangerous to be a Democrat. Almost as awful as being a Moonie.

"When they called off your name and party in those days Republican callers would say 'Democrat' in high, shrill voices." Democrats did not often get appointed to town committees; nor did they win very many elections in Cohasset. During the Depression they were last in line for non-existent jobs.

She isn't positive, but she thinks Selectman Rocco Laugelle is the first ever Democrat to have been elected a selectman in the town...the first in 216 (when he was elected) years. However, there have been a sprinkling of Democrats over the years who have served on the school committee. But not many.

Having been raised when it was "rough" to be a Democrat probably helped to shape Helen into a pretty tough lady politically. Like her mother, who ran for school committee once and lost, Helen waged a few personal campaigns on behalf of Helen Barrow, candidate. But she always willingly, unlike those who get a taste of politics from the other side, returned to her role of campaigner on someone else's behalf.

Luckily for Democratic hopefuls, then and now, the odds never got Helen down. Her first campaign was on behalf of Fred Jenkins who wanted to be highway surveyor in 1938. Still a high school girl, Helen didn't pull that first one off for Jenkins. "Later, Jenkins tried again, but he didn't get anywhere," she said. But then Helen was just learning the political ropes.

After a brief venture into campaigning, Helen entered the Second World War as a Navy Wave. She served a two-year tour of duty at a supply depot in McKennicsberg, Pa. She doesn't remember anything remarkable about McKennicsberg.

After her tour, she returned to Cohasset and quietly continued on campaigning and checking voters' lists for such people as former selectman Tom Churchill, who won by 18 votes; Bill Poland, who waged a successful school committee campaign. And in 1956 she helped Louis Bailey win an office.

Finally, her role as campaigner paid off when in the seventies she was the only woman elected to the nine-member charter commission which deliberated for a three-year period, failing twice in its attempt to get a charter passed by the Town. In that charter election she was the third highest vote-getter.

She also waged a campaign for State Committeewoman, but lost out to a Weymouth candidate. The former two campaigns were the only ones Helen ever waged on her own behalf.

Nevertheless, she's had not a few successes.

A long-time member of the Democratic Town Committee, she was its chairman when the committee decided to tackle the town clerk and selectmen over their method of picking election workers.

Helen sternly quoted the law to selectmen which in so many words stated that town committees had the right to provide selectmen with a list of Democrats from which selectmen had to choose election workers.

Selectmen and the town clerk said they found the entire issue to be "insulting," but a judge quickly put the issue to bed when he ordered selectmen and the town clerk to obey the law and do as Helen said.

(Just a note here, unlike most other suits, a suit against an election process is heard in the courts, immediately).

"We also have the right to pick a registrar, but we haven't exercised that right yet," Helen warned.

In 1965 Helen and some other Cohasset Democrat women started a spin-off group of the South Shore Democratic Women called "Suburban Democratic Woman." She felt the former group was a little too social for her tastes, although it did sell American flags to benefit students of a retarded school in Weymouth. Helen approved of that activity. Neither group exists any longer.

Helen worked at Cohasset Savings Bank as a teller for 22 years, up until she had a stroke in 1978. The stroke may have forced an early retirement, but it didn't stop her from hopping right back on the campaign trail after three months of therapy. And a lot of Democrats prayed hard for her recovery.

Lincoln wants protection

Town Counsel J. Blake Thaxter Jr., was expected to tell selectmen this week if some kind of job protection can be provided for acting Fire Chief Roger Lincoln , if Lincoln accepts the full-time chief's appointment.

Lincoln now has Civil Service protection as a captain and told selectmen last week he would not take the chief's job unless he is guaranteed a permanent job in the department.

Lincoln is the local finalist in the search for a fire chief. Selectmen were to decide Tuesday night between Lincoln and Hartford Lt. Martin Dooley.

Lincoln said he will only serve as a Cohasset firefighter and will not be looking for a future job with another community's fire department.

However, he wants a guarantee that he still would have another position in the department if a future board of selectmen didn't renew his contract.

Lincoln now has Civil Service protection as a captain and is allowed up to two years leave of absence as a job protection.

The main question selectmen must answer, said Executive Secretary Arthur Clark, is "Can you bind a future board to honor such an agreement?"

Robert Sturdy of 270 Jerusalem Road said Lincoln should understand the chief must separate himself "from one of the boys. You can't have your cake and eat it too."

He said once an applicant accepts the position he inherits the honor and the salary but also acknowledges the chief's position is a management one and there are risks involved such as job security.

"You can't be one of the boys and be a leader," he said.

Selectman Mary Jane McArthur agreed with Sturdy and added, "If you want the job, you take the risks."

Lincoln said he has the same sentiments as the ones he told selectmen in the interview process. "I have served 13½ years in Cohasset and have a spotless record and I would like to put in another 20 years but I don't feel I can accept the position without protection."

Dooley isn't under Civil Service rules. Selectmen said during Dooley's interview they received indications that he would sever ties with the Hartford Fire Department to serve as a Cohasset Fire Chief.

But some Cohasset firefighters who attended last week's selectmen's meeting doubted Dooley would leave Hartford without guaranteeing himself a position to fall back on.

Another question to be considered by Thaxter is if voters should decide to put the fire chief's position back into Civil Service rules, would it affect the current fire chief?

Club to present 'Scenes From American Life'

By David Wadsworth

The Cohasset Dramatic Club's 1982 Fall production will be playwright A.R. Gurney Jr.'s, "Scenes From American Life," a modern social commentary.

Directing the play is Ellen Kelly of Weymouth, a teacher of Dramatics at the South Shore Conservatory of Hingham.

The Production Manager is Jane A. Marshall and the scene designer is Scott Ketcham, both of Cohasset.

"Scenes From American Life" is a series of fast-moving vignettes or scenarios depicting numerous characters in characteristically American experiences.

The setting is Buffalo, New York, and the time span encompassed by the series of vignettes extends from the Depression years of the 1930's up through the present and into a hypothetical version of the near future.

The play itself is in two acts having a total of 36 different vignettes. Some of the short scenarios blend into succeeding ones; in a few cases quick "blackouts" punctuate the action on stage.

There is a large cast for the Cohasset production, actors and actresses often play different roles in succeeding vignettes.

Scenes From American Life has a wide range of diverse and interesting characters, some of which are: a policeman, a clergyman, a tennis referee, a psychotherapist and her entire encounter group, several members of a boys' choir, an Irish governess and a German dancing master complete with his slightly unruly class.

These and other roles will be played by a company made up of Dramatic Club veterans and newcomers. In writing Scenes From American Life, playwright Gurney has ranged from the disturbingly serious to the near frivolous, and offers a darkly forbidding vision of the years ahead. Created during the height of the Vietnam crisis, the play presents a possible future containing continued social unrest and hinting at the monolithic government created to combat it. Gurney may have erred in his prediction for the future, but the warning is clear and remains valid.

Scenes From American Life had its world premier in Buffalo on Oct. 27, 1970 under Director Warren Enters. It then opened at Lincoln Center "Off Broadway" on March 25, 1971 for a run of 30 performances.

The Cohasset production will be at the Town Hall on Thursday through Saturday, Nov. 11 to 13.

The cast of characters are in rehearsal, but more behind-the-scenes production workers are needed and will be welcome.

If you would like to participate in Community Theater at its best, drop a card in the mail to the Club at P.O. Box 225, Cohasset, or call Betty Miessner, this year's president, at 545-0942.

Scenes From American Life is the first of three productions scheduled by the Dramatic Club in its 62nd continuous year.

It takes money to buy a money plant. Mrs. Kay Gottesman antes up for Denise Desmond, who collects for the Community Garden Club of Cohasset at last week's Farmers Market.

Bluefish Bonanza — Here's a good sample of prolific fall fishing in local waters. Bluefish, lots of them at between 15-20 pounds were taken from the shore off Hingham Harbor last week by Mariner Photographer Greg Derr (L) and Dennis Kowal of Cohasset. Fall fishing has about peaked, but there are still buckets of blues and bass out there for the taking.

Chances will be sold for $1 and the winner of the tickets will be drawn at the conclusion of the evening. Proceeds will go toward the theatre residency at the Deer Hill and Osgood Schools.

OSGOOD AND DEER HILL

The Deer Hill and Joseph Osgood Schools, together with the PSO, have submitted a proposal for a SECOND YEAR RESIDENCY PROGRAM with the Artists Foundation of Boston. The proposal is for a seven week residency with the Just Around The Corner Company, a participatory theatre group with considerable experience with elementary students. Funding for this year's residency will come from the Artists Foundation, Dept. of Education block grant funds, and the PSO.

The program will take place in Jan.-Feb. with classroom workshops (three per Osgood class and two per Deer Hill class), teachers workshops, a performance at each school by the Company of their play, "Orpheus," (which includes workshop and audience participation) and a week's residency at each school by the company actors in rehearsal for a new theatre work. In addition, there will be core group work at Deer Hill, culminating with a performance, including participation by other classes in the school.

Many parents and teachers have reviewed the work of this group and are very enthusiastic about the possibility of their coming to Cohasset.

The enrichment program at Deer Hill

By Mike Berger

The enrichment program at the Deer Hill School means more than helping certain gifted and talented students.

Dorothy Wondolowski, program coordinator, said the program can involve a whole school population, a particular group classroom or a whole grade.

School wide assemblies held this year under the enrichment program included how an Olympic athlete put his life together after losing a limb, fire safety and information about the high school sports program.

Originally the program was entitled the Pupil Enrichment Program and was geared to specify the needs of the gifted and talented students.

But Wondolowski is stressing this year the enrichment curriculum is broad and the curriculum involves the entire school population at Deer Hill School with three levels of activities.

Type I activities are called "general exploration activities" such as assemblies. Type II activities include Group Training and Type III activities are geared for individuals or small groups who investigate "real problems."

Wondolowski said Type I activities involve the fourth, fifth and sixth graders and as many as 16 assemblies are planned for this year. Wondolowski said the assemblies could vary from fire and police safety to meeting artists and authors.

"It's a one-time exposure to an event, a situation or an occupation, not normally covered in the curriculum. It could be a film, a guest speaker or a field trip. The program's purpose is to stimulate a student's interest in a subject."

Type II is a specific Pupil Enrichment Program where students voluntarily spend 1½ hours outside of the classroom towards work in an enrichment program. Students work in groups and develop specific skills such as research, leadership, emotional development or the Outdoor School in the fifth grade.

The amount of students depends on the student's and teachers' interests.

Group II activities focus on problem solving, processing information from "raw material," how to lead children in sports activities, investigative skills such as archeological digs or courses on computers, solar energy, book editing and poetry.

Students entering this program are invited to participate after a screening process. But students and parents must understand the program's rules before enrolling in the program.

Type III activities are new this year and gives PEP students the chance to pursue subjects of personal interest. "It gives students an opportunity to delve in a subject, solve a problem and share answers with a group of adults. This program means students may spend more than 1½ hours outside the regular classroom.

"It's the ultimate learning experience. They are learning because they want to learn," Wondolowski said.

In the first assembly students viewed a movie about an Olympic athlete who lost a limb but overcame his disability and managed to put his life back together. This movie was followed with teacher discussions about the movie's messages.

A Sept. 23 assembly focused on the importance of high school sports and what students could look forward to when they entered the high school and to develop school and town spirit, Wondolowski said. Team captains gave a description about their team and an outlook on the season.

Last week's assembly was directed by the sixth grade. A student acted as a master of ceremonies and students had to design a fire safety problem, decide where to place props, where to seat students and how long the program would last.

Jacket sale begins

The Cohasset Boosters Club announces that the three-season, water-repellent jacket will be sold for $25 at the Deer Hill School Open House on Oct. 14 and at the High School Open House on Oct. 20. Also available will be "Cohasset" sweater for $15.

Oct. 21 will be the last chance to order a sweater (delivery in time for Christmas) as current sizes are going fast and no more will be available when they are all gone.

Orders will be taken for sizes needed and a small deposit is required. Call 383-0292 anytime before Oct. 21 to order for information.

PSO yard sale Oct. 23

PSO is a tax exempt organization, and all donations are tax deductible.

'This thing is going to change this whole town'

The cable effect in Cohasset

Library trustees listened to a presentation of what local programming will be like when cable television comes to Cohasset. And in the words of trustee Sheila Evans, "this thing is going to change this whole town."

Representatives of American Cablesystems, one of the four companies vying for the town's cable license, made a brief presentation to the trustees on Monday night. In about one hour, the spokesmen crammed in the complicated technological opportunities available through cable television.

American Cablesystems approached librarian Richard E. Hayes with the idea of presenting an overview to the trustees. It was the company's intention to ascertain what local programming needs are in Cohasset. And the trustees wanted some input as to their future utilization of the service.

Although all cable companies provide each town with capabilities for local origination productions, American Cablesystems spokesman, Nancy Bicknell, said there would be intense competition to offer the most extensive assortment of programming.

The cable companies would provide the camera and television production training to members of the community, Bicknell said. The development of ideas for local productions would be left to the residents within the community.

After viewing a sample video tape of local origination programming in other communities, the trustees found the service could be used by many residents and town departments for a variety of productions. Local recreation programs, news events, town meetings, elections and school sports activities were among the events televised by the cable network.

Futuristic innovations such as computer hook-ups between the individual homes and a central computer base is possible through the television service. One program would allow a computer service within the town library via the cable television setup.

Bicknell said the local programs would be produced by a volunteer staff within the community. They would be trained by the cable company, but the actual work would be performed by the residents. Ideas for local productions are limited only by the community's imagination, she noted.

Differences between companies may include the residents' ability to handle the equipment. If companies do not allow residents to actually handle the camera equipment, there would be a direct reduction in the amount of local programming, she said.

Most companies would offer the town an institu-

Conway-Studds square off Sunday

The League of Women Voters will sponsor a major congressional debate between Jack Conway and Gerry Studds Sunday, Oct. 24 from 2-4 p.m. at the Furnace Brook School in Marshfield (Rte. 139).

The afternoon is billed as an in depth debate of the issues followed by audience participation in the form of written questions. Margaret Bliss, president of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, will serve as moderator. A "Meet the Candidates" coffee will follow the debate.

In addition to receiving written questions from the audience, the candidates will be questioned by a three-member panel made up of a league member and two members of the press.

Written questions should be submitted in advance to: the League of Women Voters, Box 1073, Plymouth, Ma 02360 or to the League of Women Voters, Box 1412, Duxbury, Ma. 02332. For further information, call Lou Levin at 834-4583 or Mary Ott at 934-0498. The debate is being co-sponsored by the Duxbury-Marshfield & Plymouth-Kingston Leagues of Women Voters.

At the Deer Hill School, the Bottle Bill wins big

By Tanna Kasperowicz

Deer Hill students had their own ballot on the controversial bottle bill yesterday. At this writing, it was uncertain whether the Mariner would be able to publish the results of that referendum vote for this week's story.

The larger story is, of course, not the results of the vote, but the degree of enthusiasm which students displayed in the process of "being political" over this particular issue.

The catalysts for the campaign were: Larry Schultz, 6th Grade teacher, and Mrs. Joann Magoun, 5th Grade teacher. Both teachers decided to involve the joint homeroom classes they have one period a day in an issue close to students' hearts — the bottle bill.

It seemed to have all things going for it...namely the students could make a few dollars from it, should it pass.

Wisely, the teachers assigned positions on the issue. No one got to choose what side they would be defending. And that made it even more difficult for quite a few students.

When the Mariner visited these classes last week students were involved in a flourish of campaign activity... finishing up posters which they will display in the hallways of Deer Hill, hoping to influence Deer Hill students before the Tuesday ballot... posters which may find their way into the community before the Nov. 2 election. (We hope so.)

Accordingly, election counters were being selected, precinct voting was being discussed and a listing of students' names from the office were being ordered in order that checkers could be sure that no student voted more than once on the issue. Precinct voting was also being explained. And no absentee voting would be permitted.

Preparing for yesterday's debate were the following students: Melissa Nothnagle, 6th Grade and David Zaloga, 5th Grade, opponents of the bottle bill. And Proponent Letitia Linsley, 6th Grader. Her co-debator, Donald Caffrey, 5th Grade, was out on sick leave.

We caught up with Caffrey later in the week. Caffrey said when he and Letitia gave a tryout presentation/debate before their respective homerooms, it wasn't too difficult. "Nothing out of the ordinary." But he was beginning to get a little worried about debating in front of the entire Deer Hill School.

Nothnagle is a secret bottle bill supporter and she said because of that, she found her position against the bottle bill a little difficult to defend. But last

State energy phone

The state energy phone is back in service.

The toll-free Energy Phone (1-800-632-6026) will be answered Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

State Energy Secretary Margaret N. St. Clair said, "People call on everything from installation of solar heating systems to inexpensive rope caulking for doors and windows."

If the Energy Phone operators don't have the answer to a question, they will take a name and number and return the call.

The Country Crafters announce the following as winners of the door prizes at their September show: 1. Broide of Braintree, Carol Combs of Norwell and Helen Cadigan of Quincy.

The crafters appreciate the many people who attended and helped make it such a success. The next shows will be in Cohasset on Oct. 16 and 17 and at the Braintree National Guard Armory on Nov. 13 and 14.

Early release

Thursday, Oct. 21 will be an early release day in the Cohasset Public Schools. There will be no afternoon kindergarten sessions and other students will be dismissed according to the following schedule:

Buses will depart Junior/Senior High School at 12:20 p.m.; Deer Hill School, 12:40 p.m.; and Joseph Osgood School, 1 p.m. Lunch will be served in all of the schools. This early release day has been authorized by the Cohasset School Committee in order to allow staff members at the three schools to take part in Curriculum Update Workshops.

No state science fair

In the past five years 131 different Massachusetts schools have participated in the Massachusetts State Science Fair competition.

With the exception of Michael Gurnis of Reservoir Road, who entered the regional competition as an individual, and later ranked third in the Westinghouse Science Talent Search, for his astronomy project, Cohasset students have never been involved in the competitions, although Deer Hill Grade 6 students have a fair, which includes many science projects.

School committeeman, John Langmaid asked Science Department head Samuel Erbe to explain the reasons. Erbe explained that state competitions take a great deal of time on the part of teachers; that the CHS science classes meet only five periods a week instead of the former six periods when there was opportunity for double lab periods; that the older youngsters have many other interests; and that he posts on the bulletin board outside his office, but does not announce in the classes, the state, Westinghouse and NASA competitions.

Supt. Crowell stated: "It is better to have well established lab techniques than to spend time in Science Fairs."

Parking ticket refunds

Ten people have requested refunds on illegal $20 parking tickets issued by the town. Executive Secretary Arthur Clark, the town's parking clerk, said refunds will not be sent out until the town has received a final list of traffic tickets.

Recently Town Counsel J. Blake Thaxter determined the $20 tickets were illegal. He told selectmen under a state law approved at a special town meeting, the maximum fine allowed is $15 if a parking violation is paid within 21 days.

The illegal tickets were given at Sandy Beach, Wadleigh Park, Black Rock Beach and for parking illegally on bridges.

Drug policy gets go

The School Department's new Drug and Alcohol Abuse Guide received unanimous approval from the School Committee Monday night.

Other than a few minor changes, the new policy was approved without comment. It is expected to take effect within two weeks, after being mailed to parents of all school students.

Massachusetts can't afford more Reaganomics!

- thousands of men and women are out of work; many more live in fear of losing their jobs
- national unemployment is now over 10%
- senior citizens are threatened by loss of social security; inflation steals their savings
- many students can no longer receive aid for higher education

The Republican incumbent was a Reagan coordinator and an enthusiastic supporter of his policies . . .

. . . but his policies are crippling the economy!

Locally we need:

- continuous attention to district needs—not just in election years
- help in resolving the transportation mess on the South Shore
- leadership in pushing district projects—not a State House news clipping service

We need a Democratic State Representative who will work well with the new Democratic administration in January.

IT'S TIME FOR A CHANGE . . . . . FOR THE BETTER

Corral fence installed without appeal

By Jane Lane

A white corral fence which outlines a portion of the yard at 67 North Main St., will remain, despite the owner's violation of the town's historic district bylaw.

According to the Cohasset Common Historic District Commission, a corral erected on property owned by Nicholas Manganaro, was done in violation of the commission's bylaw. No prior approval was given by the commission, nor was any approval requested by the owner of the property.

Peter Wood, chairman of the district commission, said according to section four of the commission's bylaws, any structure or building which is defined as a shelter for persons or animals, cannot be erected without prior approval from the commission. Manganaro never applied for approval, and he erected the fence without the commission's knowledge, Wood said.

This act was in direct violation of the commission's bylaws, he added. According to commission secretary, Charles Wheelwright, Mr. Manganaro wrote a letter to the commission asking whether it would be legal to keep a horse on his property, located at 67 North Main St., within the historic district. Wheelwright responded it would be "okay," since the property is expansive and includes a barn. But he warned the owner he would have to build a corral to keep the animal on the property, and that would require approval by the commission. "I'm a little put out that he put up this fence and we have not heard anything from him," Wheelwright said.

All members agreed that fence is not unattractive, but it is the bylaw violation that disturbed them. Commission member Thomas Atkinson said the commission would probably have approved the fence, but the time for the commission to deny such a a request is before, not after, the fact.

Commission members said this is the third or fourth such bylaw violation since inception of the commission in 1978. A letter will be sent to Manganaro, informing him of the minor violation and requiring an application for the commission's approval of the fence to be obtained immediately.

CARRIAGE HOUSE ROOF

And, although no one may ever see it, the red cedar roof on the carriage house in the rear of the First Parish Church will be replaced with black asphalt shingles.

The historic district commission voted to allow the church to make the necessary emergency repairs to its leaking roof, unless abutters disapprove the venture. Church member Richard Redfield made the application to the district commission, asking approval to make the necessary alterations to the structure within the historic district.

The carriage house in the rear of the church, is hidden from view from the front of the building at 23 North Main St. But the roof, which is now covered in expensive red cedar shingles, is leaking considerably, Redfield said, and must be attended to soon.

If abutters, including the Rockland Trust Bank and the Unitarian Church, oppose the repair work, they must indicate their displeasure to the district commission within the next ten days. A public hearing would then be scheduled by the commission and a final decision would be rendered by the commission.

Arthur Lehr honored for 50 years in scouting

An Eagle Scout and former scoutmaster in Cohasset was honored Monday night for 50 years of active work in local scouting.

Arthur L. Lehr, a local businessman who became the Cohasset scoutmaster at the age of 21, was honored at a dinner by the Cohasset Rotary Club. A slide presentation of his 50 years of Cohasset scouting was shown by his son, Phil, who is also active in scouting.

Mr. Lehr was presented a plaque, commemorating his years in scouting, by Merle Brown, the present scoutmaster, and Rotary President, Peter Logan.

Lehr is still active in Cohasset scouting, working as advisor to the local explorer post.

Bottle Bill at Deer Hill...

Tuesday, both proponents and opponents were having the same difficulty; Mrs. Magoun and Mr. Schultz had just told debators they would have to expand their present one-minute deliveries to five minutes.

Zaloga said he had no particular feelings about the bottle bill until his class began examining it. Zaloga said he's campaigned before, during the primary election for Ed King. He plans to follow suit on the bottle bill at Cohasset Town Hall on Nov. 2. "We did it before and we'll do it again," he said, introducing the Mariner to his friend, David Farrag, who will help write and hand out hand-made cards advising Cohasset voters to vote down the question.

MINI-DEBATE

Linsley said she felt the strongest points her side had to offer in defense of the referendum issue was that none of the states who had passed a similar bottle bill had ever tried to repeal it. She thought seven or 12 states had a bottle bill, she was not sure. "That's a good sign," she stressed.

"Before the bottle bill, only 15-20 percent of all bottles get recycled. After passage, 90 percent will be recycled," Linsley said. She added that the bottle bill will also provide over 2,000 jobs for people in Massachusetts. Minimum returns, according to Linsley, will be five cents, with some returns going for 10 cents.

Zaloga: "Most kids think they're going to get rich, that's why they're going for it."

Nothnagle: "Some kids are collecting bottles now, getting ready for it."

Zaloga: "These kids don't realize they can collect only on specially marked bottles."

Linsley: "After the bottle bill is passed all bottles will be marked."

Zaloga: "What about gum wrappers, candy wrappers. Why not go the whole way? Recycle everything!"

Linsley: "Bottles and cans comprise over one-half of the litter in dumps. Bottles and cans are the least biodegradable and they're dangerous. You don't get a flat tire from a gum wrapper."

Nothnagle: "We haven't talked to any merchants. It's been hard getting information against the bottle bill"

Zaloga: "I talked to a lady downtown. Bottle companies don't seem to have reasons for being against it. At least they haven't supplied us with any reasons. I called one company. They didn't respond at all."

Linsley: "Proponents have a headquarters in Boston. Opponents have no headquarters."

Zaloga: "Losing money seems to be their (bottle companies) one main reason." Zaloga then made a wild claim, saying the streets aren't really dirty.

Linsley: "Mrs. (Jane) Nash said she collected 200 bottles from back of the sailing club in one afternoon."

Zaloga: "Most of those bottles are broken. Teenagers will still throw bottles away."

Nothnagle: "And stores will have to hire people to sort bottles."

Linsley: "Have you heard the recent unemployment figures?"

Zaloga: "In the end we'll (the consumer) pay more."

Former Cohasset Fire Chief Charles Pipenbrink (second from the right) was honored for his many fine years of service to Cohasset last week. Among those at the testimonial were Hingham Fire Chief Fletcher Patch (L), Scituate Chief Walter Stewart, Pipenbrink and Weymouth Chief James Conner.

Linsley: "The beverage companies say we will, but there's no evidence. More than half the money for bottling goes toward producing containers."

Nothnagle: "It's really hard for me to debate this because I'm really on the other side." Nevertheless, she made a pretty good stab: "All bottles will eventually be recycled. People who work at bottling companies will lose their jobs, they won't be making as many bottles!"

Linsley: "We don't need more people to make bottles. Over 2,000 people will be needed for trucking/warehousing/cleaning bottles."

Zaloga: "Stores will get no returns. This is why merchants are unhappy."

When the students were asked what the costs might be in warehousing for a small merchant, Linsley said:

"Trucks will be coming regularly. Big stores will have no problems."

Zaloga said he doubted that trucks would be coming regularly. He said he was most depressed with the views of a majority of the proponents: "One kid on the bus said — 'We're getting some money back, who cares?' "

Linsley: "It's really going to pass this time."

Zaloga: "I'm not sure. It will probably pass at school, but not in the real world. It's not equitable (my word)."

Linsley: "For six months up to a year recycling will be expensive. After that, no."

Zaloga said he felt confident in his and Nothnagle's ability to convince students to vote against the bottle bill. "I made up my mother's mind. I haven't really talked to my dad about it."

Because the homeroom period was ending at this time, we got a chance to talk to only one other student. Chris O'Connor, 5th Grader.

O'Connor said he was against the bottle bill because "It's going to waste time. If you really like Coke, you don't want to pay extra money for it. Paying more money for the same amount is unfair to store owners."

When O'Connor was asked if he might collect bottles and take them to the store for refunds, he said he presently had no other source of income, "No paper route, no allowance." He said he probably would return bottles.

Some of the posters which were still in process of being made were artistically rendered with simple Vote Yes, Vote No messages. Others had some real, thought-provoking messages. Here were a few which caught the Mariner's eye.

If a Car Ran Over A Broken Bottle You Can't Prevent It; You Couldn't Bring It Back.

Who Will Remember To Return The Bottles To The Store? Who's Going To Find Time?

Vote Yes. Less Mess.

It Would Be Fast If You Throw It In The Trash.

PSO launches neighborhood telephone chain

The PSO has initiated a neighborhood telephone chain to inform parents of unforeseen school closings.

The PSO will use the system on a trial basis this week to solicit donations for its first fundraising project, a giant yard sale scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 23, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the High School parking lot.

The telephone chain came after a suggestion by School Supt. Eugene Crowell.

Osgood School representatives Patricia Baird and Martha Equi and Deer Hill representatives Karin Bartow and Maria Plante began the chain Monday and will have completed the list for both schools by Wednesday.

Thursday the Fundraising Committee, chaired jointly by John Convery and Robin Suhrbier, will stage its second neighborhood pickup.

PSO representatives in each neighborhood will cruise their streets and pick up any items donors have left on their doorsteps for the yard sale.

"The ideas promoting this yard sale have been very clever and innovative," says Gail Convery, event chairman. "Last Saturday's pick-up was very productive. Our garage is fairly bursting with interesting items for sale on Saturday. We have everything from stereos to stoves at this point, and we're very grateful to all the townspeople for their generosity. But we can still use a lot more," Gail added.

Space rental is available from Ruth Nedrow at 383-9292.

Pumpkins will be on sale in the pumpkin patch and a photographer will be on hand to take pictures in the pumpkin patch all day long.

Blue and white helium balloons will be sold. A baked goods table, cider and doughnuts will also be available.

It's Cohasset's Homecoming Weekend, so a large turnout is expected.

In the event of rain, arrangements have been made to hold the sale in the high school gym.

School committee counterattacks on Gjesteby letter

School Committeeman Joseph Nedrow was sharply critical of committee member Martha Gjesteby Monday night, terming a letter Gjesteby sent to the press as "uncalled for, unprofessional and a disservice to the entire town."

Gjesteby had protested the lack of debate at an earlier school committee meeting when the committee voted 4-1 to post the vacant position of business manager and advertise for a replacement.

At the Oct. 4 meeting, after Mrs. Gjesteby's motion — "that the Superintendent propose for the School Committee various alternatives for administrative reorganization of the Cohasset Public Schools, incorporating the duties of the Business Manager with the professional staff," failed for lack of a second, she began to compare other towns such as Hingham with Cohasset, but was interrupted.

At this week's Monday night meeting, Kornet opened the session by criticizing Gjesteby's letter, saying she was bothered that a member of the committee went to the press rather than calling or speaking to other members.

She ruled that Gjesteby would have until later in the meeting to discuss the matter. Kornet said she did not feel it was necessary to discuss the matter again. She claimed the matter was handled "without haste and without debate," and that they "did not discuss it at the last meeting, because it had been discussed over the last year and a half."

Gjesteby said she had sent her letter to the school committee and to the papers because she "felt strongly the issue of administration should be discussed." She wanted the superintendent to "prepare various alternatives." That was done several years ago, she added. Also under Proposition 2½ the school committee loses fiscal autonomy, and she foresees that "we will have to do things differently." She noted that she had been cut off when addressing posting the position.

She said another blow to the town of Cohasset, is that due to problems with the re-evaluation, the committee really doesn't know how much money they can expect to budget. She prefers administrative cuts to cuts in pupil services.

She stressed the committee should look at alternatives, and that she wanted the superintendent to present alternatives. She said she had prepared a study of other systems in the state, which she had wanted to discuss.

She further stated that many constituents had telephoned her, and urged that she do something. Other committee members said they had had few complaints.

In reply, Kornet said the business manager handles transportation on a budget of $80,000. "If we have to contract that out it will cost us $129,000 or $137,000 — I can't remember which, but anyway it is $50,000 more than we are now paying. That $50,000 is more than we are paying the business manager, and that is not counting the other services he performs."

Kornet further disputed Gjesteby's claims, published in the Quincy Ledger, that Harwich has fewer administrators than Cohasset. With an enrollment of 1276 (Gjesteby said over 1300), Kornet noted that Harwich, her own home town, had one superintendent, one special education director, and one high school principal, as required by law. She also listed an assistant high school principal Grades 9-12, assistant junior high principal Grades 7-8, a business manager, one curriculum director, one principal K-6 for two elementary buildings, and one elementary administrative assistant for the second building. They have a total of three schools. Gjesteby responded that she obtained her figures from the State Department of Education.

Nedrow said he didn't want the superintendent to take time to make proposals, if the committee feels it doesn't want them. "He has to prepare two budgets," he added. Langmaid resented "misstatements" and challenged Gjesteby's statements that out of the $3.6 million budget, only $400,000 is under the business manager's control. He figured it to be more in the neighborhood of $1,400,000. Gjesteby reminded him that 80 percent was for salaries.

Conley, in a less argumentative tone, said he felt no need to second Mrs. Gjesteby's motion.

Nedrow added that no one on staff under Chapter 71, Section 38C, is currently certified as a business manager.

Gjesteby said that a citizen had telephoned to say that they had sent Kornet a letter regarding the situation. Kornet denied receiving such a letter.

Later in the evening, Gjesteby pressed again about the letter, saying that the letter had been mailed several days previously. Kornet then acknowledged that she had not read the letters included in her packet, saying most of them were usually "junk mail," and that she had been busy. At Gjesteby's urging, she then searched and found a letter. She did not reveal the contents, but said it was from the Lloyd Prescotts.

Conway Cohasset coordinator

Jack Conway, candidate for United States Congress, has appointed Pat Buckley and Rita Strong as co-chairpersons of his Cohasset campaign.

Conway said he has been "impressed by the commitment shown by both women to the community of Cohasset."

In accepting the position, Mrs. Buckley and Mrs. Strong encouraged anyone interested in becoming active in the Conway campaign to call them at 383-0939 or 383-0304.

Mrs. Buckley, a 34-year resident of Cohasset, served on the Conservation Commission, the Parish Council of St. Anthony's Parish, and as Fundraising Chairman for the Cerebral Palsy Drive.

Mrs. Strong is Vice-Chairman of the Cohasset Republican Committee, Corresponding Secretary of the Garden Club of Cohasset, and is a member of the town Personnel Committee.

Light of reason

These are not easy times for schools. The 1980 census shows that the percentage of the population under 16 is lower than at any other time since the census began in 1790. Our traditional characteristic of being future-oriented, child-oriented and therefore education-oriented is for the time being shaken. Furthermore, the taxpayers' revolt, known in these parts as Proposition 2½, has severely limited the options of school committees in the forseeable future.

For these reasons, and others, there are a lot of pressures on school committees and school officials these days. They find themselves feeling as though they are "fighting for scraps" with police departments, councils on aging, etc.

As school committees divvy up a much smaller pie, a certain amount of anger is probably inevitable. But the light of reason is the only medium by which the difficult problems at hand will be resolved in ways beneficial to the children of Cohasset. We would therefore hope that public bickering can be kept down to what school teachers sometimes call "a dull roar."

What prompts our note of caution is the verbal firefight between School Committeewoman Martha Gjesteby and her colleagues — covered in full elsewhere in this week's Mariner.

We don't find Mrs. Gjesteby's open letter to her colleagues of itself offensive — as several of her colleagues have. She contends that the resignation of Business Manager John Raftery provides the committee with an opporunity to examine its options in the wake of Proposition 2½ and the accompanying loss of the fiscal autonomy of the school committee.

Mrs. Gjesteby asks in her letter if the school committee should go ahead and advertise Mr. Raftery's administrative position when it may be looking at more teacher layoffs in the near future. She does not necessarily oppose filling Raftery's job; she simply contends that this is a time when very careful consideration should be given by the school committee to the future ramifications of all its decisions.

We agree, and we think that the worst possible way for the committee to function in these times would be to trot through its meeting routinely approving measures and brushing aside the questions of dissenting members.

Our only note of caution to Mrs. Gjesteby is this: She has "popped off" before on other issues, and the "open letter" is a tactic that loses its effectiveness if used too often. Like crying wolf, the open letter can be extremely effective when there is in fact a wolf at the door, but it quickly becomes a mere nuisance when dispatched at the drop of every hat. As a member of a collegial body, Mrs. Gjesteby should take issues directly to her colleagues whenever possible, and save open letters and other forms of protest for occasions (1) when the issue involved is mighty important, and (2) when all efforts to deal directly with her colleagues have failed.

But School Committeeman Joseph Nedrow's response to Mrs. Gjesteby's letter, calling it "uncalled for, unprofessional and a disservice to the town" was an overreation — to put it mildly.

Public censure of a public servant

By Tanna Kasperowicz

Commentary

Overt slavery has been abolished, but exploitation of large numbers of humans by their fellow creatures seemingly knows no end.

Far more persistent and baffling than outer space intelligence are the abstract problems — the values of life and the way people treat one another. We are still largely illiterate in the knowledge of human relationships.

The Cohasset School Committee publicly censured School Committeewoman Martha Gjesteby Monday.

Her wickedness? She wrote a letter to the Cohasset School Committee...a letter which was printed in one weekly newspaper. A letter which was summarized by The Patriot Ledger...a letter which urged her fellow committee members to reconsider a motion she made several weeks ago regarding a "study" of administrative reorganization.

Mrs. Gjesteby suggested in her open letter to the school committee that committee members might be acting fiscally irresponsibly. Her committee, Monday, criticized her for having gone public with her concerns.

Two weeks ago no one on the committee would second a motion from Mrs. Gjesteby, the minority member of the committee, for discussion's sake. A member of the finance committee who attended as a private citizen, was also cut off from debate.

In the written communication I left for Mrs. Kornet and Committee Members Monday, I asked a puzzling question. I asked at what point in the decline of student population (1,200, 1,000, 800 500 students) would the committee consider dealing with a reorganization of its administrative staff?

The "gallery" was told early in the meeting that all remarks and/or comments relative to administrative reorganization would be discussed after the agenda was exhausted.

Certainly, the committee had a busy agenda. The committee gave itself 20 minutes to censure one of its members. It allowed no time for comments from the public regarding this particular issue. One reporter said Mrs. Kornet is now considering holding all public and committee input (discussion) until the end of every agenda.

In light of the Town's re-evaluation dilemna. In light of 10 percent unemployment. In light of fiscal problems throughout the Town, throughout the Commonwealth, is the committee prepared to face the fact that if it should continue to get 55 percent of the pie at annual town meeting, will 55 percent of the pie be enough?

Some people have the quaint notion that if they don't open their bills the bills will not exist. May I respectfully suggest to the committee, at this particular point in time, that the Emperor is naked.

I would like to celebrate the New Year with the certain knowledge that the Cohasset School Committee is doing everything in its power to preserve the precious numbers of teachers we have left. Because it's that one-on-one situation...teachers and kids... that makes the Cohasset Public System what it is today. In the end result, teachers are really the ones who have ever made any difference in education. Forget a computer in every classroom. Just give us a teacher in every classroom.

Should the budget continue to dwindle...should things be as bad at annual town meeting as they're predicted to be, then the committee should begin facing its financial dilemna now. Not in April 1983.

No one is asking any Cohasset School Committee member to be superman. I am only asking that you do your very best.

One final comment. When Martha Gjesteby, Diana Kornet, Jack Langmaid, Dick Conley and Joseph Nedrow became elected to the positions they hold as Cohasset School Committeemen and women, they did not give up their rights of petition. They did not give up their right to express their opinions in the free press. The press, with all of its inborn limitations, is what helps to keep this country free.

There's one born every minute

By Claire McDonough

Dear Ann,

I have written to you before, Ann, and you have never answered my letters. Nevertheless, I keep writing in hopes that you will reply. The reason for this, Ann, is that I am very gullible.

I don't mean trusting. I don't even mean optimistic. I mean downright, out and out credulous to the point where I'm a con man's dream.

Have you ever seen a group of people staring at the sky? One person starts looking up — at nothing — to see how many people will come along and join him. I'm the one who's still there the next day. You can recognize me by the permanent crick in my neck.

Have you ever seen the ads in the back of the newspapers they sell in the supermarket? The ones that tell you to send $20 and by return mail they will provide you with a product that, added to your bath water, will relieve you of twenty pounds in twenty minutes? No one in her right mind would fall for a scam like that, right?

It was a pretty interesting product, though. I didn't know they were allowed to send pyrranahs through the mail.

It wouldn't be so bad, Ann, if I only fell victim to strangers. But wouldn't you think that loving children would not take advantage of their mother's um, infirmity?

Take Kevin's wedding. Everyone knows that I lit a candle on the altar, then joined my husband in the pew. Very few know that my daughter Eileen chose that moment to whisper from the pew behind me, "Ma, your dress is split all the way up the back."

Ann, don't you think the law against infanticide is really archaic? And don't you think the Dragon should have told me it wasn't ripped before he dragged me out from underneath the pew?

This is just the most recent example of my gullibility. Over the years I have fallen for the same Skipper's bloody-finger-in-the-box routine every April 1. I have accepted the salt shaker gratefully and sprinkled sugar on my steak. I am a sucker for fake insects and rubber dog errors. A pushover for vanishing ink and squirting lapel decorations.

Let me hear about a new psychic, and I can't wait to tell her my life story so I can be amazed when she feeds it back to me. I'm pretty discriminating about that, though. On the way home I'll stop at a Chinese restaurant and get a fortune cookie so I can have a second opinion.

The thing is, Ann, Halloween is almost here. I have a terrible premonition that someone's going to con me again. Ann, is there any cure for my affliction? Plese reply, as I

Must Know in Cohasset

Dear Must:

Of course there is, kiddo. As a matter of fact, I have a sure cure. Just send $20 to me in care of this paper, and I'll send it to you by return mail.

P.S. Watch your fingers when you open the box. Those little nippers are vicious.

Slovenly habits

To the Editor:

Aren't you fed up? I am! Take a ride to Sandy Beach early Sunday morning.

Walk or bike along our main streets. Go to the parking lot behind the sailing club. If you don't cut your hands or feet with broken glass, you can easily fill up a huge barrel with beer bottles and cans in 15 minutes. I have.

Carelessness and slovenly habits are a part of the mentality which consumes and throws away. Is there a cure?

Well, we've had anti-litter campaigns, slogans and promises from big business to help us clean up our litter. It hasn't helped, has it?

The bottle bill will work. No amount of maligning its affects here in Massachusetts would change the minds of those folks in Maine, Vermont or Michigan, who can testify whole-heartedly to its benefits.

I'll believe what I hear from those who have already tried and tested the bottle bill and vote enthusiastically for ours to be implemented in January.

Sincerely,
Jan Nash
Cohasset

Light of reason...

Nedrow's rhetoric probably better describes his own behavior in this case better than it does that of Mrs. Gjesteby.

For, we repeat, the issues Mrs. Gjesteby raises are good ones, and they will not go away. Providing decent schools in this decade is going to challenge the best efforts of the school committee and challenge them again. Choices will have to be made between good business managers, good teachers and good programs.

They are choices nobody likes, but they are choices that will have to be made...and in the light of reason.

The Gjesteby letter...

(Here is a copy of an open letter to the Cohasset School Committee from Martha Gjesteby, Committee Member.)

School officials have recently said that perhaps seven or eight teachers could be dropped and/or that Osgood School could be closed due to fiscal restraints. If this is the future, then it behooves the Cohasset School Committee to closely examine areas of the budget that do not directly affect the education of students.

Last Monday the School Committee, after no debate, voted 4-1 to post a vacancy caused by the resignation of John Raftery, business manager.

When I moved to ask the superintendent to present several proposals to the committee regarding the reorganization of the administrative staff, and to incorporate the duties of the business manager therein, no one seconded that motion.

I am concerned not that the committee voted to fill the vacancy, I am concerned that the committee did so in haste, not allowing proper discussion of the issue.

With all due respect to the committee, I feel the committee did not act responsibly to the community or to myself and another individual who wished to express her feelings on the matter.

The resignation of John Raftery gives us an opportunity to deal with a reduction and/or reorganization of our administrative staff.

In 1972 we had 1,992 students. In 1982 we have 1,399 students. There are presently eight administrators: School Supt., $44,075; Business Manager, $33,488; two grammar school Principals, $36,000 each; Jr./Sr. High School Principal, $39,500; Assistant Jr./Sr. High School Principal, $35,500; Assistant Superintendent, $36,500; and Guidance Administrator, $34,000.

The total budget of the administrative salary account is $295,000 plus additional contractural benefits. Accordingly, there is one administrator for every 175 students in the Cohasset School system.

Recently, Supt. Eugene Crowell was quoted as saying the reason for immediately filling the post of business manager is that this one individual could easily save the town the equivalent of three teacher salaries.

I respectfully submit that the elimination of this position could immediately save the system two teachers' salaries.

Out of a total school budget of $3.7 million the business manager deals with and has influence over expenditures of about $400,000. The remainder of the school budget is in salaries and other expenditures over which the business manager has no control.

Because the committee chose to allow no debate on the matter, and because I voted against filling the position, I will not be permitted to bring this issue before the school committee at a later date.

Hopefully, as a result of the information I have included in this open letter, another member or members of the committee will feel inclined to reopen this issue.

Selectmen's briefs...

TWO NEW FIREFIGHTERS

The Fire Department is still short one man although selectmen hired two firefighters last week.

However, Acting Fire Chief Roger Lincoln said until the two men are trained (as long as 12 weeks), it will not trim the department's overtime costs. Lincoln had told the Advisory Committee overtime expenses were running close to $3,000 a week.

Appointed were Rudy Caparrotta of Hingham and Eric Wenzlow of Hanover. They will begin work Oct. 27. Selectmen told both men they must maintain their Emergency Medical Technician certification. Executive Secretary Arthur Clark said selectmen required that the men be certified as EMTs. Caparrotta has worked as a firefighter and call firefighter and had been certified as an EMT but let his certification drop because of the Prop. 2½ cutbacks. He said he was taking a course to regain his certification.

Wenzlow, a call firefighter and part-time EMT in Hanover, said his EMT certification will expire in December but has nearly completed the continuing education program needed for re-certification. Selectmen said they will seek another civil service list to fill the third vacancy.

REGULATION FEES

Beginning Oct. 25, the following regulations will be available at the selectmen's office. Health regulations, concerning animals, $1; health regulations concerning sewage, $1; zoning bylaws, $2; town bylaws, $2; and water regulations, $1.

OFF-DUTY POLICE ACCIDENT

Selectmen last week released a report of a Sept. 25 off-traffic accident involving off-duty police officer David Pomarico. Earlier selectmen refused to name the officer until Acting Chief Joseph Kealey prepared a report.

According to the report, Pomarico was traveling southeast on Old Pasture Road about 7:30 p.m. when a car heading in the opposite direction crossed the center line. Pomarico reported he was forced off the road and hit a utility pole, causing minor damage to the front of his car. There were no injuries in the accident.

Kealey said his report showed "no evidence to support any action to be taken by this office." Selectmen said they plan to discuss the matter with town counsel and would seek additional information from Kealey.

FIRE CHIEF SELECTION

Selectmen are still awaiting an opinion from town counsel before appointing a new fire chief. Acting Chief Roger Lincoln, one of the two finalists for the position, said he wants a guarantee of job security before taking the position.

The second candidate, Martin Dooley, a fire lieutenant, in Hartford is the other candidate.

The Mariner questions the candidates

(Candidates for State Senator — Allan McKinnon and Thomas Barry — and State Representative — Mary Jeanette Murray and Caroline Stouffer — responded to the following five questions from the Mariner this week. Ed.)

Republican incumbent for re-election to the Third Norfolk County District State Representative, Mary Jeanette Murray.

Question 1: Do you favor public aid to private schools?

Answer: I like the first section of the proposal because it would bring this state into compliance with the federal law. That federal law allows for certain public aid to private and parochial schools. After checking with the House of Representative counsel, I would have to state that the second portion of the proposal would probably be unconstitutional. According to counsel's advice, if the referendum was passed by the voters, the legislature would be directed to file legislation as an amendment to the state constitution. And if this bill mandated costs to the local cities and towns, which it would have to, it would be unconstitutional under the precepts of Proposition 2½. In actuality, if the legislature did approve the amendment, the local school committees could vote to aid the private school system, but where is the money supposed to come from? It would just take it back to square one. So under that theory, I would not favor this referendum article. I have voted twice to put this question on the ballot because I would like our state to be in compliance with the federal law, and I want the people to vote on this issue.

Question 2: How would you help lower auto insurance costs to the consumer?

Answer: My personal feeling is that I have supported the insurance reform bill. I am tired of being a good driver and paying for the poor driver. The surcharge has not been effective and the costs keep going up and up. Most other states do not have an insurance commissioner who sets the rates. The insurance premiums have been far too much, especially for the good driver. We should have private enterprise, the competition would keep the costs down. But they're increasing again. I feel terrible, especially for the elderly on a fixed income and the young kids just starting to drive. Good drivers should be rewarded through lower premiums and this would entice everyone to be better drivers. I also feel the recent drunk driving bill has helped a great deal. In the short time since that legislation was enacted, there have been fewer accidents and deaths due to drunk driving.

Question 3: Do you favor the Bottle Bill?

Answer: I voted for the Bottle Bill here in the chambers and I also voted to override Gov. King's veto. I will still vote for the Bottle Bill. It has worked very well in the states that passed the bill last year. And I feel that at least we should give it a try and clean up our highways and roads of all the litter and broken glass.

Question 4: Do you favor the death penalty?

Answer: I will vote for the death penalty until the time we have a judiciary committee that looks favorably upon mandatory sentencing. I would favor mandatory sentencing for violent crimes. Right now a cold-blooded murderer can be parolled in seven to 10 years. I favor a mandatory sentence of 20 to 50 years to life without any parole. It seems it is the victim who is forgotten today. I sponsored a bill that passed, which allows for compensation to victims of violent crimes. It is a measure that is long overdue. I was also a sponsor of a Women's Caucus bill that requires that in plea bargaining sessions, the victim be notified of the decision. It is not done now and I think it is disgraceful that a woman who was raped, does not know what happened to her attacker — or that he may be back on the streets.

Question 5: What would you do for the unemployed in your district?

Answer: I would encourage private business. I am so excited about what is being planned for Hull. I took a tour of Hull with some bankers and contractors and we are very excited about what is being talked about for the Nantasket Pier area. I have worked with some planners on ideas for developing that area into something similar to Pickering Wharf in Salem. And they've been willing to put in their time, ideas and money into the development of this property. For the past couple of years I have worked on plans to bring a fish processing plant to the Pemberton Pier area. All these projects will bring needed jobs into the district.

I am sorry we have unemployment, but Massachusetts has less unemployment than anywhere in the country. But I would like to have none. I am delighted that interest rates are going down, and mortgage rates are declining. This will be good news for young prospective homebuyers and the construction industry here.

Democratic candidate for the Third Plymouth District State Representative, Caroline Stouffer

Question 1: Do you favor public aid to private schools?

Answer: I do not favor this referendum question. In the first place, it will open a Pandora's Box of expenses. In a time when we are forced to cut back aid to public schools because of Proposition 2½, it is not appropriate for the state to mandate another expense. The type of legislation that is on the shelves would apply to the purchase of things such as textbooks for private schools. That type of legislation would open possibilities for other types of aid such as tuition assistance. This is not something we would want to mandate to our local school committees.

There is also the question of separation of church and state and whether this type of legislation would even be considered constitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court.

And according to legal advice I have been given, there is a possibility that these schools will not have to allow equal access to both sexes and to the handicapped. Our state constitution has been amended to include the ERA and provisions for equal access for the handicapped. This legislation would reamend the amendments to the state constitution which would in effect, allow exclusions of the previous amendments. The private schools would not have to comply with any such regulations. That's a serious consideration.

Most important, the government has a contract with the people of this state to enhance and improve public education. Public tax dollars according to that contract, are to be used for public education.

Question 2: How would you help to lower auto insurance costs to consumer?

Answer: I would like to see it more difficult for people who steal cars and take them for "joy rides" to get back on the streets to do it again and again. I would like to see this crime escalated to a felony and make this serious crime have serious consequences.

I would also encourage people to be good drivers with incentive programs with higher insurance premiums for bad drivers. I also enthusiastically support all safety programs such as the safety mechanism for locking the car's steering wheel, and seat belts and car seats for infants. These programs should be maintained and further developed because it effects the deep-down costs such as auto insurance and health care costs.

Question 3: Do you favor the Bottle Bill?

Answer: Yes, I was an original sponsor of the bill in 1977 and 1978. The most important factors in my supporting such a measure is that in a time when we are trying to conserve energy, we should support this because it is an energy saving and litter control piece of legislation. When I was studying the proposal in 1977, I discovered that Hingham in one year, spent $14,000 for litter control. And I'm sure it costs more now. The Bottle Bill will save a tremendous portion of that cost to each community.

Question 4: Do you favor the death penalty?

Answer: I am not in favor of the death penalty. I believe it is not a deterrent. In Massachusetts, we have, for first degree murder, a life sentence without parole. So we do have conviction sentences that take the criminal off the streets. The rationale is that society gains revenge from executing a murderer, but we can make mistakes. A New York Bar Association study concluded that the death penalty is more costly because the appeal process goes on and on for years. The cost of an average life sentence is less than the state's costs for providing proper prosecution through many appeals for a criminal sentenced to death.

And it is my understanding that Gov. King has a study on his desk which reveals that the death penalty is not a deterrent to crime. The only argument I can understand, is that people feel they must have revenge upon the criminal. I can understand that rationale, yet there may be mistakes made, and I don't want that.

Finally, the death penalty falls hardest on the poor and the minorities who are unable to get excellent defense. My argument is to spend the money to properly and judicially prosecute the criminal, and put them behind bars and off the streets.

Question 5: What would you do for the unemployed in your district?

Answer: I would encourage a state and federal program utilizing labor camps as FDR did during the Depression. We would use these unemployed people to help rebuild bridges and dams throughout the state which are in terrible shape. We would pay them reasonable wages for their work. I would also like to see more training programs for the unemployed. There is a need for more persons in the hi tech field — apparently they are crying out for more people. I would like to see some sort of entry-level training programs begin for the unemployed in this district.

Democratic incumbent for re-election to the Norfolk and Plymouth District State Senator Allan R. McKinnon:

Question 1: Do you favor public aid to private schools?

Answer: I am opposed to this as a proposal that would open doors to an effort to weaken public education. Most middle class parents demand a good education for their children. If these parents take their children out of the public schools, we will end up with a dual school system — public education for the poor and private education for the well-to-do. I think this issue needs elaboration in Massachusetts. In this state we have no natural resources such as oil or coal in our ground. We have to live and depend on the economy by developing our skills. It is very important that we have a good public education system.

Question 2: How would you help lower auto insurance costs to the consumer?

Answer: As chairman of the joint legislative committee on insurance, in the past year I have worked for several months on a major reform bill to make changes in the auto insurance system. There are many parts to it, but the proposed thrust of higher rates for people who cause higher insurance costs, such as those with a poor driving record, those who have committed auto insurance fraud, those convicted of drunk driving and similar offenses. The money coming into the system because of the higher premiums for bad drivers will be returned to the good drivers in the form of reduced premiums. The bill passed the Senate in early summer and I am hopeful it will pass through the House of Representatives after it return to session.

Question 3: Do you favor the Bottle Bill?

Answer: Eight years ago, as chairman of the Commerce and Labor Committee, I wrote a minority report supporting the Bottle Bill (the majority of the committee did not favor the bill). I have continued to support the bill ever since.

In our society, in an era of diminishing resources, we must pursue every effort to reuse and recycle our resources. Along with that, the bill will have a tremendous effect on reduced litter and a cleaner environment, which is equally important.

Question 4: Do you favor the death penalty?

Answer: I don't feel society should resort to the principle of an eye for an eye. I have always been opposed to this issue, and I always will be opposed.

Question 5: What would you do for the unemployed in your district?

Answer: The best answer to that question is to review my record while I was chairman of the Commerce and Labor Committee over a six-year period. I participated actively in the passage of a number of pieces of legislation which established several new programs to aid in the expansion and location of businesses in Massachusetts. A list of the programs include the Massachusetts Industrial Finance Agency, the Community Development Finance Commission, the Massachusetts Industrial Mortgage Insurance Agency and Mass Land Bank. These types of programs help companies to get the financing they need to expand. I believe they have helped increase job opportunities. Thousands of new jobs have become available through these programs. I will continue to support such programs.

Republican candidate for the Norfolk and Plymouth District State Senate, Thomas J. Barry

Question 1: Do you favor public aid to private schools?

Answer: I do approve of this because it would allow more flexibility and competition in the field of education. We have been hearing a lot of 'scare tactics' — that the legislature would mandate local school committees to give public funds to private education. That is not true. Proposition 2½ prohibits a state mandate to the local level. I think we would have an opportunity to improve public education.

If public schools are failing, parents have the added incentive to put their children in parochial or private schools. And if that happened, we would have to improve public education in order to stop that. It would allow opportunities to provide more quality education because there would be an additional incentive. As the father of two children in public schools, I am concerned that they receive the best cost-efficient and quality education available. I have every intention of keeping them in the public school system.

A second point is that there are many parents who do send their children to private or parochial schools which provides an economic benefit to the community because they are contributing to both educational systems. They should be given every incentive to do this. If they did transfer their children to the public system, the local community would have to provide extra funding for the additional students. It would be an economic castastrophe for certain communities if an additional 200 students were put back in the public schools. With the two systems, you are going to have healthy competition in education and a better, and more cost-efficient service and product.

Question 2: How would you help to lower auto insurance costs in your district?

Answer: It comes down to the no-fault syndrome which was proposed by a legislator named Michael Dukakis. My feeling is that we have to change that system that hasn't worked for those 14 years. We have to replace no fault with a merit system that would reward good drivers with smaller premiums and accident-prone drivers would pay larger premiums. In 98 percent of all accidents, somebody is at fault. We have to go back to incentives — give drivers the incentive not to have accidents. If this took place, we would have a decrease in accidents — we need that incentive to drive more carefully. We should also explore a financial responsibility merit system where we would have guaranteed posted bonds for good drivers which would cut down on the premiums for these good drivers. The people who cause accidents have got to start paying for them.

Question 3: Do you favor the Bottle Bill?

Answer: I enthusiastically support the Bottle Bill. I am alarmed at the broken bottles and cans and debris on the highways, on my front yard in Duxbury, and everywhere you go in the Commonwealth. If these bottles and cans are not available to be disposed of publically, we will see this mess cleaned up. As a jogger, I see the mess along Rte. 14 in Duxbury closer than when I am driving in a car. Litter is everywhere. I know some towns have penalties for litterers, but this measure deserves a chance to work. And if we can start recycling these throw-away bottles and cans, it is better for our resources too.

Question 4: Do you favor the Death Penalty?

Answer: We have got to have a deterrent to murder in our society. Life is cheap in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. We have placed too much emphasis on the life of murderers and criminals who do bodily harm, than on innocent citizens in our society. They have to be protected. I would vote for enabling legislation that would order the electrocution for those convicted of premediated first degree murder without a shadow of a doubt (with witnesses, no circumstantial evidence — positive proof). I believe this is a deterrent to this and other crimes. If we electrocuted criminals in 1983 in this state, we would get the message across — 'we mean business' and the incidents of murder in this state would at least be cut in half. We are going to save some innocent lives. Too many have been wasted. A cold-blooded murderer who is found guilty of the crime and convicted, in my opinion, should receive the death penalty.

Question 5: What would you do for the unemployed in your district?

Answer: The thrust is, we have to create a healthy business environment. The tax situation in Massachusetts is atrocious. We have to get the unemployed jobs, and the only way is to have business create those jobs. In this state we discriminate against small businesses through the classification of real estate taxes. Small businesses pay more than residential homeowners. That's wrong.

Also, we are not providing adequate transportation facilities in the South Shore. This inhibits business. We have also let crime go haywire. That too, affects businesses.

My opponent has voted for taxes that will hurt small businesses for 12 years. His transportation caucus was a political ploy to embarrass the King administration in the primary and it has accomplished nothing. He has opposed the private bus company's plan to service a direct route from the South Shore to Logan Airport, and that hurt.

We also need to give businesses incentives for providing job training programs for the unemployed.

Preparation is the theme of seminar

Preparation, the key to success, is the theme for an educational seminar prepared by "the Mormons" of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, set for Saturday, Oct. 23, from 5 to 9 p.m. at the chapel, 379 Gardner St. in South Hingham.

The seminars will deal with finances: should you invest? What about a will? Insurance alternatives? Education and employment: the family as an education center, preparing for a career, adult education and career changes; and better health for women: Film, Your Baby and You.

In addition to the classes, there will be displays on health, food storage methods and demonstrations.

The importance of family preparedness has long been stressed by Morman church leaders. General Relief Society president Barbara B. Smith says that being provident involves being "wise, frugal, prudent, making provision for the future while attending to immediate needs."

The program Saturday night is under the direction of the Hingham, Mass. Stake and will include speakers from Rhode Island, Cape Cod, North Dartmouth, Foxboro and the South Shore. The public is invited.

Candlelight and wine can make even a little pasta seem tastier, for the simplest meal is enhanced when served attractively. Perhaps it all began with Neanderthal man who probably felt quite the gourmet when he found a flat rock on which to cook part of the animal he had killed. Seating was not a problem then and decoration was courtesy of Mother Nature. Later his wife served some of the food on leaves and shells and so began the age of "gracious living." I think we'd all like to munch on Sue Kenney's

CRANBERRY FRUIT BREAD

2 c. sifted flour
1 c. sugar
1½ tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. salt
1/4 c. shortening
3/4 c. orange juice
1 T orange rind, grated
1 egg, well beaten
1/2 c. chopped nuts
2 c. cranberries, coarsely chopped

Sift together dry ingredients. Cut in shortening. Combine peel, juice and egg. Add to dry ingredients, mixing just to moisten. Fold in berries and nuts. Turn into greased 9x5x3" pan. Bake in 350 oven for 60 min. Cool. Makes one loaf and may be frozen.

A centerpiece can make the whole table come alive, but no need to go to the extreme, as did American tycoon, George Kessler. When hosting a dinner party at London's Savoy Hotel at the turn of the century, guest of honor was the Arctic explorer Robert Perry. An ice carving of the North Pole was the table decoration, with little snowmen holding the place cards. Huge, snow-white chrysanthemums decorated the walls. Waiters, dressed in white furs and hooded like Eskimos, served the stunned guests. Sue Sack and Jan Fossella suggest a much more relaxed style of entertaining, perhaps a Sunday night supper featuring Sue's favorite hot soup

CREAM OF TOMATO WITH COGNAC

3 lbs. ripe tomatoes, or 2 large cans Italian tomatoes with puree
6 T butter
1 large onion, chopped fine
1 tsp. fresh chopped basil
1 pint light cream
1 T dark brown sugar
Salt and pepper to taste
5 T cognac

Fresh tomatoes: plunge into boiling water for 15 sec. and remove skin and pound to a pulp. Canned tomatoes: mash with potato masher or grind in food processor. Saute onion in butter. Add tomatoes and basil. Simmer 30 min. Puree in food mill, blender or processor again. Heat cream and sugar slowly to near boiling. Place puree in pan and add cream slowly. Salt and pepper to taste. Add cognac. Remove from heat. Rewarm slowly. Do not boil. Serves 8-10.

Sitting around with friends before dinner the other night, we nibbled our way through a hefty serving of this appetizer, so good I had every intention of asking for the recipe, but forgot. While shuffling some papers later in the week, I found Dick Pearson's recipe from way back in '78, the very thing we had been snacking on and so good it bears repeating in our column.

GREEN PEPPER JAM

1 dozen green peppers
1 pt. vinegar
1½ lbs. sugar
1 T salt

Chop peppers fine and sprinkle with salt. Let stand three or four hours. Rinse well, then cover with sugar and vinegar. Boil slowly until thick, stirring often. Makes four or five glasses. Serve with cream cheese and crackers.

Author George Lang writes: "The way you set your table should be Tiffany's Last Stand Against the Disposable Culture" and offers a few suggestions to help you enjoy your meal. Place a felt underliner under your tablecloth and let it hang down freely; don't push the chairs into the cloth. Don't use tall flowers as a centerpiece, as they become a barrier between guests. Use cold plates for cold dishes and warm ones for hot foods.

OSGOOD AND DEER HILL

Maureen Flaherty was the winner of four "Annie" tickets, donated by the Metropolitan Center of Boston. Mrs. Flaherty won the raffle held at Deer Hill open house night last week. The Flaherty's will take their son Scott, a 6th Grade student in Mrs. Cisneros' class, and a friend to a matinee performance.

The Residency Committee for the PSO would like to thank all the parents and friends who "took a chance" on the "Annie" tickets. The raffle raised $105, narrowing the distance to our goal for the theatre residency for the two schools to $200. Thanks to Linda Summers, Diane Sullivan and Mary Izzo for their help in selling chances for the raffle.

DEER HILL

Deer Hill needs VOLUNTEERS in the classrooms, library, with science classes, bulletin boards and with I.M.S. If you can lend a hand in any of these areas, please call Pat Ellinger (6981), your child's teacher or the school officer (6115).

All productions are student directed with school drama director Ron Emmons acting as advisor.

The first show will begin at 2 p.m. when the Class of 1986 will present "To Burn a Witch", a drama dealing with the Salem witch trials of the 1600's. The cast includes Jacqueline Fahy, Lisa Cuff, Pam Ellis and Dawn Johnston under the direction of senior Samantha Barrett.

At 2:30 p.m. the Class of 1982 takes the stage with "The Children's Story," a frightening look into the future, by James Clavell, the author of "Shogun." Directed by senior Maureen Buckley, the cast includes Vicki Spooner, Mara Sceery, Michael Mahoney, Maria Bird, Jennie Packard, Jeanine Buckley, Skip Urmson, Chrissy Vivan, Michael DeSantis and Karlin Isele.

Selections from Neil Simon's comedy "The Good Doctor" will be presented at 3:30 p.m. by members of the Class of 1984 directed by senior Susan Douglas. In the cast are Kirt Hochkeppel. Trina Moore, Jennifer Dickeman, Jennifer Mitman, John Replogle, Tammy Karcher and Suzanna Barrett.

CHS to select Government Day delegate

Elections will be held at Cohasset High School Nov. 2, to select the school's delegate to the 35th Annual Student Government Day Program.

The program was established in 1947 by the state legislature so secondary school students would be able to learn about state government by participating.

This idea has developed into a six-month program which explores all aspects of our state governmental system and includes a one day "take over" of the state administration by the students.

Any secondary school in Massachusetts is eligible to send one student representative to this program. The student must be 16 years-old on or before May 31, 1983. The student must be elected by a high school in a democratically held election. The student must be dedicated to receiving full benefits offered by the program in understanding state government.

After the election in each school, the names of the delegates are placed in a "Glass Bowl." Names of the student counterparts will be drawn by the governor, other constitutional officers and supreme court justices. Another drawing will be held to select the governor's counsellors, department heads, cabinet secretaries, senators and representatives.

Three series of workshops will be held for the purpose of educating teachers and student delegates about the legislative process and state government. The first series will be held in the regional education centers. The second and third workshop series will be held at the State House.

The governor will participate in these workshops along with the constitutional officers, legislators, judicial officials, members of interest and lobbying groups. The workshops will also provide an opportunity for students to observe the legislature in session.

Student Government Day is held on the second Friday in April. Students will participate in all aspects of the administration of state government at the State House.

PSO to meet at high school, Oct. 21

The PSO will meet Thursday, Oct. 21, at 8 p.m. in Room 107 at Cohasset High School.

Following the regularly scheduled committee reports will be a special report by Chartis Langmaid of the League of Women Voters on Question #1 on the Nov. 2 ballot.

The proposed amendment to the State Constitution concerns state aid to non-public school students and institutions.

School committee briefs...

1982 S.A.T. RESULTS FOR COHASSET

Cohasset averaged 469 in the Verbal S.A.T. Test this year, exceeding the National, New England and Massachusetts averages, which ranged from 425 to 428.

The 469 score was also the third highest in the last 10 years, exceeded by 1973 with an average of 488, and 1974 with an average of 470.

In Mathematics the S.A.T. score averaged 504. This was also the third highest score in the last 10 years, less than the 523 of 1973, and the 519 of 1978. The 1982 National average in Math was 467.

According to the class profile which the guidance department sent to colleges, it should be noted that the class of 1982 had an average I.Q. of 119. This is the highest average I.Q. of any senior class over the last 13 years.

1982 ACHIEVEMENT TEST AVERAGE SCORES

The Cohasset Achievement Test average scores for the class of 1982 (popularly called the College Boards) showed the following:

English Composition, 507 (4th highest in last 10 years). Note that this was 13 points less than the National average.

Math Level I, 507 exceeded by seven classes in the past 10 years. This was 38 points less than the National average.

School officials pointed out that these results may be skewed by the fact that 76 percent of the majority of CHS students take these tests, whereas in some other communities, only a few top students take these exams.

In Vocabulary tests, 1982 students scored the highest in the past eight years of testing, but in the Standard Test of Written English the class tied with the class of 1981 for the lowest score in the past eight years.

In Biology, 20 students averaged 603, down from the 732 of a previous year.

In U.S. History, six students averaged 512. The National average was 511 according to guidance director Leary.

The scores of the 25 students who took the Chemistry exam were minimized by administrators who noted that Cohasset students only have one year of Chemistry, and no A.P. course was offered. Some other systems offer two years, or an additional A.P. course.

COHASSET A.P. EXAMS RESULTS

Advanced Placement examinations are scored from 1 to 5. To qualify for placement or credit in a college, a student needs a minimum grade of 3 (a few colleges require a 4).

In Biology the Class of 1982 averaged 3.5. The highest bio score in the last 10 years was achieved by the Class of 1979 with an average of 3.9, while the lowest was the Class of 1973 with an average of 2.7. The 1982 average of 3.5, in fact, was the average score over the past 10 years.

In English the Class of '82 averaged 4.0, which was the highest score in 10 years!

European History, '82 with an average of 3.4, tied for highest with the Class of '80.

French Literature at 3.5 exceeded the 3.3 average of the last 10 years, but did not match the average of the class of 1980 which was 5.0.

Latin (Vergil) A.P. test was taken by only one student who scored 3.0.

Calculus AB averaged 4.5, the highest in 10 years. No student took Calculus BC.

The members of the school committee failed to comment regarding Spanish A.P., which was taken by five students, who only averaged 2.6. This was the lowest Spanish average since 1978, when Cohasset students began to take this exam. Three students scored a 2, which does not qualify, one scored a 3, and one scored a 4.

In the A.P. exams 90 percent of Cohasset students received qualifying scores, down from the Class of '81, which had 93 percent qualify. The number of exams taken was 58.

CHS CLASS SIZES: LARGE AND SMALL

Committeeman, Joseph Nedrow asked the $64,000 question: "Are we making maximum utilization of our staff?

Principal Streeter admitted, "No." Some classes are very small, reported Streeter; others are very large. According to figures presented to the school committee there are two English eight classes of 30 and 28; an English seven with 28; and a Humanities 10 with 27 students.

A Modern World History class has 28 students; Social Studies eight has 29; and Humanities 10 has 26 students.

A Spanish seven, a Spanish eight, and Spanish two all have 28 pupils. Math seven and A. Alg. one have 28 students; a Math eight has 30; and a Math seven has 31; and another A. Alg. one has 30.

Geometry has classes of 27 and 31. Biology A.P. has 26; a Science seven and Science eight both have 29; a Science nine has 30, as does a Chemistry class; a Science seven has 31, and Biology 9H has 34 youngsters. There are Typing one classes of 26, 29 and 30. Accounting one enrolls 27.

On the other hand, CHS has several classes with less than 10 students. They are as follows:

Music 7/8, 8 students; Guitar, 6; Sr. Music Elective, 6; Art I, 7; Home Economics 7/8, 9; Home Economics 7/8, 8; World Foods, 6; Mech. Drawing I, 7; Mech. Drawing 2-4, 7; Reading, 3, 3, 3, 6, 2, 8, 9, 2, 8, 6; French A.P., 5; Latin I, 9; G. Math., 8; Physics, 9; Word Proc., 5; and Acct. 2, 4.

Supt. Crowell estimated the classes were only scoring 75 percent in efficiency, but he pointed out that this was a function of both a small school system, and Cohasset community expectancies. Martha Gjesteby reported she is hearing the school should keep a variety of classes, even if some are small, but asked the superintendent to prepare alternatives for next year.

Crowell replied that he will put his recommendations into the budget, but warned that he will probably prepare two budgets, because of the uncertainties due to re-evaluation problems in town.

PSO CALENDAR MAILED

Committee Chairman Diana Kornet, publicly thanked Reverend Edward T. Atkinson, vice chairman of the PSO, for coordinating the PSO Calendar which has been mailed to all parents of school children. The calendar lists school events, and provides space for personal notations. The PSO hopes that the cost of the calendar will be defrayed through donations from recipients.

HOFFMAN REPORTS TO SCHOOL COMMITTEE

Justine Hoffman, one of the two student representatives to the Cohasset School Committee, reported that the soccer team had tied Duxbury which is ranked first in the league, and that the field hockey team had defeated Abington, 3-0. Hoffman also acknowledged and thanked the PSO for their willingness to volunteer to help the CHS Student Council.

"HOMECOMING" COURT

Paul Johnson, the second student representative to the school committee, announced that the Homecoming King will be Bob Meers. Candidates for Queen at the Oct. 23 dance are Justine Hoffman, Amy Laue, Joy Pratt and Tara Pompeo.

GUIDANCE DIRECTOR VISTS COLLEGES

Guidance Director John Leary, while attending the national conference of College Admissions Counselors, took time to visit three Minnesota colleges for the first time. He toured MacAlister College in St. Paul and met sophomore Edward Booth, a former CHS student.

In the afternoon he surveyed St. Olaf's College, but did not get to meet CHS alumna Kay Failenger, who transferred there. He did encounter Ted Durant, now a sophomore at Carleton College, sometimes referred to as "the Harvard of the West," on the following day.

FAF FORMS DELAYED

FAF forms, for financial aide to college students, will not be available this year until January, Leary announced. Previously they have been issued in December.

The delay, he explained, has been caused by two students who challenged the legality of charging a few for proving they are financially needy, and by overlapping Washington agencies not being able to agree on a form.

STUDENT — SCHOOL COMMITTEE

In response to Committeeman Joseph Nedrow's suggestion to change the method of student representation to the school committee, Supt. Crowell recommended establishing a committee of himself, Streeter, Leary, Nedrow, Hoffman and Johnson to report on this subject at the next school committee meeting.

Nedrow stressed his belief that it will be helpful in college admissions for more than two CHS students to be able to list themselves as representatives on their college applications.

THE TRANSPORTATION MESS

THE LIBERAL STATE SENATOR FROM WEYMOUTH HAS NOT ONLY FAILED TO RESOLVE OUR TRANSPORTATION PROBLEMS, BUT HAS ADDED TO THEM BY HIS NEGATIVE POSTURE AGAINST THOSE WHO WOULD HELP TO SOLVE THESE PROBLEMS.

THIS PAST MONTH, TRUE TO FORM, HE ATTEMPTED TO THWART THE EXPANSION OF PRIVATE BUS FACILITIES FROM THE SOUTH SHORE TO LOGAN AIRPORT. SOUTH SHORE COMMUTERS STAND TO BE THE BIGGEST LOSERS IN THIS LATEST POLITICAL VENDETTA BY THE WEYMOUTH SENATOR.

FOR THE PAST 12 YEARS, UNDER 3 DIFFERENT ADMINISTRATIONS OF GOVERNORS FROM BOTH POLITICAL PARTIES, HE HAS PRESIDED OVER THE DEMISE OF THE TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM ON THE SOUTH SHORE. THIS MESS DID NOT DEVELOP OVERNIGHT. HE IGNORED IT UNTIL LAST FALL WHEN HE FORMED HIS "TRANSPORTATION CAUCUS" TO SUPPOSEDLY RESOLVE THESE PROBLEMS. IT ACCOMPLISHED WHAT IT WAS INTENDED TO DO NOTHING.

IT WAS MERELY A POLITICAL PLOY TO EMBARRASS THE KING ADMINISTRATION IN A GUBERNATORIAL PRIMARY. IT WAS ALSO A CRUEL HOAX PERPETRATED UPON THE PEOPLE OF THE SOUTH SHORE.

THIS SENATOR CERTAINLY ISN'T GOING TO EVEN TRY TO RESOLVE OUR TRANSPORTATION PROBLEMS, BUT TOM BARRY WILL.

TOM BARRY WILL WORK TO FORM A COALITION OF LEGISLATORS FROM BOTH POLITICAL PARTIES, ALONG WITH COMMUNITY LEADERS, TO DEVELOP A WRITTEN LONG RANGE PLAN THAT WILL REFINE OUR EXISTING TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES AND EXPLORE THE IMPLEMENTATION OF ALTERNATIVE FACILITIES.

TOM BARRY WILL ENCOURAGE, RATHER THAN OPPOSE, THOSE WHO ARE ATTEMPTING TO IMPROVE THE SITUATION. THAT IS WHY TOM BARRY WILL SUCCEED WHERE THE WEYMOUTH SENATOR HAS FAILED.

AFTER 12 YEARS OF THE WEYMOUTH SENATOR IT'S TIME FOR A CHANGE.

Soccer boys win, gridmen fall to Middleboro

By Alana O'Brien

FIELD HOCKEY

Last Wednesday, the field hockey team traveled to Hanover and were shut-out, 3-1.

Even though Cohasset dominated the first half, the Indians put in two quick goals and earned another from a penalty shot.

Tri-captain Gia Barresi said Cohasset played well considering Hanover's top position in the league.

Friday they faced Middleboro and were defeated 1-0.

Middleboro scored their goal early in the game. For the rest of the game, Cohasset played evenly with Middleboro but it was difficult to catch up.

GIRLS SOCCER

Last Wednesday the girls soccer team was defeated by Hanover, 2-1.

Cohasset scored its goals early in the third period by forward Sarah Seavey, unassisted, and forward Jill Nedrow with an assist from Seavey.

Hanover's goal came late in the fourth quarter.

Goalie Tracy Keating was praised for a great game.

On Friday, the girls played East Bridgewater and were defeated, 4-1.

Coach Bill Fallen said his team played a strong second half.

Sara Seavey scored the lone goal for Cohasset.

The team, with a 5-7 overall record, will play at Rockland this Wednesday and face rival Norwell Friday.

BOYS SOCCER

Last Tuesday, the CHS boys soccer team defeated Middleboro Sachems, 3-0, in a South Shore League contest.

All three of Cohasset's goals came in the second quarter and were scored by sophomore Mike Desantis with an assist from David McDonald and Dan Bowen. Jim Stallard added an insurance goal.

Goalies Chris Mahoney and Sean O'Connor registered the shut-out for Cohasset.

FOOTBALL

Middleboro finally found their revenge last Friday night as they defeated the CHS football team, 21-8.

Coach John Leone was proud of his team though. He said his team played an overall good game especially on defense.

Junior Lee Wilson scored Cohasset's lone touchdown with a pass from quarterback Rich Evans.

The Skippers, now 2-2-1 in the S.S.L., are looking forward to Saturday's annual Homecoming game against East Bridgewater and are looking for a big crowd to help root them to another victory.

Recently, the CHS football team met with league rival Hull in an important game which ended in a scoreless tie.

Offensively, Coach John Leone thought his team played well but weren't consistent enough.

Once downfield they couldn't get a handle on the ball which at one point resulted in two fumbles.

Leone said it was the defense which kept the Skippers in the game. "They worked hard and played very strong."

The team travels to Middleboro Friday night to face the Sachems under the lights.

Their last contest resulted in an upset with Cohasset the victor, so Middleboro will be out for revenge.

Leone said it will be a tough game as the Sachems will be looking to get back on the winning track after their recent loss to Duxbury.

With three days left to recover from their disappointing tie with the Pirates, the Skippers have their work cut out for them.

A downer week for the Seahawks

Oct. 10-17 proved to be a real disaster for Seahawk teams entered in the South Shore Conference as all six teams went down to defeat.

However, Hobomock participants saved the weekend from being a total washout as they went 3-0 in league action.

Coach Louie DiLorenzo's Bantam A's lost a 4-3 heart-breaker to Quincy after holding an early 3-0 lead.

Coach Bob Hayes' Bantam B's were trounced by Quincy 7-2. Jeff Hartwell and Rob Vinal dented the nets for the B's while Vinal and Billy Resnick picked up assists.

Coach Rick Sparrow's Bantam C's nipped Marshfield 2-1 behind the stellar performance of goalie Karl Kauper. Ronnie Morrison and Greg Humberd lit the scoring lamps while Rick Sparrow, Jon Hoyler and Dave Maccini were credited with assists.

Coach Carney White's Pee Wee A's dropped a close 4-2 verdict to Quincy. Scott Cutliff and Darrin Gold whipped in the Seahawk goals while Rickie Chase and Danny Pompeo registered assists.

Coach Frank McGovern's Pee Wee B's fell to Quincy. Jamie Hoffman, Peter Buckley and Patrick Glennon tallied for the B's while Stephen Boardman and Paul Norton were playmakers.

Coach Jim Consalvi's Pee Wee C's emerged victorious over Weymouth 4-2. Carmine Cimetti, P.J. Breen, Stephen Elmes and Michael Anderson were the Seahawk "Sharpshooters" while John Niland, Stephen McCoy and Adam Belmarsh supplied the ammunition.

Coach Barry Resnick's Squirt A's were beaten by Quincy 5-2. Brian Pompeo and Mark Resnick were the Seahawk "Puckpoppers" while Billy Lincoln and Jeffrey White provided the set-ups.

Coach Michael Dundon's Squirt B's also tasted defeat as they were overcome by Weymouth 5-2. Cole Hughes and Richard Jacobus hit the bull's-eye for the B's while Dan Cuddahy had the lone assist.

Coach Jim McGowan's youthful Mite skaters ended the week on an up-beat as they white-washed Whitman-Hanson-Kingston 6-0 behind the superb net-minding of Matthew Ventolieri. Paul Frey (2), Gary Dunham (2), Kevin Mulcahey and Tim Getto all found the range for the home team while assists were given to Dunham, Frey, Steven Peacock, Tim Convery and John Resnick.

Deadly with the head is Joanie Chisholm (no. 15) who heads the soccer ball to teammate Amy Duncombe. (Greg Derr photo)

Autumn is...
Colorful trees, red, yellow, orange, and brown
Beautiful pine trees, green and tall
Leaves falling about all over the place
Piles to rake and piles for jumping
October winds make leafy skies
Cloudy skies, chilly and cool
October winds blowing warm and then cold
Acorns scattered all over the ground
Squirrels scampering all about
Bees making honey for them and for me
Birds heading south out of the cold
(Grandma & Grandpa too!)
Making fires to keep us warm
Bringing in the harvest yellow and gold
Making wreaths to greet our friends
Juicy red apples, cider, pies and sauce
Delicious pumpkin pies
Playing in the October wind, running, running all about
Carving pumpkins, taking out seeds
Christopher Columbus sailing the mighty seas
A great time for Halloween
Black cats and goblins galore
Witches wearing tall funny hats
Scary masks: demons, devils, goblins and ghosts
Candy so tempting and good
A fun time for all
Joining our hands so merrily to wish one and all
A very happy Fall.

(Mrs. Manna's 3rd Grade)

Osgood is getting ready for their upcoming open house (Tuesday, Oct. 26) and decorated for Fall. Here are two poems from the open space classroom that capture the season.

The Marinette Page is devoted entirely to the creativity of Cohasset children. We will accept for publication outstanding work in art, poetry, composition or short stories.

Fall means...
Leaves tumbling to the ground
Happy children jumping into leaf piles
Kids playing "Crossfire"
Thoughts of special days coming soon
Pumpkins growing on vines in fields
The world turning color, red, yellow, orange, brown, and purple
The sound of leaves swishing, rustling, crackling
Bringing an apple to the teacher — oops! (only the core is left)
Bombing your sister with catepillars
School getting going
Building forts and castles of leaves
Playing kickball with friends
Wind making the leaves flutter, softly to the ground
Air getting colder
Sweaters, jackets, quilts coming out
Birds flying south
Darkness coming sooner
The smell of wood fires burning
Squirrels gathering nuts, people picking pumpkins, kids collecting seeds
The first frost!

Revaluation may have to start over

Assessors were expected to meet with the Advisory Board Tuesday night to discuss a $750 transfer to determine if work already done on property revaluation can be salvaged.

In addition, Assessor Chairman Brian Wilkin said assessors and the Advisory Board should discuss calling a special town meeting to either pay for a salvage operation, or new revaluation contract.

The town's 100 percent revaluation project was originally to be completed in July of 1981 but appraiser Thomas Mahoney didn't submit his figures to the state until earlier this year.

State officials rejected the figures because they said Mahoney did not provide proper documentation for his values. He later defaulted on his contract, leaving the residential, commercial, industrial and personal property revaluation incomplete.

The state has refused to allow Cohasset to send out estimated tax bills and ordered the town to set up a timetable for finishing revaluation. This has forced the town to borrow money to pay its bills.

Assessors want a firm to conduct a study to see if work already done can be salvaged. If it can, another $3,300 would be needed to pay town's computer firm.

Wilkin said the Advisory Committee and assessors should discuss calling a special town meeting to pay for either a salvage operation of a new contract.

"I think we should get their feelings on a special town meeting because at that point, we're going to have some idea of the costs that are going to be involved. We should start the wheels rolling for that as soon as possible."

Richard Finnegan of Robert J. Finnegan & Associates, an Acton reappraisal firm, told assessors state officials will need proper documentation of figures before approving revaluation. He recommended the town begin the process again. He estimated it would take a team of eight people two months to collect data but thought the entire process could be completed in time for the spring tax billing.

He was due to submit a detailed proposal to the assessors Tuesday. Appraisal Consultants of New England Corp. has also submitted a bid to study if Mahoney's work could be salvaged.

R.M. Bradley of Boston, another appraisal firm, was expected to bid on the commercial and industrial portion of the revaluation work.

The next committee meeting will be held on Sunday, Oct. 24 at 7:30 p.m. in the Unitarian Parish House.

Assessors resolve Aaron Rd. address mess

Assessors have assigned Andrew and Linda Krueger the address of 46 Flintlocke Road to clear a dispute over the proper street address.

A bylaw was drafted and passed during the April town meeting which the gave the assessors the power to assign street numbers. The Kruegers had been using 40 Aaron River Road because they said they received the address from a postal clerk.

However, Jack and Lili Richmond discovered their address was also being used by the Kruegers. They discovered the mixup when mailed failed to arrive at their home. Wilkin said the assessors had offered the Kruegers the choice of 46 Flintlocke Ridge Road or 67 Aaron River Road but they did not pick one.

Assessors plan to write to the Kruegers assigning a number and the letter could then be kept as proof that the couple had lived in the same house for several years. Assessors were concerned police or firefighters would have trouble finding the right address in an emergency.

The wreck of the 'St. John'

Looking back

By David Wadsworth

Cohasset's long rocky shore is famous for the large number of shipwrecks occurring here during the 18th and 19th century "Age of Sail."

The worst of them was the wreck of the brig "St. John" from Galway, Ireland, in 1849 with the loss of 99 lives at the Grampus Ledge near Minot's Light.

But an earlier disaster is worthy of our attention, if only because as the result, a European king awarded gold and silver lifesaving medals to a number of Cohasset residents.

During the stormy night of Feb. 12, 1793, the 400-ton Danish sailing vessel, "Gertrude Maria," under Captain Hans Peter Clien was nearing the end of its Atlantic voyage from Copenhagen to Boston when it struck Brush Island just off-shore from Cohasset's Sandy Beach.

Driven by gale force winds and high seas, the merchant ship first glanced off a small ledge some distance at sea, then crashed headlong onto the granite shore of Brush Island.

Carrying a cargo worth an estimated $40,000, the "Gertrude Maria" quickly broke apart and sank.

An initial attempt to reach the mainland shore was made by two crewmen in a small boat; the boat was dashed to pieces and one of the crewmen drowned.

Following this unsuccessful attempt to go for help, the remaining crewmen finally were able to work their way from the vessel's stern to safer shelter high among the island's icy and wind-blown rocks.

Here they shivered in the winter storm until daybreak, when their plight was discovered by Cohasset residents on the mainland shore. During the "Age of Sail," Cohasseters were accomplished lifesavers. Just as they themselves ventured forth on the sea to make their living, the seafarers of Cohasset were quick to respond to the distress of fellow seamen who had run afoul of the treacherous ledges at the Cohasset Rocks.

Following the discovery of the Danish crew stranded on Brush Island, a small boat was brought overland to the beach and launched into the dangerous waves. This initial attempt to reach the site of the wreck succeeded, and three of "Gertrude Maria's" sailors were brought safely ashore.

A second attempt failed when the small rescue boat itself was smashed to pieces in raging seas.

Then two more small boats, having arrived after being carried overland for some distance, were launched from the beach and reached the surviving crewmen.

Finally, all 21 surviving crewmen, including the ship's captain, were brought ashore.

Later, in calm weather, the Cohasset rescuers became salvagers, and succeeded in saving enough of the sunken vessel's cargo to return the amount of $12,000 at an auction.

The Danish Captain Clien subsequently wrote an account of the heroic efforts and the friendly hospitality given by Cohasset's residents.

Upon his return to Denmark, the Captain personally spoke to the Danish King and related his experience here at Cohasset.

As the result of this conversation, the King of Denmark instructed the Danish college of Commerce to issue 14 large medals: four of gold and the rest of silver, to be presented to Cohasset individuals who had played leading roles in the rescue of "Gertrude Maria's" crew.

The medals had, on one side, the likeness of the King, and on the other side, in Danish, the words "Reward Of Merit — Noble Service."

Recipients of the four gold medals were Cohasseters, the Rev. Josiah Crocker Shaw, merchant and millowner Elisha Doane, Esquire, Captain John Lewis and Captain Levi Tower.

It was that almost two centuries ago, four Cohasset residents received gold lifesaving medals from the King of Denmark for the heroic service they performed on that stormy night in February of 1793.

tional channel which is a closed circuit network between town departments and agencies. The residential network is where the local productions would be aired.

Approximately five local community channels would be available by American Cablesystems, Bicknell said. The networks would provide a channel for government, education, leased access for local advertising, and a channel for local productions.

Each company offers a local production service, because that is an integral part of the cable system, Bicknell said. Basic costs for the service could probably be reduced if the service was not available.

Bicknell also noted that although the community is small and its library facilities are similarly proportioned, it would be left to the trustees to decide what type of service they require in cable television.

At this point in the competition, it would be difficult to state what services would be available to Cohasset, and what staff would be employed to assist in local productions, she said. These specific concerns will be addressed in the company's amended proposal to the town's cable committee.

All four companies are in the process of amending their original proposals. They will be submitted by late January, according to American Cablesystems community relations consultant Beverly Douglas.

John Packard also attended the meeting. He will help to formulate the schools' cable television needs to the cable committee's sub committee. He said it was too early to relate what specific needs the schools have, but he felt the cable service would provide an effective educational tool to the community.

The family ... and the Cambridge diet

By Lois Martin

They meet in their cars to swap money for powder. You can arrange to get it by knowing someone who buys.

Tess picked the chocolate flavor. But the Cambridge Diet is available in banana, vanilla or strawberry. And the procurement of the gritty compound has been the goal of women who've done it all — Scarsdale, grapefruit, water, ice cream, Richard Simmons.

There has been some question as to whether or not the Food & Drug Administration allows the sale of the product, too little calories, someone said, to make it safe.

What greater incentive! Not since prohibition has any product inspired so much grappling, so many telephone calls to someone who knows someone. Once denied, the Cambridge Diet has become the undeniable leader of the diet fads for 1982.

And Tess Babson joined the throng of would-be losers at a football game. She was there among other parents, cheering on the children, and passing her peanuts. She overheard another mother, a size 10, discussing the diet, quoting phenomenal weight losses.

She hurled her empty peanut bag, wrote out a check and obtained her chocolate flavored week's supply, $17.50.

Tess is a single parent of a robust crowd. She called them together that first Wednesday and explained her attack plan. They'd been after her a lot to lose weight anyway, saying she'd get a husband, "their goal not mine," and they said they'd help her.

Fearing they'd confiscate what looked tasty, she warned them to keep away from her powder. And she enlisted their support by saying, "If you see me chewing, I'm cheating...chewing is cheating." That, she would learn, was a safeguard and a foolish mistake.

She popped TV dinners in the oven for them, turned back the foil, exposing Salisbury steaks, fried chicken, meat loaf. She instructed them to eat the dinners, then to dispose of all of the containers and leftovers, upside down and covered in the trash.

She went upstairs to have her shake. She loves milk shakes and this one looked like a three scooper.

It was not..."absolutely gross," like the old Metrocale, she said, gritty, chalky.

Her face still marked by disappointment, she went downstairs to see the remnants of her children's dinners on the table, an entire apple cobbler, two potato puffs, fried chicken. She got the unappreciative eaters and forced them to do away with the temptation.

In one week her family has come to hate the Cambridge Diet. She refused to go shopping to restock the good stuff, pop, Twinkies, chips. And they've been to Burger King, to her sister's, to their grandmother's.

Indeed it was the grandmother, said Tess, who sent home coffee cake, Italian cookies, pumpkin-shaped iced ones and a layer cake. She had them carted away from her house. "It's for the kids," she was told. And she said they didn't need it. "Take it to Lydia," she said of the father's second wife. "Let her get fat."

Overstuffed with the Cambridge Diet, a son launched his own attack, saying she didn't cook, didn't buy groceries, made them suffer, didn't care about anyone except herself.

Tess said, "You betcha!"

There had been an awakening, though, when she'd discovered the diet's failure to include enough protein. She was then, a busy working person after all, driven to supplement that loss...a bit of cheese, the hamburger out of her sister's American chop suey, chicken.

And it hadn't been until Saturday night again at her sister's that the two mammoth pizzas were delivered...more protein and a touch of salad... ruffage.

Still the following days were spent in redress of the slip. And by Tuesday she was entirely the picture of a deprived person, one who weighed seven pounds less than the previous week.

She picked up the kids after football practice, her nightly shake already sloshing in its empty environs. They were ravenous. They needed a good meal. She made one for them as any decent mother would. Fat chicken and the rice as they liked it "with all the gunk," a wholesome salad with fresh tomatoes from the garden.

She didn't sit to eat. She stood to do it. In the kitchen from the cooking containers, the origin of such magnificent food odors one would wax poetic if one's mouth weren't otherwise employed.

But that old warning from a few days earlier bore fruit (forgiving the reference to food). The kids bellowed, raved, carried on at their mother. She was chewing and that was cheating.

"Mind your own business," she disciplined. She told them she deserved a good meal and she topped it off with two cookies and a glass of milk.

The next morning her new supply was in hand to match a fresh and satisfied resolve.

And as if the weight loss hadn't been enough, one son confided in her, after this hassle about not getting a man if you've got too much weight, that he did, after all like having her all to himself.

That warm comment, well, it was almost enough to make the most dedicated dieter pour her chocolate powder down the drain.

Coast Guard report for the week

SATURDAY, OCT. 9

Received call from Mr. Peter O'Brien, construction manager of Pilgrim Nuclear Power Plant, reporting a barge and dredge within Power Plant Intake breakwall, breaking its moorings and threatening intake structure. CG Point Allerton and Provincetown dispatched motor lifeboats and CG Station Scituate dispatched a vehicle with personnel from the Station to act as the on scene commander to coordinate and insure the barges didn't break loose and cause damage.

1:35 p.m., Received call from Scituate Fire Dept. stating that the skipper of the cabin cruiser "Holiday" is requesting CG assistance, as his vessel was taking on water fast and in danger of sinking at the Town Pier in Scituate Harbor. CG 41455 was immediately dispatched and upon arrival discovered the Holiday was rapidly sinking. Attempts to dewater the vessel failed and she soon sank, one Coast Guard Auxiliarist and the owner of the vessel were on board the Holiday when she went down, but did manage to scramble to safety. The CG salvage pump was however lost. Commercial salvage later refloated the vessel and retrieved the salvage pump. The vessel Holiday was owned and operated by George Wattendurk.

2:33 p.m., Scituate Harbormaster called stating an 18 ft. outboard was partially submerged and drifting in the vicinity of the Scituate Harbor Yacht Club, the harbormaster dispatched a boat and requested CG assistance, and the CG 41455 was dispatched. With the combined efforts of the Coast Guard and Harbormaster the vessel was quickly retrieved and secured to a mooring buoy in the Harbor. The 18 ft. outboard was owned by David Twohig.

SUNDAY, OCT. 10

9:57 a.m., While the CG 41455 was underway a crewmember sighted a 13 ft. Dory, capsized 100 yards from the Town Pier. The CG 41455 rerighted and dewatered the Dory.

MONDAY, OCT. 11

11:40 a.m., Received call on distress channel 16 from the vessel Dodger reporting a lost dingy located outside of Scituate Harbor near 1st Cliff. CG 41455 was dispatched to reright and dewater the dingy which belonged to the sailing vessel Trillogy.

2:50 p.m., The CG Station Scituate overheard communications with the Scituate assistant Harbormaster requesting CG assistance with a 36 ft. cabin cruiser taking on water at Cole Parkway marina. The CG 41455 was dispatched and dewatered the cabin cruiser (MS 36RH) owned and operated by Robert Hastie.

Paintings of Leon Graff & Becky Haletky at Art Center

Expressionist paintings of places and people by Leon Graff of Philadelphia and imaginative watercolors focusing on period architecture by Becky Haletky of Whitman will be featured from Oct. 15 through Nov. 13 in the Invitational Gallery of the South Shore Art Center.

The public is invited to meet the artists at an opening reception at the Gallery, 103 Ripley Road, Friday, Oct. 15 from 6 to 8 p.m. Regular Gallery hours are Monday to Friday, noon to 4 p.m. and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The Philadelphia Inquirer described Graff's work as "honest and unpretentious colorful Expressionist acrylics." Graff uses his immediate surroundings both as subject and inspiration as he creates bold bright interpretations of people and landscape either in Boston, Philadelphia or Mexico.

He has studied in South Africa and London and has exhibited at the Warner Gallery, London and in Halifax, Nova Scotia in addition to being part of juried exhibitions in both Philadelphia and Boston.

He captured the Copley Award in 1981 and has exhibited in the Cambridge Art Association prize shows. Graff is a member of Philadelphia Arts Equity, Philadelphia Art Alliance, the Copley Society and a Gallery Artist at South Shore Art Center.

"I love to capture unusual times of day or weather with the subject matter architectural — storefronts or Victorian Houses," said Haletky when asked about her current watercolors. Her approach to the medium is crisp and detailed which results in a solid structural effect unusual for water media.

She has won the International Newspaper Advertising & Marketing Executives Award and taken award honors at the Brockton Art Museum and in juried South Shore Art Festivals.

Her work was featured in a one-woman show at the Flora T. Little Gallery in Bridgewater Library. Haletky received her BFA from Mass. College of Art and has been president of the Whitman Art Association.

The work of artists Becky Haletky and Leon Graff are on exhibit at the South Shore Art Center and will be through Nov. 13. (Greg Derr photo)

This watercolor and others by Becky Haletky are on exhibit through Nov. 13 at the South Shore Art Center.

Art Center clay workshop

Register in advance for the one-day Clay Workshop with Judy Rossman, Saturday, Oct. 23 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Registration must be made at the South Shore Art Center either by mail or in person at the Center on 103 Ripley Road in Cohasset.

This one-day introduction to clay is good for novices who want to learn hand building and slab techniques and will provide intermediates with new ideas and approaches.

The workshop will be held at the artist's studio in North Scituate.

Ms. Rossman has had extensive experience teaching in public schools and running private studio classes. She received her BA from Syracuse University and did graduate study at Michigan State, Wayne State and currently at Mass. College of Art.

For further information, call 383-9548 between noon and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Selectmen expected to name new fire chief . . . will meet with Lincoln

Selectmen are expected to name a new fire chief this week. But before doing so, they will talk again with Acting Fire Chief Roger Lincoln about his job protection request.

Lincoln has requested that if he is appointed chief his former job as captain be guaranteed if selectmen should not be satisfied with his performance.

Lincoln told selectmen two weeks ago he would not accept the chief's job without this protection. As of Tuesday morning Lincoln's position had not changed.

Selectman Mary Jane McArthur proposed a three-year term to leave a job protection clause out of any contract. This drew sharp criticism from firefighters Richard Conley and William Protulis. Both said they were speaking as individual residents.

They said Lincoln deserved job protection because protection had been given to chiefs in other towns.

"What Chief Lincoln is asking for is not unreasonable. If Lincoln is removed at a later day, there would be no market for him to shop in. The town would be losing a good person. The town has invested in him. You (selectmen) have invested in him," Conley said.

Protulis and Conley said McArthur's proposal discriminated against Lincoln. They believe Lt. Martin Dooley of Hartford, Conn., the other candidate for the position, would not leave his job if he wasn't guaranteed a position if the Cohasset chief's job did not work out.

McArthur said this was her basic management philosophy and did not reflect on Lincoln. "I realize we have a valued employee but I also know the town must have sound management business practices."

Earlier in the meeting Board Chairman Henry Ainslie read a letter from Town Counsel J. Blake Thaxter Jr., concerning a job guarantee.

Thaxter said an extended leave of absence could be given under the current union contract for reasonable purposes but transfer to another department or to seek other employment was not reasonable.

Conley and Protulis argued Lincoln is not covered under the standard firefighter's contract with the town. Lincoln has his own agreement with selectmen as acting chief.

Thaxter also said selectmen could not include a provision in the contract guaranteeing that Lincoln could return to his former job because the state Division of Personnel Administration must agree to the reinstatement.

This would mean selectmen would have no control over the decision. Thaxter also recommended the contract should not exceed three years. Thaxter said although there was no law prohibiting a move, the state Bureau of Accounts recommended more than three years as "inadvisable."

In a related matter Thaxter said voters cannot put the fire chief's job back into civil service by simply approving an article at town meeting.

Thaxter said returning the job to civil service would require a ballot vote at municipal election. The chief would be required to take a qualifying examination by

High turnout is expected for election

A high turnout of voters is expected in Cohasset for next Tuesday's Massachusetts election.

The polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. at Town Hall, increasing the availability of voting from the September primary when the polls were open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Absentee ballots will be accepted at the town clerk's office from 8:30 to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. until Monday. The clerk's office will close at noon Monday for absentee balloting.

Stouffer vs. Murray...page 5

The number of eligible voters has increased since the September primary. There are 4,950 eligible voters, 163 more than in September. There are more registered Democrats, a few less Republicans and a marked decrease in Independent voters.

The latest count shows, 1,477 Democrats, 1,269 Republicans and 2,204 Independents. In September there were 1,165 Democrats, 1,234 Republicans and 2,388 Independents.

Several state and local contests will spark this election. The race for governor between former Gov. Michael Dukakis and Republican challenger John Sears and the race for state representataives between incumbent Mary Jeanette Murray and former state rep. Caroline Stouffer will produce a high voter

Cohasset supports its senior citizens

By Jane Lane

One woman answered when asked how she feels being a senior citizen, "There's not much you can do about it."

But as 60 Plus Club President Marion Fallon added, there is also no reason to give up living. In fact, it could be a very enjoyable time of your life — a time for well-deserved relaxation and socialization among caring friends.

The consensus of the senior citizens in Cohasset is that this is a particularly good community for the elderly. There is an abundance of activities and services for our older generation.

"About eight years ago, my husband and I retired and moved from our house in Belmont to our summer place in Cohasset," Mrs. Fallon said. "We had renovated the house so we could live in it year-round. I have met so many nice people since that time. My son said if anything ever happened to my husband, would I move in with him? I said, "No way. I am an independent woman and I'm happy in Cohasset. I have so many friends, I can't walk down the street without saying hello to someone. It is a wonderful feeling living in Cohasset."

Council on Aging secretary Alice Daunt wholeheartedly agrees the community couldn't be more supportive of its elderly population.

She said the success of services provided to senior citizens by the town, stems from the willingness of people of all ages to become involved and volunteer.

"Even though the council's budget has been cut back because of Prop. 2½, we haven't really cut back on the services we provide to the senior citizens," Mrs. Fallon said. "We rely more and more on volunteers. It is an extraordinary town, as far as volunteers are concerned."

The council appropriates funds for several activities sponsored by various senior citizen organizations. Although the budget was slashed from the $6800 allocated two years ago, to about $5600 for this year, Mrs. Fallon said none of the services have been reduced.

The Council on Aging is comprised of 10 Cohasset

LWV finance drive

The Cohasset League of Women Voters will be conducting its annual finance drive Oct. 25-31.

The League relies on financial contributions from businesses and individuals to continue its active role in the community.

Last year a few of the League's activities included: sponsoring Town Affairs Night; researching and distributing a guide about the major articles at Town Meeting; registering 50 high school students to vote; and distributing the Cohasset Voters Guide.

The League also presented a study on casino gambling, investigating whether gambling should be legalized and how it should be regulated.

A housing forum was sponsored with representatives of the Planning Board, Housing Authority and local realtors who analyzed Cohasset's housing needs. Hazardous waste, school financing and health care were topics also presented by the League this year.

On a national and regional level, the League of Women Voters has consistently been the organization chosen by candidates to sponsor debates. These debates require much of the League's financial resources.

League officers include: co-presidents, Chartis Langmaid and Marie Caristi; first vice president, Doris McNutty; secretary, Marge Izzo; treasurer, Carol Martin; directors, Janine Broadhurst, Deborah Cook, Millie Mitman, Betty Van Slyke, Laura Atherton and Ann Churchill.

Jan Daggett is finance chairman.

Contributions may be sent to Carol Martin, 45 North Main St., Cohasset 02025.

PSO recommendation

The Cohasset Parent School Organization's Executive Board voted 12 to one to recommend a "No" vote on Question #1 on the Nov. 2 ballot.

The proposed amendment to the state constitution concerns state aid to non-public school students and to certain institutions.

The group met Thursday, Oct. 21. Chartis Langmaid, co-president of Cohasset's Chapter of the League of Women Voters, addressed the group on Question #1.

"The League opposes Question #1 as do the Cohasset School Committree and the Cohasset Teachers Association. Yet 50 percent of the voters do not know how they are going to vote on particular issues until they walk into the voting booth," she said.

The League's opposition to Question #1 is based on four reasons: the state constitution's safeguards against the funding of private schools with public funds; the unknown cost factors involved in the referendum; the discriminatory aspects of the question; and the fact that it is an anti-public education referendum.

Langmaid said the proposal was passed in 1980 prior to Proposition 2½ and was started as a gesture of goodwill for some parents whose children attended private schools.

"The Legislature did not understand some of the referendum's consequences," she added.

Nancy Sandell, PSO president, said it is because of the proposed amendment's threats to public education that the PSO will oppose it.

"Our by-laws declare that our third objective is 'To act as advocates of public education.' This is a strong priority.

We plan to make a sincere effort to inform the public of the referendum's consequences. We have sent for literature and plan to distribute it as effectively as possible," Sandell said.

New building inspector

Selectmen have chosen Robert Dennis of Cohasset, a local contractor, as the town's new building and zoning inspector.

Dennis is a self-employed contractor and has taught high school industrial arts and is the adult education supervisor for woodworking classes at Braintree High School. He has a bachelor's degree in industrial arts from Fitchburg State College and has a construction supervisor's license.

Selectmen made one stipulation in the appointment. Dennis could not do any construction work in town. Favoring the appointment were Chairman Henry Ainslie and Rocco Laugelle. Earlier Selectman Mary Jane McArthur, who abstained from the vote, said selectmen should consider boosting the salary ($17,363) to attract more experienced candidates, especially those with zoning experience. But Laugelle argued a higher salary would mean town meeting approval and a longer delay. The contract is for one year.

Teenager shot

Police are investigating the shooting of a 15 year-old Cohasset youth after he was shot in the face with a BB gun by a youth sitting on a Pond Street porch on Saturday afternoon.

Kevin Dunn, 15, of Pond Street, was not seriously injured, police said, when one of the pellets shattered a front tooth. He was walking down Pond Street when one of two youths sitting on the porch fired the pellet gun. Police did not name the shooter.

Bottle Bill support

Selectmen have pledged to support the Bottle Bill question on the Nov. 2 ballot after a request from the Cohasset League of Women Voters.

Caution urged on Halloween

Halloween in Cohasset will not be restricted this year. However, selectmen and police are urging strict caution in examining children's candy and are urging parents to supervise their children's plans.

One Cohasset parent asked selectmen to consider some restrictions on Halloween after several communities either banned the festivities altogether or set a curfew or restricted hours.

Selectmen said a ban would be impossible to enforce and that parents should take the responsibility to keep their children home.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle said the town lacks authority to do so.

"How are we going to stop Halloween? You're not going to stop it," he said.

Chairman Henry Ainslie said, "That's the parents' responsibility."

The Police Department issued several recommendations for parents to follow with a reminder that Daylight Savings Time will end Sunday morning so evening will come sooner. By 6 p.m. it will be dark.

Here are the recommendations from police:

"It is important to insure a safe Halloween evening that you supervise your children and inspect their treats. The following tips may also be helpful:"

TIPS ON COSTUME SAFETY

1. Wigs if used should be non-flammable.

2. Reflective strips should be used in patch form on all costumes and make-up is much safer than a mask. Everyday shoes are safer than high heels or poorly fitting shoes.

3. Be sure your child has a battery-operated lantern or flashlight so that he or she will be clearly visible.

4. Have a dress rehearsal to be certain your child can see and move freely.

SAFETY RULES FOR WALKING

1. Be sure your child looks both ways before crossing as children become careless with excitement and may run into the road. Dusk is the poorest time of visibility and motorists are advised to turn on headlights early to remind others of the dangers of youngsters in traffic.

2. Children should stay on sidewalks wherever possible. Were there are no sidewalks they should walk way to the left facing traffic.

3. Be careful of turning motor vehicles and do not step into roadway from between parked cars.

KNOW YOUR CHILDREN'S PLANS

1. Know what route he or she will be taking, know who their companions will be and what kind of supervision they will have.

2. Know what homes they will be visiting and time they will return.

a. It is best your children do not stop at homes of strangers or enter anyone's home.

b. Set a reasonable time for their return and insist upon it.

KEEP YOUR HOME SAFE

1. Keep a light on so children can see where they are walking.

2. Remove obstacles from area so children will not trip.

3. Greet children at your door but do not encourage them to enter.

TREACHEROUS TREATS

1. Insist that your children bring their treats home for inspection before anything is eaten.

"Last but not least, remember a child looks forward to only the good things about Halloween. Your preparation can alert your children on how to avoid accidents and help them have a safe and horribly good time."

Chief's appointment...

Civil Service.

"If the incumbent were to pass the qualifying examination, he would become a tenured employee either with or without a period of probation, depending upon his length of prior service. If he were to fail to pass the examination, he would be continued in the position until the expiration of the term for which he was appointed." Thaxter said.

This also applies to the Police Chief's post, town counsel said.

FIREFIGHTER APPOINMENT STALLED

The appointment of Rudy Caparrotta as a Cohasset firefighter is stalled until his attorney speaks to the state Civil Service agency.

Selectmen made the appointment a few weeks ago believing Caparrotta was certified as an emergency trained medical technician.

Last week they were informed his certificate had expired. The state had sent a list of five names as having been certified as EMT's.

One candidate didn't know what the term EMT meant. another candidate's certificate had expired and another candidate had taken a position with Hull.

This means the department is still short two firefighters and the overtime expenditures are growing.

Quincy court to hear complaint on landfill

A Quincy District Court judge will hear several complaints filed by the Board of Health Thursday concerning landfill operations by Cohasset Hights LTD.

The health board alleges the firm has failed to comply with landfill regulations. These include installing a board aproved scale for determining the monthly tonnage taken in at the dump; providing the board with the calculations used to determine the tonnage of wastes taken to the landfill; and maintaining daily intake logs and making them available to the board for inspection.

At Thursday's hearing, a clerk magistrate will determine if criminal complaints can be filed. The health board is expected to go to Superior Court this week to force the company to comply with the rules.

Health Agent Elaine Eliopoulos said the town was going to district court to have the company fined. Violations could carry a fine of up to $200.

She said the company had been given until Monday, Oct. 18 to comply with the rules or at least set a timetable. The decision to go to court came after many letters and discussions with the company about the matters.

The firm responded with a letter saying a section of state law pre-empted the board's right to set rules concerning the landfill. But Eliopoulos consulted with town counsel and was told the board does have the right to set the rules.

Eliopoulos has repeatedly asked for daily logs but has been told she could not obain any logs because the records were no longer kept on site. The board has asked the company to keep more than one day's log at a time.

The board adopted the requests and rules to keep better records of how much waste is going to the dump.

Eliopoulos said when James Tyerar, previous landfill owner, asked for permission to dump household trash in the facility, the board was told the landfill intended to take in 100 tons per day. But Eliopoulos feels the current operators are dumping more than that each day.

The increased amount of dumping raises questions regarding Cohasset Heights' ability to keep up with covering the trash coming in daily. Other concerns raised by the board include the speed at which the dump is filling up and road traffic.

The board also wants to review the amount of trash dumped because the town gets 50 cents for every ton dumped.

NO SLUDGE

The board rejected Cohasset Height's request to accept sludge from the Hull sewerage treatment plant. Board members said there are a number of unresolved issues and could not allow Cohasset Heights to take on additional responsibilities.

Comparing & contrasting Murray & Stouffer

By Patricia Desmond

Both Mary Jeanette Murray and Caroline Stouffer happen to be married women who live in big old houses overlooking the sea.

Both back the Bottle Bill. Both oppose casinos in Hull (or elsewhere in Massachusetts) although that hardly seems to matter in this campaign. Both have served as their town's representative in the Great and General Court in the past. Both women are working hard to make the job of representing Hingham, Hull and Cohasset their fulltime occupation for the next two years.

That's it. We've run out of similarities (that we know about, anyway — maybe they both use Crest and walk their dogs on the beach in the morning.)

But the two candidates are as different as green and red.

Murray uses green on her buttons. She's the sort of person who enjoys doing the rubber chicken circuit. She jokes about living for years with a partially functioning stove. She smiles alot and works on the questions of constituent service with high energy.

Her husband, Philip, is her unpaid aide, having retired from more gainful employment.

Murray favors the death penalty, favors a nuclear freeze as long as it's not unilateral and is monitored, favors cutting the size of state government. In fact her overall philosophy is that less government is better government and government regulations of the private sector should be halted.

When Murray campaigns she uses the telephone and asks her workers to phone, too.

In her own words, Murray is middle of the road and has conservative leanings.

She also has large blue eyes that have the look of contentment in the corners.

Stouffer's husband, John, was once a candidate for vice president on a ticket with Gene McCarthy. He now, as then, teaches science at Hingham High School.

She uses red on her literature. And while she can be seen smiling on the campaign trail (door-to-door), she has a frown of deep concern that comes out at the mention of the issues.

Stouffer opposes the death penalty, backs the nuclear freeze and a more liberal view of the way the world works.

That's why Sen. Paul Tsongas came to town to help raise money for the Stouffer campaign.

On the other hand, Murray has the endorsement of Republican Bill Robinson.

Oh, Murray thinks private enterprise is the way to go. That's why she does not favor the commuter boat subsidy. Stouffer at the other end of the spectrum is a backer of public transportation of all sorts.

Oh, Stouffer has brown eyes.

A report from Cub Scout Pack 38

MUSEUM TOUR

The Cohasset Historical Society opened its three museums on Oct. 23 to let the Cub Scouts view what life was like in Cohasset's past. David Wadsworth, museum curator and tour guide, explained histories of the buildings and their contents.

Pack 38 thanks Mr. Wadsworth and also Mrs. McIntosh, who made the tour arrangements.

DEN LEADERS

Most of the cubs have had their first den meeting. The Pack and boys appreciate all the volunteer den leaders; Cub Scouts wouldn't exist without them. Learning and growing together is what makes scouting successful.

HALLOWEEN

Reminder: Scouts may wear their Halloween costumes to the monthly Pack meeting which will be held today, Oct. 27 at 7 p.m. at the Deer Hill School.

BOWL-A-RAMA

The Old Mills District is having its Bowl-a-Rama during the first two weeks of November. Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts will be asking for sponsors for the event which will be held at the Cohasset Community Center.

Sponsors will support a scout for three to seven cents on a total amount of three strings bowled. The money collected will be divided as follows: 50 percent to the district; 25 percent to Pack #38; and 25 percent for prizes the scouts will earn on their total score.

The bowling dates are Nov. 5-Nov. 13. Those who haven't registered participants should call Linda Farrag (383-9519).

Hats off to you, gentlemen!

As John Creed said on WATD he would have picked all four girls as queen, but there was only one. Congratulations to Amy, and to the King, Bob Meers.

☐Mrs. Frances Antoine called to tell me that she needs rides home from Boston at 5 p.m., not into Boston as was incorrectly reported last week. Anyone in the area of Commonwealth Ave., that is coming to Cohasset at that time (once a month, Mon., Wed., or Fri.) that could take a passenger, please call Mrs. Antoine at 383-0288.

☐Received an announcement and note full of details about Mary Nisula's recent wedding. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Nisula, 10 Sanky Road. Mary was married on Oct. 16 to Vincent Chesarone at the Trinity Episcopal Church in Marshfield.

Mary was a varsity cheerleader at CHS for two years. Her career has been in special education and she is presently an educational consultant.

Vincent, a biochemist, owns and operates Newton Wellesley Medical Laboratories, Ince.

Carol Gates, also a CHS grad, was Mary's attendant and best man was James Chesarone, brother of the groom. After a wedding trip to New Hampshire, they will make their home in Norwell.

☐I have been asked to remind you to mark Nov. 9 on your calendar...it is the Fall Sports banquet put on by the Cohasset Boosters. You can count on good food, short speeches and entertainment by Tom Wigmore, so write the 9th down now.

☐Jody Thaxter III wrote from Harvard with an update on the courses that he is currently taking...Alternative Cinema Sanskrit and Scandinavian Literature 1880-World War I. Other courses that he has taken are Astronomy (The Solar System), Oceanography, and Europe in the Middle Ages. Thanks for the "update," Jody.

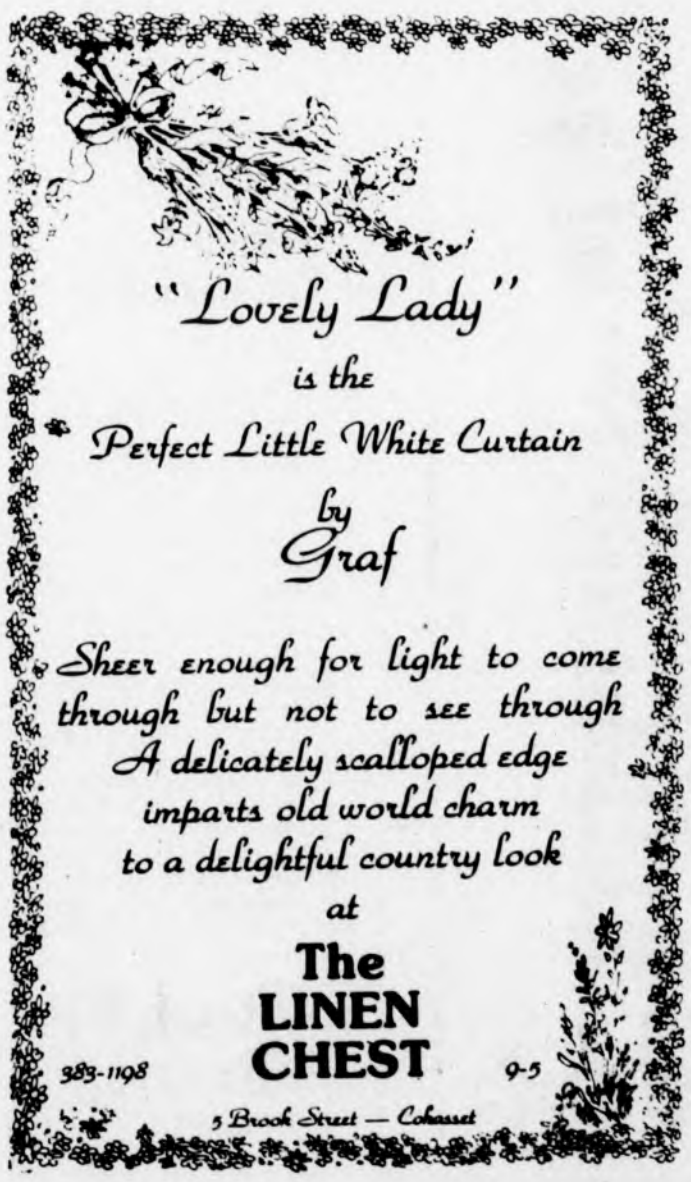
☐WATD certainly liked the way Rich Evans throws that football. Made mention of that fact several times! Also were most impressed with Bill Cuff. I even had it on tape.

☐Richard Stevens, 33 Ledgeway, has been appointed to the Dean Junior College board of trustees.

☐Another up-date...remember Laurel Shea, daughter of Bill Shea? Laurel, a 1962 CHS grad, is now a U.S. diplomat at our Embassy in Kingston, Jamaica. It is a two-year term that started last August. She writes that anyone in the area (don't we wish) please come and visit her. As she wrote, "A U.S. diplomat — who'd have thought it!"

☐Golfers beware...George McCullough is coming on strong. The cold weather must agree with him, his game improves every week. Maybe it's the trophy he won recently.

☐Scott Fone was at Saturday's game, checking out Keith Townsend who was wearing "his" number. Scott was very impressed Keith's efforts.



☐Congratulations to the girls soccer team! They tied Duxbury, quite a feat!

☐Could they be related? That's what Doris Golden and Nancy Anderson want to find out. They have discovered that they are from the same town in Italy, that their relatives used to be friends when they were young and that perhaps they could be cousins! Doris is writing for details...keep us informed.

High turnout is expected for election...

turnout.

Also generating voter interest will be the race between two Cohasset residents, incumbent Congressman Gerry Studds and challenger Jack Conway. Thomas Barry of Duxbury is challenging incumbent Allan McKinnon of Weymouth for state senator.

In September, Dukakis collected 815 votes from Cohasset residents while John Sears collected 322 votes.

Murray totalled 162 Democratic votes and 557 Republican votes while Stouffer collected 870 Democratic votes and two votes from Republicans.

Studds had 1,184 votes from Democrats and four votes from Republican voters while Conway totalled 10 votes from Democrats and 515 from Republican voters.

McKinnon controlled the Democratic votes with 1,115 while Barry collected 454 votes. His opponent Vincent Mina had 46 votes.

Besides these races, voters will be marking their ballots for U.S. senator, lieutenant governor, attorney general, state secretary, treasurer, auditor, governor's councilor, district attorney, clerk of courts, register of deeds and county commissioner.

Also of voter interest are seven ballot questions, two are non-binding.

Question 1 concerns state aid to non-public school students and certain institutions. A yes vote would change the state constitution to allow state aid to students in certain non-public schools and to institutions which are not now allowed to receive aid. A no vote would keep the same restrictions on state aid in the state constitution.

Question 2 concerns the Dealth Penalty. A yes vote would change the state constitution to allow the state Legislature to authorize the dealth penalty for crimes. A no vote would not change the present prohibition against the death penalty.

Question 3 concerns restricting low-level radioactive waste disposal and nuclear power plant construction. A yes vote would establish additional restrictions on low-level radioactive waste disposal. A no vote would require legislative and statewide voter approval before a facility could be located in Massachusetts.

Question 4 deals with the regulation of bottles and cans. A yes vote would keep a state law which regulates the sale, distribution and return of certain bottles and cans beginning Jan. 17, 1983. A no vote would repeal the law and would set no restrictions for bottles and cans.

Question 5 concerns a nuclear weapons moratorium and reduction and serves as an advisory opinion to Congress and to the President Ronald Reagan.

Question 6 instructs the state senator to vote in favor of legislation repealing the law which requires consumers to pay utility company fuel adjustment charges.

Question 7 asks the state senator to vote in favor of a constitutional amendment requiring all sales tax revenues to be returned to cities and towns.

Commuter boat almost ready

Mass. Bay Commuter service is recruiting personnel to innaugurate service with its 149-passenger commuter boat "Gracious Lady" shortly after the Thanksgiving holiday.

"Nearly completed in Port Everglades, Florida, our 65-foot aluminum vessel will require a total of 12 cabin attendants, four deck hands, two utility helpers and a part-time bookkeeper," said Charles English, the 69-year-old founder of Mass. Bay Commuter Service.

"When in operation, "Gracious Lady" will make ten commuter roundtrips each business day between Hingham and Boston at a cost of $2.50 each way."

Interviews will be conducted Thursday, Oct. 28 and Friday, Oct. 29, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the 3A Motel, 750 Bridge Street, North Weymouth.

Applicants will be screened on both days in the function rooms of the motel located directly opposite Harborlight Mall.

JACK CONWAY

He's one of us...

He's a family man...
As a husband, father and grandfather, Jack Conway knows that close families make for strong communities.

He's a veteran...
As a man who served his country in the Navy during World War II, Jack Conway understands the very special debt America owes those who have answered the call to protect our freedom.

He's a small businessman...
Jack Conway's successful real estate firm began as the smallest of small businesses — one desk and one phone. He knows how important healthy, thriving, successful small businesses are to every community.

He's a community leader...
During the 27 years the Conways have lived on the South Shore, both Patti and Jack have been active in many charitable and civic organizations — from the Boy Scouts to Catholic Charities to name just a few.

He cares what we think on the issues...

...Jack Conway knows that in New Bedford, on the Cape, and on the South Shore we need jobs. Real jobs. Not temporary, make-work, taxpayer-financed government employment, but permanent, productive, private-sector jobs created in the midst of a steadily expanding economy.

...and Jack Conway knows that to create an expanding economy, people need meaningful incentives to work, save and invest. That means cutting taxes because a dollar paid in taxes is a dollar that can't be spent on something else.

...and Jack Conway knows that high interest rates — fueled by huge federal deficits — are just one more way big-spending congressmen cost us money every single day.

...and Jack Conway knows a balanced approach to national defense is essential, because voting against every single defense spending bill is just as dangerous as voting for every one of them.

...and Jack Conway knows we want to see Congress start showing the kind of concern about victims of crime that's been shown toward the criminals themselves for too many years.

HE'LL BE OUR KIND OF CONGRESSMAN!

Editorial

There are reasons

It's a pity, in a way, that the gubernatorial primaries in September were such barn burners, because the final election campaign seems to have left a lot of people too tuckered out to pay much attention.

It's a pity because Mr. Shamie's low-key persistence has made his race against Mr. Kennedy an interesting one.

It's a pity because Mike Dukakis, John Kerry, Leon Lombardi and John Sears are four of the more interesting men you're likely to meet in politics. Unlike many politicians these four are smart enough to answer the occasional non-political question.

It's a pity because two sons of Cohasset, Jack Conway and Gerry Studds, are currently engaged in a series of 10 debates (see David Cutler's page 9 story) that will result in one of them being our next United States Congressman. Conway has put all verve that has made him so successful in the real estate business into his effort to unseat Studds. As to Studds, the mere fact that he has debated Conway 10 times says much about the character of the man. The great majority of Congressmen pursue what is known as a "Potomac strategy" and ignore their opponents.

It's a pity because Rep. Mary Jeannette Murray, Republican of Cohasset is running against former Rep. Caroline Stouffer, Democrat of Hingham in a rematch of their 1978 "argument." This local race, if you can imagine it, has attracted the interest of the Boston Globe, an English language daily.

Finally, it's a pity because there are five ballot questions that will help determine how we live, and in two instances (capital punishment and the "freeze") are literally questions of life and death.

In sum, there are some contests in this election that are both interesting and mightily important. What will be a pity will be if disgruntled supporters of Gov. King and other primary "losers" or over-confident Dukakis-Kerry fans don't bother to vote in this election. We've seen it happen time and again: it's the elections that the press and the public largely overlook that produce the greatest real changes — often changes for the worse.

A couple of thoughts, finally, on ballot questions.

We strongly support the Bottle Bill (Qestion 4) and oppose aid to students in private schools (Question 1). On the nuclear freeze (Question 5) we believe folks must ask themselves whether a vote for a freeze at this time will in fact send our leaders the intended message, or will it simply make the task of our arms limitation negotiators more difficult? That's a terribly difficult question to answer, and in our view the freeze issue has been terribly oversimplified by partisans on both sides.

Question 3, concerning the approval of new nuclear power plants and the disposal of low level nuclear waste by hospitals and the like — is a mess. It's a mess because voters have to sort out their feelings about nuclear power, which isn't the same as nuclear weapons, and waste disposals which isn't the same as either. The danger here is that nuclear freeze proponents will mindlessly vote "pro" and freeze opponents willk mindlessly vote "con."

Captial punishment, Question 2, is the terribly emotional issue that divides families, political parties, journalists, and everyone else. It's a moral and philosophical issue on which folks make up their own minds without the influence of the preaching of newspapers. We only say that this vital issue is reason enough why all of us and all of you must vote next Tuesday.

The mixed marriage . . .

By Claire McDonough

"I'm just so upset, I don't know what to do." My friend Flora poured herself a cup of coffee and sank into one of my kitchen chairs.

"Fern told me she's getting married in June."

"But that's wonderful," I assured her. "Fern is 27 years old. Surely she knows her own mind by now."

Flora blinked back a tear. "You don't understand. It's a mixed marriage. You can't imagine what her father and I are going through."

"Now Flora," I said, "of course I understand. We had an ecumenical marriage just last month. It's wonderful. The kids couldn't be happier."

"Sure," she told me. "That's easy for you to say. If it were Catholic and Protestant I wouldn't have any problem. The differences are much deeper and far more basic."

"You mean inter-racial? Really, Flora, in this day and age..."

She waved an impatient hand. "Not that either. I mean, this is serious. She's...she's marring a conservative," Flora wailed. "Where did I go wrong?"

I patted her hand sympathetically. "Maybe it'll work out. There are several Democrat/Republican marriages in town. They seem happy enough."

"Sure. On the surface. But what's really going on in their lives? I know of one conservative broker who's married to a liberal psychologist. She even has a PhD in liberal. He was for Card and she was for Dukakis. If they can't share something as basic as a primary candidate, how can there be any real depth in their relationship? And just think of the children. The poor things can't know what they are. They'll probably turn into...into...Libertarians, for Heaven's sake!"

"That case does look pretty bad," I admitted. "But it's just one instance. The liberal jogger and the conservator businessman certainly seem happy enough."

Flora sniffed derisively. "Happy, shnappy. She's on a perpetual runner's high anyway. And if he does get on her case she can slip into her Nikes and put thirty miles between them."

We stared at our coffee in glum silence for a few minutes. Flora brightened. "Maybe they won't be able to find a clergyman who'll marry them."

Her optimism faded. "They'll probably go out of state. And I'll wind up with the most confused grandchildren of the century. In cases like this the husband and wife often abandon politics all together. My grandkids will grow up without any opinion on supply-side economics."

"Well," I blurted, "look on the bright side. If he's really conservative, he'll probably make enough money for Fern to afford to be very liberal."

Flora gave me a withering glance. "I don't believe you said that."

"I'm ashamed of myself," I admitted. "I guess I got carried away."

We resumed our glum silence until it was interrupted by the phone. I answered it and handed Flora the instrument. "It's for you. It's Fern." I went to the livingroom so she could have privacy. A few minutes later a radiant Flora threw her arms around me and waltzed me around the floor.

"I'm the happiest woman in the world. Fern and Jim are going to have a wonderful marriage. I'm going to have the greatest grandchildren ever."

In response to my puzzled look her smile brightened.

"Jim's agreed to convert!"

LWV urges no vote on Question 3

Letters

To the Editor:

Nov. 2, voters will be faced with a referendum question that, on the surface, appears to be the citizen's answer to decision making regarding the siting of low-level nuclear waste disposal facilities and nuclear power plants., In fact, it is a bad solution to a complex problem and the League of Women Voters of Cohasset urges voters to vote NO on Question 3.

This question establishes a process which would require a statewide referendum to approve or disapprove any site that had been chosen by a strict and complicated licensing process in accordance with NEPA provisions. Such a vote would politicize the choice of a site. The League prefers that citizens, and all concerned, be involved in the process all the way from beginning to end.

The League supports a safe solution to the problem, one that is carefully developed and publicly acceptable. We, and other concerned citizens and law-makers, have been involved in developing legislation that will allow for an environmentally sound solution that will be publicly debated and will comply with national policy goals that have been federally mandated.

Question 3, if passed, might seriously impair Massachusetts' abililty to enter into any regional disposal solutions.

NEWS ITEM — The Bottle Bill, scheduled to become law Jan. 17, 1983 — after overwhelming support at the polls last year — is back on the ballot again. Out-of-state industry plus other interests prepared to fund $3 to $5 million last minute effort to prevent bill's implementation — despite potential new jobs related to recycling

"...And the best part is, with this new Bottle Bill, we get back a dime on every one of these bottles..."

Letters

In search of J.H. & S.K.

(Ed.'s note: The following letter to the editor is addressed to J.H. and S.K., who are further identified within the following piece of correspondence from Mike Ellis):

Dear J.H. and S.K.,

I'm trying to reach you through the Mariner because you didn't leave your address along with your initials, which were spray-painted in fluorescent green and orange, on the fantastic granatic outerap near the Mill River Bridge.

You did leave some really interesting stuff such as "Led Zep, Van Halen, Wet Paint," and, thoughtfully, your initials so we can recognize this masterpiece of destruction as your own.

Because your fluorescent mural is partially hidden from the road, you (again quite thoughtfully) decided to indulge in some creative landscaping to make the view more accessible for passing motorists. And you definitely heightened the fall foliage with your interesting display of artistic mastery of leaf painting — I painted leaves in kindergarten too.

Last weekend I came home, planning to do a couple of my favorite rock climbs in the Beacon Rock area. When I first saw your thoughtless mutiliation of two of my favorite climbs, I got very angry. Why would anyone want to do this? Did you ever think of who was going to clean it up?

Cohasset is a very pretty town. We have some picturesque wilderness areas such as Wheelwright Park and Whitney Woods. For a town of our size, we have a fairly extensive system of parks.

Today, with Secretary of the Interior James Watt trying to give away the last vestiges of the American park system, we certainly don't need any more senseless destruction of our natural wilderness areas.

My plea in this letter is to you, the vandals, and you, the citizens of Cohasset. I would like to clean up this mess with your help. Please give me a call if you would like to help me, physically or financially, clean up this senseless atrocity.

(Ed.'s Note II: Mike Ellis is currently in the process of writing his first book, to be entitled Erratica — a climber's guide to bouldering and buildering in Cohasset. It will be completed this spring. Mike's appeal sounds like something Cohasset Scouts might like to get involved with.)

Cheers for Manganaros

To the Editor:

Three cheers for the Manganaros and a boo, hiss for the Cohasset Common Historic District Commission. (See Mariner news story, Oct. 20). A fence may be a structure, but it's not a shelter. It's an enclosure in this case. The house may be in the Historic District, but it doesn't front on the Common; and the paddock in question isn't even visible from North Main. Why is the Commission on such a power trip?

The views of Conway vs. the views of Studds . . . never the twain will meet

By David Cutler

No one can accuse Jack Conway or Gerry Studds of trying to duck the issues.

What is coming to be known as the Jack and Gerry show opened in Marshfield Sunday afternoon and drew about 300 people to the Furnace Brook Middle School. The reviews were predictably mixed.

This was the fourth of 10 scheduled meetings between these two congressional candidates and, while it was devoid of the bitter acrimony that has marked other congressional campaigns, it did once again underscore the differences separating the two men.

They were, as Conway said, poles apart on most everything — the tax cuts, the ERA, military spending, aid to Central America and how best to shore up the economy.

Conway termed a $4.2 billion appropriation for Civil Defense as preposterously high but defended the need for some kind of strong C.D. program. "We must be prepared to defend ourselves."

Studds lacerated the idea as "the ultimate in insanity that is in this land. It is quite literally madness," he said, prompting the loudest applause of the afternoon.

Conway, the Republican challenger, is making his first foray into elective politics. He is clearly the conservative in this race and has no qualms about painting Studds as a big spending liberal who has contributed to "mutilating and mangling" the economy by overspending and mismanagement.

Studds, a Democrat, has made a habit of soundly defeating conservative Republicans since he went to Congress 10 years ago. Sunday he referred to Conway as a very nice man and not a bad realtor. He also tied him to Reagonomics and rising unemployment figures.

The candidates did agree on the need for a strong Coast Guard. They shared a mutual dislike for Interior Secretary James Watts and concurred that some kind of homeland is needed for the Palestinians. It was on the subject of the Middle East that Studds had his only kind words for President Reagan, calling the administration's policy there one of wisdom and restraint. Conway said he doubted peace could be achieved as long as Israeli Premier Menachim Began is in power.

Both agreed that the Social Security system is in trouble. It will virtually be without funds come next summer, said Conway, suggesting that changes may have to include "gently" moving up the age of recipients and perhaps including federal employees.

Studds said he recognizes that people are working longer and that the age of recipients could be moved up. He dismissed the payroll tax that finances Social Security as regressive and said he opposed reducing Social Security benefits to cut the federal deficit.

Studds was sharply critical of the Reagan Administration for making cuts in federal health care. "A person's access to health care should be a function of their needs, not their income. It is absolutely unthinkable that we have people going without health care."

Conway termed health care an important need and said the administration will find better ways to provide it. He defended the administration, saying "no administration that subsidizes 47 million poor and elderly can be accused of neglect."

Conway was adamant in defending his positions on what he called the family issues. He opposes abortion — "Studds is for it." He is for women's rights but believes the Equal Rights Amendment would "neutralize the sexes." He favors legislation to regulate hard and soft core pronography being sold through TV cassettes and he criticized Studds for favoring Gay Rights legislation.

Studds responded that abortions should be left to the conscience of a woman. He called the Equal Rights Amendment "an absolute necessity" and defended his Gay Rights vote as a vote not to deny their access to legal services.

"With respect to pronography, except for the Congressional Record, we haven't had a chance to vote on it, he said.

In outlining the decline of the Greek and Roman Civilizations, Conway pointed to the need for a strong family. "The basic unit in America is the family," he said. "I see American family today as splintering."

Studds responded that day care and jobs are family issues as well. Reagan's budget cuts have hurt the family, he said.

The candidates' positions on the ERA prompted applause for Studds and a few boos for Conway.

The 14th Amendment provides for equal treatment and there are other laws as well, said Conway in defending his stance. He pointed to his own record of hiring women for equal pay and cautioned patience. "Great strides have been made in the past 25 years, in the past five years."

The 14th Amendment, said Studds, doesn't speak to discrimination on the basis of sex. "There is in my mind no justification for debate (on the ERA). It is beyond my imagination how anyone can entertain the negative side of this question."

Studds pilloried the Administration for cuts in education, saying there is a distortion of values in the Reagan budget. "The cuts," he said, "are fundamentally short sighted. To talk about defense spending and to cut aid to education is to talk nonsense."

It's a two-way street, replied Conway. The government should help but kids should work hard and pay back the loans they receive. He pointed out that over 30 percent of the graduate students receiving federal loans haven't paid them back.

Conway is for a constitutional amendment to balance the budget..."to take away from Congress the temptation to spend." Studds rejects the idea, saying economic theories should not be made a part of the Constitution.

He went on to criticize the federal deficit caused by excessive military spending and the tax cuts — "helpful only to the rich" — and said they should be reconsidered. To Conway's claim that interest rates are down, he said "no one is borrowing." And he cautioned against Conway's call for a larger share of the Pentagon budget to go to the Congressional District. "People come to depend upon the largesse of the Pentagon."

Conway says President Reagan inherited an economy that was in shambles. He called high unemployment a "great national tragedy" but on the positive side cited reduced inflation, lower mortgage rates and a stock market that is "headed through the roof."

The moribund housing industry, he said, is coming to life and "will lead us out of the recession. It is happening."

LWV speaks in favor of Bottle Bill

To the Editor:

We enclose a copy of a letter recently sent to the Board of Selectmen of Cohasset urging them to support Referenda Question #4 on the Nov. 2 ballot, retention of the Bottle Bill.

We are pleased that the Board voted unanimously to support this question and to urge citizens of Cohasset to vote Yes on Question #4.

We would appreciate your reprinting our letter, as we feel the citizens would like to know where we and the Board of Selectmen stand on this very important issue.

Thank you.

Chartis Langmaid and Marie Caristi
Co-presidents
League of Women Voters
Cohasset

The Cohasset Coalition to Save the Massachusetts Bottle Bill urges the Board of Selectmen to support Question #4 on the Nov. 2 general election ballot.

The Bottle Bill was enacted into law in November of 1981 and is scheduled to become effective on Jan. 17, 1983. Legislation proposing to place a refundable deposit on all beer and carbonated soft drink containers had been considered by the Massachusetts legislature for 10 years, before the present Bottle Bill law was passed, over Gov. King's veto, a year ago.

In 1976, Cohasset supported a similar referendum by a substantial margin. Rep. Murray and Sen. McKinnon are long-time supporters of a bottle deposit law.

A Bottle Bill will lead to an 80 percent reduction in beer and soda container litter and a 40 percent cut in overall litter volume. Cohasset will look cleaner and neater.

A Bottle Bill will cause a dramatic increase in bottle and can recycling, by providing a financial incentive to recycling and by providing a recycling climate. Presently only about five percent of all beverage containers are recycled in Massachusetts. Precious landfill space at the Cohasset dump will no longer be taken up by deposit container solid waste.

QUESTION 1
PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

Do you approve of the adoption of an amendment to the constitution summarized below, which was approved by the General Court in joint sessions of the House of Representatives and the Senate on July 2, 1980 by a vote of 171-4, and on June 21, 1982 by a vote of 144-44?

YES 88
NO 89

SUMMARY

The proposed constitutional amendment would remove the present constitutional prohibition against the use of public funds to aid or maintain private primary or secondary schools.

It would permit the Commonwealth, cities and towns to make public funds available to pupils attending private primary and secondary schools in the form of either aid, materials or services subject, however, to three specific limitations. First, the private school could not be one that discriminates on the basis of race or color in its admission requirements. Second, the grant of aid must be consistent with the First Amendment to the United States Constitution which guarantees the free exercise of religion and prohibits the establishment of religion. Third, individual pupils would have to request the aid, materials or services. In addition to these three specific limitations, the amendment would authorize the legislature to enact other laws imposing conditions or restrictions on the grant of public aid, materials or services.

The proposal would also change the state constitution to allow public money to be spent to aid infirmaries, hospitals, charitable or religious undertakings if they are either publicly owned or under the control of public officials. The state constitution now prohibits such spending unless these institutions are both publicly owned and under the control of public officials.

QUESTION 2
PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

Do you approve of the adoption of an amendment to the constitution summarized below, which was approved by the General Court in joint sessions of the House of Representatives and the Senate on September 19, 1980 by a vote of 123-63, and on June 21, 1982 by a vote of 125-62?

YES 98
NO 99

SUMMARY

The proposed constitutional amendment would allow the legislature to enact laws authorizing the state courts to impose the death penalty on the conviction of crimes to be specified by law. The proposed amendment would provide that no provision of the state constitution may in the future be construed as prohibiting the imposition of the punishment of death.

QUESTION 3
LAW PROPOSED BY INITIATIVE PETITION

Do you approve of a law summarized below, on which no vote was taken by the House of Representatives or the Senate before July 7, 1982?

YES 106
NO 107

SUMMARY

The proposed law would require that before the construction or operation of any new nuclear power plant or low-level radioactive waste storage or disposal facility in the Commonwealth, the legislature must make certain findings and a majority of voters must approve the new facility at a statewide election.

Before the question of building a new nuclear power plant could be submitted to the voters, the legislature would have to find that (1) the proposed facility is the best means for meeting energy needs based on certain economic, safety, environmental and social considerations; (2) a federally-licensed facility exists for the disposal of the high-level radioactive waste that would be generated; (3) an approved emergency preparedness plan has been developed; (4) radioactive pollution standards have been promulgated; and (5) a demonstrated, federally-approved technology exists for decommissioning the proposed power plant.

Before the question of building and operating a low-level radioactive waste storage or disposal facility or of entering into an agreement with another state to build and operate such a facility in Massachusetts could be submitted to the voters, the legislature would have to find that the technology and site designated for the proposed facility are the best available based on certain economic, safety, environmental and social considerations. The legislature would also have to find that the obligations imposed on Massachusetts by any interstate agreement were no greater than those imposed on any other state.

The proposal would not apply to a facility which had obtained all necessary government approvals before August 5, 1981, nor to any facility for disposal or storage of radioactive wastes from medical or bio-research applications in Massachusetts.

QUESTION 4
REFERENDUM ON AN EXISTING LAW

Do you approve of a law summarized below, which was approved by the House of Representatives on November 10, 1981 by a vote of 108-49, and by the Senate on November 16, 1981 by a vote of 29-10?

YES 120
NO 121

SUMMARY

The law requires that a refundable deposit be paid for certain beverage containers sold in Massachusetts.

Beverage containers of less than 32 ounces must have a refund value of at least five cents and larger containers a refund value of at least ten cents. This requirement applies to non-biodegradable containers of carbonated soft drinks, mineral water, beer and other malt beverages, but not to containers of other alcoholic beverages, dairy products, natural fruit juices or wine. All beverage containers subject to deposit must clearly indicate the refund value on the container.

The deposit is paid by the consumer upon purchase and must be refunded when the consumer returns the empty container to a proper dealer or redemption center, so long as the container does not contain any material different from its normal contents. Dealers and distributors are also subject to the same deposit and refund on the beverage containers they handle, and are also entitled to a handling fee of at least one cent per container.

No containers can be sold in the state if they are joined together by plastic rings or any other device that cannot be broken down by light or bacteria.

The law provides a bottler a reduction in corporate excise tax of one-tenth of one cent for each reusable beverage container which the bottler sells in the first three months of 1983. The law provides for additional unemployment benefits and, if the Legislature appropriates the funds, a job retraining program for employees of bottlers, canners, or manufacturers of beverage containers who lose their jobs as a result of this law.

The law takes effect on January 17, 1983.

Shall the Secretary of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts inform the President and the Congress of the United States that it is the desire of the people of Massachusetts to have the government of the United States work vigorously to negotiate a mutual nuclear weapons moratorium and reduction, with appropriate verification, with the Soviet Union and other nations?

A conversation with Guidance Director John Leary

By Patricia Anne Walsh

Guidance Director John Leary's voice was as smooth as his silver hair as he ushered me into the newly enlarged Cohasset High School guidance suite, which, he explained, will allow increased student services and programs.

He had just returned from the superintendent's office, where a contract for the new ACES had been signed.

ACES was originated by Tom Welch, who also started MOIS, which it replaces. MOIS had formerly been in the guidance office for three or four weeks as a pilot program, many months ago.

ACES computer system is available for retrieval of college information, scholarship information, occupational or career information and interest inventory. Leary hopes to have the new system operating for students in the guidance office by Oct. 25, if the lease for the new telephone line goes through on schedule. The ACES program will be half funded through a grant for the current school year.

All the career resource materials have been removed from the library and will be displayed on the new shelving in the guidance office. Students will have access to films and printed materials, and an audio visual desk top viewer for cassettes.

CAREER PROGRAM

In conjunction with Explorer Boy Scouts, there is going to be a career program for all 10th Grade pupils this year. Several years ago Bobbi McCormick, who has since moved from Cohasset, organized a career clusters program for Junior High students with the permission of former Cohasset School Supt. James Gray.

She obtained assembly speakers, who lectured about their careers and specializations. There has been a void in career instruction for years since then.

There was a kickoff assembly on Oct. 19 for Grade 10 pupils, with information regarding the new careers program. It is expected that a well known speaker will discuss the importance of careers and decision making.

Last year, as 9th Graders, the youngsters were surveyed, and the class was divided into nine occupational clusters: science and engineering, business management and commerce, communications, art, design, and performing; government and law, social services, health services, etc.

Eachcluster will meet once a month, and in ayear hear from eight or nine people employed in the field their cluster represents, to help the students clarify their decisions.

The new Peer Counseling Program is well underway. Last year, when Cohasset High School was undergoing accreditation, the chairman of the team surveying the guidance department was Florence Cranshaw, director of guidance at Dover-Sherborne.

At the same time the Cohasset guidance counselors read an article, written by Florence, in the Massachusetts Association of School College Counselors publication, describing her peer counseling program. Subsequently the Cohasset guidance counselors spent a day, last spring, at Dover-Sherborne, reviewing their procedure.

Leary noted that the program may be especially valuable for new students at the high school, who enroll when school starts in September. When new pupils register in the summer, guidance officials usually have the time to take them on a tour of the school and for a person-to-person conference, but September is a busy time, due to course changes.

It has also been apparent that the change over from elementary school to high school is often dramatic and overwhelming for 7th Graders. However, they are sometimes reluctant to talk with guidance counselors, parents or teachers, but will talk to other youngsters. Therefore, Miss Babaian and Mrs. Porter from the Cohasset Guidance Department enrolled in the workshop course offered at Northeastern by Florence last summer, for one week to learn more about peer counseling.

This fall, the two counselors explained the program to the faculty, who were receptive. They asked the teachers to recommend mature juniors and seniors to act as counselors to junior high students. A list of 30-40 was compiled. After explaining the program, a final group of 12, five males and seven females, was chosen. They are meeting twice a week to be trained in listening, dealing with stress, behavioral techniques and confidentiality.

This is counted as an elective course for credit. The faculty will recommend the students to be counselled. They will be from Grades 7 and 8, and occasionally Grade 9. The program will be evaluated at the end of the year to determine if it should be continued, modified or disbanded. If the program is continued, it is expected that the Grade 11 counselors, carried over to next year, will help give the program some continuity.

FOLLOW UP

Mr. Leary is in the process of doing another follow-up study of all Cohasset graduates for the past five years. They were sent a questionnaire last Christmas, asking where they were; what they were doing; if they had completed a program of studies; and asked to evaluate the material in every one of the programs at CHS on a five point scale.

They got the same percentage of replies as they did when the questionnaire had been sent out several years ago in the summer. There are several pages of statistics to be tabulated, and Mr. Leary has a target date for submission of the data to the Superintendent and School Committee before Christmas.

Special town meeting called to finance revaluation

A special town meeting has been called for Monday, Nov. 22 to finance completion of the town's 100 percent revaluation project.

The meeting, set for 7:30 p.m. at the high school auditorium, was requested by assessors who plan to submit two warrant articles.

Executive Secretary Arthur Clark said there is a possibility the police contract article would be included. It is not settled yet, he said, but if it is, a special town meeting would be called to finance the contract's financial terms.

Shortly before press-time, Tuesday afternoon, Charles DeSantis and others said they plan to submit a citizens' petition to selectmen before the closing of the warrant at 4:30 p.m. today, asking special town meeting to direct town officials to re-negotiate a Feb. 13, 1980 judgment which would allow the town tc consider a less-expensive alternative to a sewer plan proposed by Metcalf and Eddy| Engineers.

Another group of citizens said they would not be going forward with an article asking the town to put the position of police and/or fire chief back into Civil Service as a result of town counsel's opinion on the same.

Assesssors requested the meeting to allocate money for completing revaluation work or beginning the project again.

One article might call for $30,000 to revalue commercial, industrial and personal property in town if a study showed residential revaluation work already completed can be salvaged.

If the work cannot be salvaged, about $120,000 would be needed to finish revaluation.

The original project was supposed to be completed in July of 1981 but when the residential portion was submitted to the state, the figures were rejected by the state Revenue Department. Officials said appraiser Thomas Mahony failed to properly document how he calculated property values.

Assessors said Mahony breached his contract and have brought the matter to court.

The state has refused to allow Cohasset to send out estimated tax bills until assessors set up a timetable for completing the work. This means the delay has forced the town to borrow money to pay its bills. Already the town has borrowed $1.5 million because of the delay.

Last week the Advisory Committee approved a $1,000 transfer to pay for a study which will determine if the revaluation project can be salvaged.

The study would show if property descriptions collected by a consultant would match those collected by Mahony.

Last week assessors hired Appraisal Consultants of New England Corporation to conduct a field check of residential property figures. Edward Mendoza, firm president, said the results will be reported to assessors in two weeks.

Meanwhile the town government structure committee plans to meet Thursday, Nov. 4 at town hall at 8 p.m. with assessors to help the assessors complete revaluation.

WARRANT EXTENSION

Executive Secretary Arthur Clark first recommended to selectmen the warrant for town meeting should close at noon Nov. 20. But selectmen changed the time limit to hold the warrant open until 4:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 22.

However, some residents wondered about the decision and a check of the town by-laws showed that residents must be given seven days to file articles.

The deadline was then moved to 4:30 p.m. today.

Clark said he had checked state law and found no time limits, but he had not checked the town by-law before the Oct. 20 selectmen's meeting.

Bottle bill...

A Bottle Bill for Massachusetts would save the energy equivalent of more than ¾ million barrels of oil per year. This savings is particularly important in a New England state which is dependent on foreign sources for most of our oil. The energy savings are a result of the reduced need for new containers under a returnable/refillable system.

A Bottle Bill has the potential of saving Cohasset consumers money on their soda and beer purchases, as more than half the cost of producing a can of beer or soda goes for the container itself. If the prices are not lowered, that would indicate the beverage industry is increasing its profits, not passing along savings to the consumer.

A Bottle Bill will save water, a scarce and precious resource in many Massachusetts communities, although plentiful now in Cohasset. Washing and reusing beverage containers will save up to 20 percent of overall water consumption, as far more water is used in mining and manufacturing bottles and cans than would be used in cleaning and recycling them.

We ask that you, leaders in the town of Cohasset, vote to support the Bottle Bill and proclaim to the citizens of the town your commitment to a cleaner, less costly, and more responsible answer to the problem of litter, increased solid waste, and extravagant use of precious energy resources. Join us in urging Cohasset residents to vote Yes on Question #4.

'Scenes from American Life' coming Nov. 11

The Cohasset Dramatic Club will present "Scenes From American Life," by A.R. Gurney at the Cohasset Town Hall, 41 Highland Avenue on Nov. 11, 12 and 13, curtain time 8 p.m. Admission is $3.50; on Thursday only — senior citizens free; students $1.

Tickets will be available at the door on nights of performance.

The play is a social commentary on life in the United States. Directing the play will be Ellen Kelly, an instructor of dramatics at the South Shore Conservatory of Music, Hingham.

Field hockey, soccer teams win, football team falls

By Alano O'Brien

FIELD HOCKEY

The CHS field hockey team defeated league opponent Abington last week, 3-0.

Seniors Gia Barresi and Mia Graham each added a goal and two assists.

Junior Richelle Sargent added an insurance goal with assists from Joy Pratt and Nancy Donahue.

Goalie Sarah Trask earned the shut-out for Cohasset.

The girls travelled to East Bridgewater on Wednesday, Oct. 20, and shut out the Easties, 2-1.

Senior tri-captain Gia Barresi scored both of Cohasset's points early in the game with assists from Mia Graham and Nancy Donahue.

Goalie Lisa Shumaker earned her second varsity shut-out.

The team, 6-6, will meet league opponents Hull and Holbrook in away matches this week.

BOYS SOCCER

The boys varsity soccer team boosted their record to 4-6 by defeating Abington's green wave, 4-1, last week.

Senior Jim Stallard scored half of Cohasset's goals and got an assist.

Sophomores David McDonald and Bob Schultz each added a goal for the Skippers with Mike DeSantisand Scott Duncombe registering assists.

Seniors Dan Bowen and Chris Mahoney were praised for a well played game.

GIRLS SOCCER

The CHS girls soccer team proved their determination last week as they tied (1-1) with league opponent Duxbury. Duxbury, undefeated, has never been tied for the past four years.

The Dragons scored their goal with 1:54 left to play in the first half.

With 17 seconds left in the entire game, sophomore Jill Nedrow intercepted a Duxbury pass and crossed the ball to teammate Janet DiGirolamo, who kicked it into the bottom right corner of the net to earn the tie.

Goalie Tracy Keating played outstandingly, turning back 22 shots.

Defensively for Cohasset, Maureen Kelly, Katie Clinton and Joanne Chisholm were standouts.

Cohasset faced the Rockland bulldogs Oct. 20 and were defeated, 2-1.

CHS took the lead in the first quarter with a goal by Janet DiGirolamo but Rockland tied the score in the second quarter and scored their winning goal in the third.

Friday, the girls romped over Norwell, 6-0.

Sophomore Sarah Seavey scored three goals with assists from Jill Nedrow and Janet DiGirolamo. Tara Standford headed a goal and then kicked another off a pass from senior Tara Pompeo. Kelly O'Brien put the last one in for Cohasset.

Fullbacks Krissy Pompeo and Tracy Fitzpatrick were praised for their fine performance.

The girls, 6-8-1, were due to face Nauset Monday and Abington Friday in home matches.

FOOTBALL

Saturday the CHS Skippers were defeated 27-12 by league opponent East Bridgewater in their annual Homecoming game.

Cohasset remained scoreless in the first half while East Bridgewater scored seven points in the first quarter and six more in the second, making the score 13-0 at the half.

After half-time, the Skippers kicked off to the Easties, boosting the lead to 27-0.

This took the wind out of our sails, said Coach John Leone.

But the Skippers hung in and scored twice. The first touchdown was scored by an 80-yard pass from quarterback Rich Evans to senior Bob Meers.

Cohasset's second touchdown was scored by senior Tom O'Brien from a seven-yard pass by Evans.

Coach Leone is proud of his team this year. He said the team works hard and never quits.

Saturday the team (2-3-1) travels to Norwell to face the Clippers in another South Shore League contest.

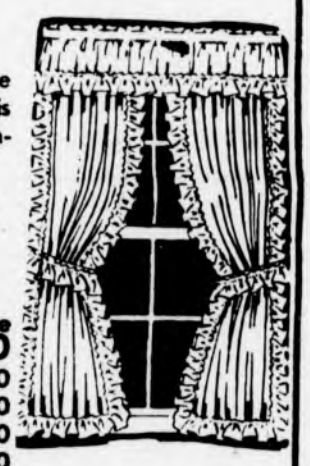
Seahawks win big, tie two, lose one

In action reported for the week ending Oct. 17, the Seahawks posted four victories and two ties and a loss.

Coach Bob Hayes, Bantam B's blanked Braintree 3-0 behind the excellent cage-minding of Karl Kauper. Jeff Hartwell (2) and William Resnick notched the Seahawk goals while Resnick picked up the lone assist.

Coach Rick Sparrow's Bantam C's gunned down Pembroke 5-1. Michael Leighton (2), Danile Elmes, John Goffar, and Gilbert Rebello hit the bulls-eye for the localites while Leighton, John Meschino (2), Elmes, Brian McGovern, Rick Sparrow, and Ron Morrison supplied the ammunition.



Coach Carney White's Pee Wee A's skated to a 3-3 deadlock with Weymouth. Andy Thomas, Andy Johnson, and Darrin Gold dented the nets for the A's while James Misakian, Thomas, Gold, and Danny Pompeo were credited with assists.

Coach Frank McGovern's Pee Wee B's suffered a 5-0 white-washing at the hands of Weymouth.

Coach Barry Resnick's Squirt A's edged Braintree 5-3, tied Abington 4-4, and crushed Weymouth 10-3.

Search continues for drowning victim

Police and Harbormaster Harry Ritter and volunteer crews were still combing Cohasset Harbor Tuesday afternoon, searching for the body of a young Cohasset lobsterman.

The body of Peter Grimes, 26, of 15 Arrowwood Road has not washed ashore.

He apparently drowned in the waters off Cohasset Harbor Saturday morning. Police and Ritter theorize his boat capsized because of a strong wind and heavy load of lobster pots.

A voluntary crew of six residents walked the beach at low tide Tuesday "but nothing showed up. We still will patrol the beaches," Ritter said.

Monday, three small boats of local fishermen searched the shoreline and dragged the harbor area for a couple of hours," Ritter said. "But we have come up empty. Our best hope is he washes ashore," he added.

Grimes was seen leaving Cohasset Harbor about 9:20 a.m. Saturday and was intending to replace some lobster pots. "I got a call shortly after 10:20 a.m. that either a boat capsized or it was a dead whale," Ritter said.

Bill Kelley of the vessel "Julie H," Ritter, Bob Baggs and Sheldon Sladen searched the water and found the capsized boat among a pile of lobster pots. They recognized the 23-foot green vessel as Grimes' boat but he was nowhere to be found. The boat was towed back to the harbor.

Ritter notified the Coast Guard. Immediately a helicopter, and vessels from Point Allerton in Hull and Scituate, were sent out. A 12-member diving team from the Quincy Civil Defense Rescue League also responded.

Coast Guard officials called off their search after a six-hour effort Saturday.

However, 30 Rescue League volunteers continued to dive throughout the harbor area Sunday. In addition, a computer tabulation of area currents and winds was used to guide two Coast Guard boats and a helicopter in a search stretching to Duxbury Beach and some portions of Plymouth Bay.

Ritter said this was the second year Grimes worked as a commercial lobsterman. Grimes is single and attended Cohasset schools. "He seemed to be a good clean-cut kid. I never had any problems with him. Neither did any of the fishermen. He was likeable and pleasant."

Grimes had worked on boats for several years and then decided to switch to lobstering; he recently purchased new equipment.

Numerous lobstermen and pleasure boaters have joined the search. Many have dragged the harbor area and combed the shore and asked residents if they had seen any sign of Grimes.

A pair of volunteers inspect the boat of Peter Grimes which was found capsized off Cohasset Saturday. He apparently drowned and was still missing Tuesday.

AN IMPORTANT PART OF THE GREEN COMPANY FAMILY

AN OPEN APPEAL TO REPUBLICAN AND INDEPENDENT VOTERS OF COHASSET, HINGHAM AND HULL

I believe I can do more for our district than the incumbent.

Why?

In my prior term in office, I proved that I can recognize and initiate creative projects, such as water transit—and get them funded. I can accomplish things such as getting an express bus run to Hingham, or getting the contract signed for repair of Pemberton Pier. I provided the leadership on the Back River Study Committee, and in the early efforts to promote private/public cooperation for development of the Hingham Shipyard and the Rte. 3A improvements, the fruits of which we are now beginning to see.

Most of my concerns are probably similar to yours: I care about public education, I worry about my property taxes and I despise waste and corruption in government. I want to see the crime rate come down, and I think the way to do it is to have a more visible police presence.

I also think we need a person in office who will provide leadership in the district, who can help bring a variety of interests and officials together for the benefit of the whole district, who will focus attention on projects that help the towns. I think we need someone with a broad, regional understanding of issues; not someone whose approach to the office is to turn it into a clipping service.

Massachusetts will have a new Governor next January. Who can best work with him?

Many of you may be voting for Mr. Sears. But if you believe, as I do, that the next Governor will be a Democratic one, then it is important that the State Representative, your closest link to state government, be someone who has known and worked with the new Governor, someone the Governor trusts and respects, someone who can take the district's concerns to him and expect cooperation.

I believe I am that person, and I ask you to vote for me in November for the good of the district and the people who live here.

Vote November 2 for

Caroline Stouffer (D)

for State Representative

she's your closest link to the state government

Cohasset supports its senior citizens...

residents, headed by Rev. John Keohane of St. Anthony's Church.

One of the more successful and widely-used services is the council's shuttle bus. Malcolm Onwood is responsible for this service which provides free transportation to seniors anywhere in town.

If a senior citizen has a doctor or hairdressing appointment, or needs to do some marketing, he or she calls the Social Service League at 383-0771 for this free service. The bus will pick up the person at his home and transport him to the requested in-town destination. The bus also makes shopping trips to the Hanover and Braintree shopping malls twice a month.

This popular volunteer service was established after the Cohasset Rotary sponsored a fundraising drive for the bus four years ago. The van has traveled 38,000 miles in that time, and a replacement will probably be required in 1984, Mrs. Daunt said.

Another popular program is the weekly Tuesday lunch at the Unitarian Parish Hall. The hot lunch, which is delivered to the hall from the high school cafeteria, costs $1.40, but no senior citizen will be turned away if unable to pay the full price.

Again, it is the graciousness of community volunteers who contribute to the program's success. Every church takes turns sponsoring the luncheon. Church members volunteer to serve the lunch, make coffee and see to the needs of the citizens who attend the gathering.

Another program is "Meals on Wheels" which provides a hot dinner at noon to all housebound elderly residents who request the service. These meals, which are made at the Red Lion Inn, cost $2 per lunch, although participants are not pressed to pay for the meal.

Volunteers from the Social Service League, headed by Helen Hooper, bring the meals to the isolated residents.

Mrs. Daunt added all the services and programs available to Cohasset senior citizens are possible through a "blending" of various organizations throughout the town. One would not succeed without assistance from another program, she said.

One of the more vital programs is coordinated by a representative from the senior citizens' housing at 60 Elm Street. Helen Barbary is responsible for interviewing all new tenants at the apartment complex and ensuring that everyone has a medical alert certificate attached to the inside of their refrigerator. This program enables emergency personnel to quickly determine what medical needs any person living in a particular apartment may have.

Mrs. Daunt acknowledged that Cohasset, unlike many other local communities, is not a poor town, and does not have many "desperate" elderly residents.

"There are about 59 citizens on Social Security insurance and many others who are close to that, but we try to help out as much as possible. I think we all do a remarkable job in this town," she said.

SOUTH SHORE ELDER SERVICES

The active senior citizen credits much of the town's success in assisting the elderly with the numerous services provided by South Shore Elder Services.

Although this non-profit program services 11 cities and towns, Cohasset is well aware of its existence because it is located in the J.J. Henry factory on South Main Street. Many of its programs are coordinated with those offered by the local community.

South Shore Elder Services has been located in Cohasset for three years. It recently changed its name from South Shore Homecare, according to director Eileen Kirby.
